DEar Wilson King, Thanks for the book, which now I return. I havnot seen it before. There is a good deal of sense in it. You will observe that its back is broken. I think it was so when I roceives it. The book I mentioned in my last letter was a much bigger one, not so Serious, and with lots of illustrations - a very curious production. I see that many of the anectotes in His book of yours correspond to events and details which happen now, and which I suppose happened in all ages. Jours very trug. Glwerkoden

Indeed, while we relie meerly on Reafon in Subjects of this Nature, I doubt we may have all too much cause to lament our felves with the Ingenious Fracastorias, in Ep. ad Flaminium.

We read of Penthens, that upon his getting upon a Tree; and making himfelf a Spectator of the hidden Sacrifices of Bacchus, he was ftruck with fuch a kind of fury, that all things feem'd double to him; two Suns and two Thebes prefented themfelves to his fight; so that when he was hasting to Thebes, prefently seeing another Thebes, he was drawn back: and thus he was continually carryed to and fro, in a restles Condition.

Now this Fable, as the Lord Bacon tells us, relates to Divine Secrets; for those who forgetting frail Mortality, rashly aspire to Divine Mysteries by high Flights in the Study of Nature and Philosophy, as tho they were mounted on a Tree, have this for their Punishment, that they are perplext with a perpetual inconstancy and wavering in Judgment; for the Light of Nature being one thing, and the Divine Light another, it happens with them as though they faw two Suns; and fince the Actions of Life, and the Decrees of the Will FAMILIAR SPIRITS, that are faid to attend Men in this Life, &c.

CHAP. I.

What the Ancients understood the Genii, that are faid to attend Men, to be, as to their Nature and Offices.

AVING undertaken to write a Tract concerning the Genii that are faid to attend Men during this Life, I think it proper for me, in the firft place, to fet forth what, according to the Ancients those Genii were understood to be, as to their Nature and Offices.

Cen-

An Account of Genii,

1. de Dies Censorinus tells us, that Genius is a God, un-Nat. c. 3. der whofe Tuition each Man is born and lives; and whether it be that he takes Care of our Generation, or is engender'd with us, or takes upon him our Guardianship after we are begotten, he fays, he is called Genius from Geno, an ancient Latin Word, fignifying to beget, in lieu of which the Word Gigno is now us'd. Genius is faid to be Son of Jupiter and the Earth, as being held to be of a middle Nature betwixt Gods and Men, or for that he fomewhat partakes of Body. Some have thought our Genius to be the Symmetry of the Elements, which preferves humane Bodies, and all living Creatures : Others, the fecret Power of the Celestial Bodies, by which we are impell'd to do all things; and thefe were call'd Geruli, from Gero or Ingero; that is, from fupportingus, or fuggesting good or bad Thoughts into our Minds.

What the Latins call'd Genins, the Greeks call'd Dæmon; which Word, to pass by other Significations, according to its Etymology, fignifies prudent, knowing, skilful in Affairs, and forefeeing things, they giving Answers to those that confulted them. In which Sense Socrates thought famous Men, after Death, for a Reward of their Vertue, were made Dæmons, of a middle Nature, mediating betwixt Gods and Men.

In Aug. de Ludovicus Vives fays, it's a wonder to fee Cro. Dei, how differing the Opinions of the Gentiles were, I. 9. c. 9. concerning the Gods and Dæmons: So that Apuleins thinks otherwife than Plato; Phtinus, than Apuleius; Porphyrius differs from them both; nor does Proclus agree in all things with Jamblicus, or any other. As for the Genii, fome fome think them to be our own Souls, fome our Inclinations, fome a certain Light attending us, fome the Intellectus Agens, &c. concerning which I shall fet down what I find in feveral Authors.

Apuleius writes thus : In a certain Senfe the L. de Deo, Mind of Man, even while it is in the Body, is Sar. call'd a Dæmon.

Dii ne hunc ardsrem Mentibus addunt Euriale? An sua cuiq; Deus sit dira Cupido?

And therefore a good Defire of Mind, is a good God ; whence fome think those are call'd bleft Eudæmons, whofe Demon is good, that is, whole Mind is perfect with Vertue; which, I think, you may properly call a Genius, becaufe that God which is each Man's Mind, tho' it be immortal, yet in some fort is engender'd within us. And there are fome, who, as it feems to me, would have the Mind of Man freed from the Body, to be a fecond fort of Damons : This, I find, in the ancient Latin Tongue to be call'd Lemur. And he of thefe Lemures, who, taking care of his Posterity, keeps the Houfe as a calm and quiet Deity, is call'd a Family Lar: But he that, by reason of Demerits in Life, is punished by a wandring in the World, having no quiet Seat, and becomes a vain Terror to good Men, and offenfive to evil, is commonly called Larva. But when it's uncertain what Lot has happen'd to a Man, whether he be a Lar, or Larva, he is call'd the God Manes ; the Word God being added for Honour's fake: They calling those Gods, who among them having justly and prudently govern'd the Course of their Lives, are

An Account of Genii,

are afterwards Deify'd by Men, and admitted to Temples and Sacred Rites, as in Baotia, Amphiaraus; in Africa, Moplus; in Egypt, Oliris; others elfewhere; Afculapius every where. And fo far concerning those Damons that have had Bodies. But there is another kind of more august Damons, which being always free from the Fetters and Ties of Bodies, are drawn to us by certain Prayers. From this fort of fublime Damons, Plato thinks each Man has one given him, as a Witnefs and Guard in paffing this Life; which tho' feen by no Man, are always prefent as Witneffes, not only of our Actions, but even of our Thoughts; and that upon our Return, at the End of our Lives, the faid Genii prefently carry us, as their Charge, to Judgment, and there stand as Witnesses at our Trial,; where, if we fallifie in any thing, they reprove us; if we fpeak Truth, they vouch it, and Sentence is paft according to their Testimony. So far Apuleius.

Porphyrius, L. de Abstinentia, fays, That as evil Dæmons hurt Mankind, fo good Dæmons never intermit their Offices, but foreshew us Dangers, as far as they may, hanging over our Heads from the evil Dæmons, while they make us Signs both by Dreams, and by the Soul divinely infpir'd, and many other things; and, that if any Man could distinguish these things which are fignify'd, he would know and precaution himself against all Frauds; for they fignifie to all Men, but all Persons do not perceive the things that are fignified.

Occult. Phil. l. 3. c. 22.

Agrippa fays, that each Man has a threefold Genius to guard him, one Sacred, another of the Geniture, the third of the Profession a Man follows. The first is not deriv'd from the Stars or Planets, but given by God, it being univerfal, and above Nature. This directs the Soul, ftill fuggefting good Thoughts, and enlightens us, tho' it be not always observ'd: But when we are purify'd, and live in a Calm, then it's perceiv'd by us; then it speaks, as it were, with us, and communicates its Voice, being prefent before in Silence, and labours continually to bring us to facred Perfection. By the Affiftance of this Genius, we may fhun the Malignity of Fate: Whom if we religioully observe, by an Uprightness and Holiness of Life, (as we know Socrates did) the Platonicks think we are wonderfully aided by him, both by Dreams and Signs, for putting by Evils, and fecuring Good to us. The Genius, or Dæmon of the Geniture, descends to us from the Difposition of the World, and the Circuits of the Stars, that are concern'd in our Generation: This is the Suftainer and Guardian of Life, it procures it to the Body, and takes care of it afterwards, and aids the Perfon for performing that Office for which the Heavens deputed him at his Birth. Those therefore who have received a fortunate Genius, are rendred strong, powerful, efficacious, and prosperous in their Works : Wherefore by Philosophers, they are call'd bene Fortunati, and bene Nati, The Damon of the Profession is given from the Stars, to which fuch a Profession or Sect, as a Man profession, is fubjected, and which the Soul, when it begins to use Election in this Body, and takes upon it Manners, fecretly wifhes; which Damon is chang'd for a more worthy or lefs, upon the Change of the Profession. When therefore the Profession agrees with our Nature, B 3 WS.

An Account of Genii,

we get a Dæmon like us; and agreeing with our Genius, and our Life is made more calm, happy, and profperous: But when we take on us a Profession unlike, or contrary to our Genius, our Life is rendred more laborious and troublefome, by difcording Patrons. Whence it happens, that a Man makes Proficiency in a little time, and with a little labour, in one Science, Art, or Ministry, who in others Toils, with much Sweat and Labour, to no purpose. And tho' no Science, Art, or Vertue is to be despifed; yet, that you may live prospercully, and act fortunately, know first of all your good Genius and your Nature, and what Good the Difposition of the Heavens, and God, the Difpofer of all thefe, promifes you, who diffributes to each Man as he pleafes : Follow these Beginnings, profess these, apply your felf to that Vertue, to which the prime Distributer raises and conducts you; and in what Virtue you find your felf to profit most easily, endeavour to rife to the height of it, that you may excel in one, which you cannot do in all. However do not flight any Perfection, as far as you are able to proceed in it; and if you have Guardians according to your Nature and Profession, you will find a double Proficiency of your Nature and Profession: But if they are unlike, follow the beft; for fometimes you will find the Aid of an egregious Profession better than 16. c. 20. that of your Nativity. The fame Author. writes thus: As to each Man is given a good Spirit, fo there is an evil one, both which feek an Union with our Spirit, and endeavour to draw it to them, and fo mix themfelves with it: The Good by good Works confor-

formable to him, changes us into Angels by Union, as he that adheres to God, is made one Spirit with him : The Evil Damon, by bad Works, endeavours to make us conformable and united to him; and this is what Hermes fays, when a Dæmon flows into an Humane Soul, he fprinkles in it Seeds of his own Notions; whence fuch a Soul, fprinkled with Seeds, raifed in a Fury, brings forth wonderful things, and fuch as are the Performances of Dæmons. For a good Dæmon, when he passes into an holy Soul, he raifes it to the light of Wildom; but an evil Dæmon tranffus'd into a wicked Soul, incites it to Thefts, Murthers and Lufts, and whatfoever are the Performances of evil Dæmons. Good Dæmons (as Famblicus fays) most perfectly purge Souls, and others give us other things; being prefent, they give Health to the Body, Virtue to the Spirit, Security to the Mind, deftroy what brings Death in us, foment the Heat, and render it more efficacious for Life; and, by an intelligible Harmony, always infufe Light into the Mind. I am of the Opinion of those, that think all Men are govern'd by the Ministery of many Spirits, and are led to all Degrees of Vertues, Merits, and Dignity, if they render themfelves worthy of them: But those that render themselves unworthy, are caft down and detruded by the evil Damons, as well as by the good Spirits, to the loweft Degree of Mifery, as their Demerits require. But those who are committed to the more fublime Angels, are preferr'd before other Men ; For the Angels that have Care of them, raife them, and by a certain secret power subject others to them, B 4 which which tho' neither perceive, yet he that is fubjected finds a certain weight of prefidency, from which he cannot eafily difingage himfelf: nay, he fears and reverences that force, which the fuperiour Angels influence the Inferiours with, and bring the Inferiours by a certain Terror into the fear of Prefidency. So we read that Mark Antony formerly being join'd in a fingular Friendship with Octavian Augustus, they werewont often to play together; but Augustus being always Conqueror, a certain Magician thus admonish'd Mark Antony : What do you do Antony with that young Man? Fly, and fhun him; for tho' you are elder, and more experienc'd in Affairs, of a more Illustrious Family, and have been a great Commander in Wars, yet your Genius much dreads the Genius of this Youth, and your Fortune flatters his, and unless you fly far from him, it will wholly turn to him. Again, Agrippa tells us, the ancient Sages teach us to know the Nature of each Man's Genius from the Stars, and their Influences and Afpects at each Man's Birth, but by fo differing and difagreeing Rules, that it's very hard to get these Mysteries out of their hands : For Porphyrius feeks the Genius from the Star that is Lady of the Geniture; Maternus either thence, or from the Planets that have been most dignified there; or from that whole Houle the Moon is to enter, after that it holds at the time of the Perfon's Nativity. But the Childrans feek the Genius only from the Sun, or Moon. Others again, and many of the Hebrews, from fome cardinal Point of the Heavens, or from all of them. Others feek for the good Genius from the eleventh Houfe.

House, which therefore they call the good Damon ; and the evil Genius from the fixth, which they call the evil Dæmon. Since therefore the fearch of these is laborious and very abftrufe, we may much more eafily feek the nature of our Genius from our felves, attending to those things which our Mind suggests to us, the inftinct of Nature dictates, and Heaven inclines us to from our first untainted Innocency; or when our Mind is purg'd of vain Cares, and finister Effects and Impediments are removed from it. These doubtlefs are the kindly Suggestions of the Genius that is given to each Man at his Birth, leading and perfwading us to that which our Conftellation inclines. So far Agrippa. He that would fee more concerning the fearch after each Mans peculiar Dæmon, may read a little Tract on that Subject, printed at the end of a Book, entitled, Trinum Magicum, fet forth by Longinus.

Natalis Comes fays, The Genii or Dæmons Myth. 1.4, prefent us with the Species or Images of c.3. those things they would perfwade us to, as in a Glass; on which Images, when our Soul privately looks, those things come into our Mind; which, if confider'd with Reason, give us a right determination of Mind: But if a Man, setting Reason aside, be carried away with the guidance of evil Species, or Images, he will of necessity incur many Errors, especially if the Images are prefented us by evil Dæmens. Whence many become wholly given over to Lusts, Cruelty, Covetousparts, c.c. all which are imputed to the Genius.

Ma-

An Account of Genii,

Disfert.11. Maraviglia, in his Pseudomantia, writes thus, Tho' many have thought the Genii to be nothing but a certain Light plac'd by God in our Minds, at our Birth, whereby we understand all things; and being understood, if they are good, we love and purfue them; if bad, we decline and avoid them, yet the more common Opinion was, that the Genii were not only a light difcovering and foreshewing future things to us, but certain pure Spirits standing by us always to guard and admonish us: Tho' it be far more credible that those Genii in all Ages were the very Wills of Men, naturally predifpofed with a defire and love, or an aversion and abhorrence of things Good or Evil, difcus'd and propos'd to them by the Understanding. The fame Author Animadv. tells us, that Pythagoras thought the Genii were certain Lights naturally implanted in our Minds. Apuleins thought they were the Minds themselves, and Disposition of each Man. The ancient Pagans, that they were good and evil Dæmons appointed to each Man, from the beginning, for his Governance. Differt. 9. Again, He writes as follows, The Prophecying Spirits, call'd in the Scriptures Angels, are call'd by the ancient Pagans, Genii Fatidici, as tho' generated from God, and fent from Heaven to us, to foretel future things; for they thought these fatidical Spirits, whom they varioufly worfhip'd, knew all things that were to come in the World, and could foretel them, becaufe themfelves were a part, or a certain Particle of the Soul of the World, which is every where: For they were of Opinion, that this Soul was diffus'd through the whole World, but chiefly feated in the athe-

or Familiar Spirits.

atherial Region, and confequently in the Stars themfelves; and more effectially in the Sun, from which all inferior things are fomented, as it were, by Rays of a vivifying Soul transmitted to them; whence alfo they thought thefe kinds of Subftances compos'd of a fubtle Body, fuch as an aerial Body is; and that Angels, Damons, and Souls were from a particle of the mundane Soul. Which Subftances Apuleius fays, are plac'd in the aerial Region of the World, that they might procure a more easie Commerse betwixt Gods and Men, and more readily unfold the Secrets of the Gods, &c.

Ludovicus Vives writes thus : Plato in his In Aug. de Timævs and Cratylus, calls the best part of our L. 9. c. 9. Mind a Dæmon : His words are these; You know what they are whom Hessid calls Dæmons, viz. that golden Race of Men, of whom he favs thus :

Bnt after Fate this Race has took away, They're pure terrestrial Dæmons call'd, and they Are Mens blest Guard, all Evils keep away.

Thô I think that Race was call'd Golden, not that it confifted of Gold, but that it was good and excellent; and, I conceive, we are call'd an Iron-Age in comparison of that; but if any one now living be good, Hefod number'd him among his Golden Men. And what are the Good but the Prudent; and I conceive he call'd them Damous from their Prudence and Skill in Affairs, the Name it felf, in our ancient Tongue, shewing it. Therefore it's well faid of him, and most of the rest of the Poets, that when a good Man de-

An Account of Genii,

departs this Life, he is plac'd in some excellent Post of Honour, and made a Damon for his Wildom. After this manner therefore I affirm, that a wife Man, fo he be good, both living and dead, is a Dæmon, and juftly fo call'd. This we find in Plato, whence doubtlefs, Origen drew his Error, where he writes that human Souls are chang'd into Dæmons, and thefe again into those. Porphyrius also fays, that each Mans peculiar Damon is a certain part of the Soul, viz. the Mind, and he is an happy Man, and one Eudamon, that has got a wife Mind ; and unhappy on the contrary : And that Souls Infefted with Vices, pass into the nature of evil Damons, and are rendred like them in Lies and Impostures. Proclus explains all these things, laying down a threefold nature of a Damon: He writes thus: Plato, in his Timæus, fays, our Animal Nature is a Damon: but this must be admitted but comparitively; for there is a Damon by Effence, another by Comparison, another by Reference or Refpect; for every where that which next prefides, being a certain order of Damon, in respect of the Inferior, is usually call'd a Dæmon. In which fense Jupiter, in Orpheus, calls his Father Saturn a Dæmon. And Plato, in his Timæus, call'd those Gods Dæmons, that immediately order Generation. Indeed, by comparison, fuch an one is a Damon which next provides for every one, whether it be God, or inferior to God. And in fome refpect that Mind is faid a Damon, which performs wonderful Actions, more like to those of a Dæmon than of a Man, and has his whole Life fulpended from a Dæmon. After this way, I think, Socrates call'd those Minds Damons in a Republick, which had pass'd their Lives well, well, and were translated into a better State. Finally, a Damon by Effence is call'd a Damon, not by respect to Sequents, nor by rea-. fon of fome fimilitude to another thing, but has got his Property of himfelf, and has a certain diffinct Exiftence, and his proper Powers, and his different ways of acting. Indeed the rational Soul in Timaus is always call'd an Animal Damon, but he does not mean it a Damon fimply; for when we fay a Damon fimply, its a certain middle Nature betwixt Gods and Men. By Plotinus and others, its quæried, whether our Minds are mov'd of themfelves to Defires and Determinations, or by the impulse of some Deity. And first, they faid humane Minds were spontaneously mov'd; but they found upon fearch, that we were impell'd to all honeft Actions, by a certain Familiar Genius or Numen, given us at our Birth; and that we defire or covet evil things by our Mind : For it cannot be that we covet evil things by the Will of a Deity, whom, its manifest, no Evil can please; tho' doubtlefs by many of the Platonicks, the Affections alfo with which we are carried away, are call'd Dæmons.

Ammianus Marcellinus writes thus : Divines Hift. tell us, that as all Men are born, (faving the ^L 21ftedfaftnefs of Fate) certain Divine Powers are affociated to them, to be a fort of Governours of their Actions, tho' they are feen by few, whom manifold Vertues have dignified : And this Oracles and famous Authors have taught, among whom Menander :

> Unicuique homini statim nascenti Adest Dæmon vitæ mystagogus.

And

And fo we are given to understand from Homer's Immortal Poems, that the Celeftial Gods' have not fpoke to Valiant Men. nor have been prefent to them, nor aided them in their Fights, but Familiar Genii attended them, by whofe Aid Pythagoras and Socrates are faid chiefly to have rais'd their Fame. Numa Pompilius alfo, and the Elder Scipio, and, as fome think, Marius and Octavianus, who had first the Title of Augustus given him, and Hermes Trismegistus, and Apollonius Tyanaus, and Plotinus, who has adventured at fome Reafonings about this mystical Matter, and profoundly to fhew from what beginnings these Genii become connected to the Minds of Men, which receiving, as it were in their Embraces, they defend as far as they may, and teach them great things, if they find them pure, and fever'd from the corruption of finning, by an immaculate Society with the Body.

Hieronymus Cardanus fays, in general, there were manifold differences of Dæmons among the Ancients; forbidding, as that of Socrates; admonifhing, as that of Cicero at his Death; teaching things to come by Dreams, Brutes, Cafualties; advifing us to go to a place, and deceiving us by one Senfe, or more, and by fo much he is the nobler, likewife by natural, and alfo by non-natural things; and this we think the nobleft; alfo a good and a bad.

In not. in Lucian de Lucra.

Gilbertus Cognatus writes, that fome think by the word Manes, Souls feparated from the Body are fignified; whence we fee that ancient Monuments of Sepulchers are infcrib'd, Diis Manibus; and those that demolish Sepulchers are thought to violate the God Manes. In the Body, they are call'd Genii; separated from from the Body, Lemures; when they infeft Houses they are call'd Larvæ; on the contrary, if they are good, Familiar Lares.

That egregious Philologer Kircher, in his Vol. 3. Oedipus Agyptiacus, gives the following ac- P. 474. count of the Genii, according to the Doctrine of the Agyptians. The Agyptians had always in great veneration certain Statues, which they call'd Serapes; the Latins, Penates or Lares: Some fay the Penates are nought but those Genii or Deafters, by which we Breathe, we Know, we See, we behold the Sun, viz. Jupiter, Juno, Minerva, and Vefta; for they call'd the middle Region of the Air, Jupiter; the lower, Juno; the top part of the Æther, Minerva, who is the power of divine Intelligence; the Earth, Vesta: These they call'd and believ'd to be the Gods of Provinces, and of our Births, and Prefidents over Cities, and guards of private Houses. And Dionysius Halicarnassaus fays, the Romans call these Gods Penates; and some translating them into Greek, call them Genethlios; or Genitales; others call them domestick and familiar Gods; fome the Prefidents of Poffeffions; others, fecret Gods. They are call'd Genetblii, because they are thought to be appointed to the guard of Men, prefently upon their being Born; or because by their vigilancy all things are generated; whence the Genii are also call'd, the Presidents of things that are to be Generated. They are call'd Patrii, because they were thought to prefide only over those things which are common to fome Region or Province; in which, with great diligence, they order'd things not only belonging to every City, but also to every House; to all Men, Plants, and Animals, accor-cording to the care committed to them. The Serapes of the Egyptians were nought but Images, without any eminency of their Limbs. roll'd, as it were, in Swadling-Cloaths, partly made of an appropriate Stone, partly of Metal, Wood, or Shell. Some of thefe, as tutelary Gods, were plac'd in publick Places. for a guard of them. Others of them were appointed for a guard of Perfons, and were standing Tutelaries. Some others were portable, which whither foever Men went, they carried with them. Some also they carried as Amulets about their Necks, at their Girdles, and about their Hand-wrifts. Moreover, their Countenances were varioully figured; for fome had a Womanly Countenance, and their Heads veil'd ; fome were in the Form of Boys, with a Vitta about their Heads: others were reprefented other ways. They differed also in Instruments; some, which they call'd Averrunei, or Apotropæi, were figur'd with various Instruments, as Whips, Scourges, Nets hanging from their Shoulders; and thefe are the Images which the Hebrews call Theraphim, and which the Scriptures tell us, Rachel Itole from her Father Laban, Gen. 31. which were brought from Egypt by the Servants of Abraham into Palestina, and propagated there. They call'd them Theraphim, because, as they could not pronounce \hat{S} , changing \hat{S} into \hat{T} , according to the use of the Chaldæans; and changing the last S into im, they call'd those Images Theraphim, which the Egyptians call'd Serapes. Now the Penates of the Egyptians were the fame with Ofiris, Ifis, Nephte, Horus, Harpocrates, Arveris, Apopis, and innumerable Deafters of this kind, which tho' they were ac-accounted the universal Genii of all Nature, and the fame as to Subfrance, only differing in effects, yet as they were deputed to the guard of private things, they had the Name of Tutelaries, and were worfhip'd as private Deities. So far Kircher.

From these Genii of the Gentiles, Erofing in his Adages, thinks Christian Divines have afcrib'd to each Perfon two Angels, a good and a bad; tho' I think he fays it with little reafon, a Communion with Angels being fo usual with the Patriarchs; from whom, in all probability, the Gentiles took their Doctrine of the Genii. The Genii were drawn under feveral Forms, as of a Serpent, a Boy, a Girl, a Youth, or an old Man, as Cebes in his Table. Cenforinus, and many of the Ancients tell us, the Lares and the Genii were the fame : Now the Lares were reprefented in the Form of Young-Men, cloath'd with Dog-Skins, and having a Dog to attend them, intimating, that they were friendly and fawning to Domefticks, and formidable to Strangers, as Dogs are wont to be. Pierius tells us, from Chryfippus, that the Lares ierogla 1. 5. 6. 5. were cloath'd with Dogs-Skins, becaufe they represent the Genii, who are appointed for our Guard ; and as Commiffioners to inflict Punishments on us for all our evil Words and Deeds, and to avenge Crimes and all Impiety, as often as, Humanity laid by, we decline to a brutal Life; which the Genii, as fagacious Dogs, purfue and draw to condign Punishments. He adds, And as the Genii are given us for affiduous Attendants, never departing from us, it's with Justice he fays, that the Dog, as a tutelary Animal, was hieroglyphically dedicated to the Lares being the fame with the

the Genii which we may more properly call Angels: And he fays he cannot pafs by what he has read among ancient Writers, viz. that there was a Temple of Vulcan at Mount Ætna, in Sicily, in whofe Grove there were Dogs, which fawn'd on those that came thither with Purity and Piety; but miserably rent the Impure and Polluted, as tho' divinely prefaging the thing.

I could write more concerning the Genii of the Ancients, as, of the Sacrifices that were made to them, and other particulars, but it is befide my bufinefs here; and I fhall only note, that befide the Genii attending each Perfon, the Ancients fuppos'd others prefiding over each Country, City $\mathcal{O}c$. Those in the Figure prefixt to this Book being fuch, as I took them from Cartarius his Images of the Gods of the Ancients. The Explanation of which Figures is as follows.

The Figure on the left-hand reprefents the evil Genius, that Infested the Inhabitants of the Town Temeffa, in Italy. The Story is thus : Paulanias writing of Euthymus, the Champion, tells us, that Ulyffes, in his Wandrings, coming to the Town of Temessa, one of his Affociates, for having ravish'd a Virgin, was ston'd to death by the Townsmen; whereupon his Ghoft continually infefted them; fo that they were upon quitting the Town, till they were told by Apollo's Oracle, that to appeale him, they must build him a Temple, and facrifice to him yearly the most beautiful Virgin they had among them; which, as they prepar'd to perform, it chanc'd, that one Euthymus, a Champion, came to the Town, and defir'd to be admitted into the Temple; who feeing the Virgin, and and falling in Love with her, undertook to fight with the Genius, and overcame him, and forc'd him out of the Country, and married the Virgin. This Genius was of a very black Colour, and a formidable Appearance, having a Wolf's Skin fasten'd about him.

As to the little Figure in the middle, the Story is thus, as Pausanias relates it in the fame Book : The Eleans Worship, as their Country God, Sofipolis, which fignifies the Preferver of their City. His Sacrifices being wont to be yearly Celebrated in the Temple of Lucina. Concerning this God, what follows is recorded : When the Arcadians invaded the Country of the Eleans, and the Eleans prefented an Army against them, a Woman, with a Child fucking at her Breaft, came to the chief Commanders of the Eleans, and told them, that when fhe brought forth that Child, fhe was admonish'd in a Dream, to place him with the Eleans in the Battle : whereupon the chief Commanders of the Eleans, having thought fit to credit the Woman, plac'd the Child before their Standard. Upon the Arcadians Onfet, the Boy, in their fight, turn'd into a Serpent ; by which Prodigy being frighted, they prefently fled, the Eleans smartly purfuing them : And upon getting this famous Victory, they gave him the Name of Sofipolis; and at a place where the Serpent was feen to go into a Cavern, a Temple was built after the Victory; and Honours were decreed to Lucina, because they thought the Boy was brought into the World by her. This God was drawn as a Boy, with a Garment of various Colours, sprinkled with Stars, holding in his Hand an Horn of Plenty; for in C 2 this this Form he was feen by fome Perfon in a Dream. I may here note, that the Form of Serpents under which the Genii were worfhip'd, denotes the wife and vigilant Care they have over us.

As for the Figure on the Right-hand : In fome of Adrian's Coin, this Infcription is found, Gen. P. R. where is feen the Image of a Military Man, compafs'd about with a Garment, which reaches to the middle of his Legs, having in the Right-hand a Difh like a Sacrificing Veffel; and in the Left, an Horn of Plenty : This probably being the Genius of the People of Rome, under whofe Guardianfhip their City was; the Horn and Difh fhewing, that the Roman State, as all others are fupported by outward Plenty, and Religious Devotion towards God.

In fome of the Ancient Coins of Trajan and Adrian, is seen a Genius, presenting with his Right-hand a Difh on an Altar, adorn'd with Garlands; and holding in his Left-hand a Whip, or fomewhat like it, hanging down. This, by fome, is thought to denote Rewards and Punishments. In the Coin of Marcus Aurelius is a Genius, having fuch a Dish in the Right-hand, and an Horn of Plenty in the other, with this Infcription, Geniis Exerci: Et Genio Augusti. So in the Coin of Fl. Valerius Constantinus, Genio Populi Romani P. L. C. where he holds in the Right-hand a Difh with a Star, in the Left, an Horn of Plenty. Again, in that of Maximinus, fometimes with this Inscription, Genio Augusti sis; sometimes Genio Populi Romani T. F. fometimes Genio Imperatoris. Thefe and the like Infcriptions are gather'd together in a particular Book, by the Learned Phy-Phyfician Adolphus Occo. In the Antiquities alfo of Appian fuch Inferiptions of Monuments are found in the City of Tarraco in Arragonia. And fo much for a general Notion of the Genii of the Ancients.

CHAP. II.

Concerning the Genii that are afcribed to Socrates, Aristotle, Ptolinus, Porphyrius, Jamblicus, Chicus, Scaliger and Cardan.

THO' the Genii of these Men are reducible to the Chapters I shall go upon beneath, where I shall examine what perception Men have had of Spirits, or Genii, by their several Senses; yet, in regard the Learned Naudæus, in his Apology for all the great Men that have been accused of Magick, has Writ par-Part 1. ticularly concerning the Genii of these Men, 6-13and exploded them; and other Authors have writ against the Genius of Socrates. I shall here particularly confider what may be faid concerning these Genii.

The most celebrated Instance of a Genius among the Ancients is that of Socrates. Teftimonies for it, are given by Plato, Xenophon and Antifthenes, his Contemporaries, confirm'd by Laertius, Plutarch, Maximus Tyrius, Dion Chryfostomus, Cicero, Apuleius, Ficinns, and others, many of the Moderns, besides Tertullian, Origen, Clemens Alexandrinus, Austin and C 3 others.

others. Socrates himfelf in Plato's Theage fays, by fome Divine Lot, I have a certain Dæmon which has followed me from my Childhood, as an Oracle; and this is a Voice, which when it happens, always diffwades the thing I am about to do, but never prompts me to do any thing: and if any of my Friends communicate any thing with me, and the Voice is heard, it diffwades, and is against the doing of it: And prefently after he relates how a perfon loft his Life, for having defpifed the command of his Damon, warning him not to depart from him. Again, fpeaking to Alcibi-ades, he fays, my Tutor, is Better, and Wifer than you: And speaking concerning the power of his Dæmon, e'en on other perfons that used his Company and Conversation, he fays, if it be grateful to my God, you will profit much, and in a little time; if on the contrary, not: And again, in his Apology, he fays, going out of doors this Morning, the fign of God did not oppose me.

Many have been of opinion, that Socrates had not only a perception of his Genius by his fense of Hearing, but likewise by his Sight and Feeling. So Apuleius fays, he judg'd Socrates perceived the fign of his Dæmon, not Lib. de Deo only by his Ears, but by his Eyes alfo; becaufe he affirmed, that often not a Voice, but a divine Sign was prefented to him; which he was the more induced to believe, for that it was fo common a thing with the Pythagoreans to fee Dæmons, that they wondred if any Man faid he had feen none. Which Gift I impute to their great filence, and their deep recess of Mind; for as Paracelfus with others fay, Silence is the joy of all Spirits.

Spirits. The Author of the fmall Tract, entitled, De proprii cujusque nati Dæmonss Investigatione, Printed at the end of the Trinum Magicum, before mentioned, fays the fame, viz. that Socrates both heard his Dæmon, and faw him. And Pictorius, in his Dialogue de Materia Dæmonum, fays, that Socrates affirms his Dæmon often to have spoke to him, who he sometimes faw and touch'd. So again, Theocritus in m. Socres. Plutarch, will have it, that a Vision attended him from his Childhood, guiding him in all the actions of his Life, which Vision going before him, was a light in Affairs, where humane prudence could not reach; and that the Spirit often spoke to him, divinely governing and infpiring his Intentions.

Notwithftanding the opinion of thefe Men, and others, that Socrates had a perception of his Genius by more fenfes than one, I fhall only here infift on the perception he had of him by his fenfe of Hearing; which in regard it's fo well attefted by Plato and Xencphon, his Difciples (who were envious Competitors for Learning, if it may be fo faid of Philofophers, fo that they can no ways be fufpected for having combined together to impofe on the World) I wholly give credit to, tho' I well know there always have been, and ftill are fome Men in the World, who have caveled at what is faid of Socrates's Genius, as a thing feigned; whofereafons I fhall nowexamine,

The learned Naudæus, in his laudable Work above-mentioned, and the 13th. Chapter of it, treating concerning the Genii afcrib'd to Socrates, and others, as above, writes thus, According to the Authority of all Authors, each of thefe Perfons may boaft of having been led into the C 4 Temple

I. de I er Socr.

Temple of Glory and Immortality, by the assistance of some Genius, or Familar Dæmon, which was to them, as Apuleius fays, a fingular Guide, a domeftick Infpector, an infeparable Judge and Witnefs, a difapprover of Evils, and an approver of Good ; but fince we cannot maintain this Opinion, without abating much of these Mens Merit, and the Obligation we owe to their labours; by the means of which, and not of those Damons and tutelary Gods, fo many precious Relicks and Monuments of their Learning are come to our Knowledge, I think it very proper to preferve the praife due to them, and to fhew by the true Construction that ought to be given to this Conversation, how far those are out of the way in their Imaginations, who perfwade themfelves it was fuch as that of Angels with Holy Perfons,' or of Dæmons with Magicians; for to come as near to the Truth as we may, we ought to observe, that the Platonicks, ac-I. de myff. cording to the Teftimonies of Famblicus and Fexing, Suppos'd four forts of rational Animals, under that they call'd the first Being, or the first Good, who is the Prime Author, and Mover of all things, viz. the Celeftial Gods, or Angels, Damons that were Inferiors to them, Heroes, and the Souls of Men in general, and that the chief Office and Duty of Dæmons, being no other (as Proclass fays) but to concern themfelves in the Affairs and Conduct of the laft, and to ferve them as Guides and Mediators towards the Gods. Men have taken an occasion from the resemblance of these Actions, to those that Souls exercife on their Bodies, to give thefe fometimes the Name of Dæmons, and especially when they come to to free themfelves from the

the Slavery and Tyranny of the matter, where they are, as it were, interr'd, that they make themselves absolute Mistresses of all their Faculties, and no longer produce but Miracles, and Actions altogether like those of Demons, which is the true Senfe according to which Apuleius faid, that the Mind of Man, even L. de De. while in the Body, is call'd a Dæmon; and Socr. Heraclitus, that the Spirit of Man ferv'd him for a Genius; and the juft defire, and good-Operation of the Soul may be likewife qualified with the name of God, fince ev'n Porphyrius faid to this purpose, after Plato, in his Tim.edus, that God has given us the Superior faculty of our Spirit, as a Damon to guide us; and that he may rightly be call'd an Eudamon, that takes Wildom, as a watch Tower to guide him in all the Actions of his Life : which might ferve us for a General folution to Anfwer all that is faid of the Familiarity and Conversation of certain Damons, with Socrates, Aristotle, and others; if it were not rather requisite to fatisfie particular Objections, that may be made against each of them, and to examine first what we ought to believe concerning the fo famous and renown'd Damon of Socrates, no lefs celebrated by the Authority of those that have giv'n us the History of it, than by the great Diversities of Judgments that have been made of him; fome faying, that there may be fome likelihood of Truth for its being really fo; others, that it was a meer Fiction of this Philosopher, or of his two Disciples, Xenophon and Plato, who as falfly publish'd the report of this Divine Affistance, as that of the Oracles declaring him the wifest of Men. And here Naudans lays before

fore us all the Dirt that envy or prejudice has thrown on Socrates, and then goes on thus : But fince I fhould but expose my felf to the laughter of all Men, to follow the licentiousness of these dangerous Spirits, who so freely sham the Authority of these two great Philosophers, as also that of Apuleius, Maximus Tyrius, Cicero, Plutarch, and almost all the good Authors, to fhew themfelves more fubtle and clear fighted than others, by crushing to pieces this old Image: I rather chufe to range my felf of their fide that refpect it; fince I cannot perfwade my felf, that fo great a number of Writers would have loaded Socrates with fo many Praifes, or call'd him, as Martial did, the great Old-man; Perfus, the reverend Mafter; Vale-L. de Deo rius Maximus, the Mind vested with virile Strength; or finally, as Apuleius, the Old-man of Divine Wildom, if he had not fignalized himfelf by his Wifdom; fo that we ought rather to excufe, than reprehend those, who do not judge without reason, that he had acquir'd it thro' the favour, and Affiftance of fome Dæmon. Tho' nevertheless there be no less uncertainty concerning the Explication of his Nature, than of malice and calumny in the precedent Opinion; for Apuleius would have it to be a God, Lastantius and Tertullian a Devil; Plato thought he was invisible; Apuleius, that he might alfo be visible; Plutarch, that it was a fneezing on the right or left fide, according to which Socrates foretold a good or evil Event of the thing undertaken ; Maximus Tyrius, that it was a remorfe of Conscience against the promptnefs and violence of his Natural Temper, which was neither heard, nor feen, by which Socrates was with-held, and hindred from doing

ing fome evil thing : Pomponatius, that it was the Stars that rul'd at his Nativity ; and finally, Montaigne was of Opinion, it was a certain impulse of his Will that prefented it felf to him without Council of his Difcourfe. As for my felf, I believe it may be faid, conformably enough to truth, that this familiar Damon of Socrates, which was to him a forefeer in uncertain things, a pre-admonisher in doubtful, a guide in dangerous, was nought but the good rule of his Life, the wife Conduct of his Actions, and the refult of all his Virtues, that form'd in him this Prudence; which may with Justice be call'd the luftre and feafoning of all his Actions, the Eye that fees all, guides and orders all, and in a Word, the Art of Life, as Phylick is the Art of Health. So that there is much more feeming ground to believe, that the Soul of this Philosopher, purifyed from its violent Paffions, and enrich'd with all kinds of Vertues, was the true Dæmon of his Conduct; than to imagine, that he entangled himfelf with Illufions, and Phantomes, gave credit to them, or follow'd their Counfels; being a thing wholly abfurd, which Plutarch feems to have a mind to root out of our Fancies, when he fays in the Book he has compos'd concerning this Dæmon, that Socrates did not despise Celestial things, as the Athenians would perfwade him at his Condemnation, though it be very true, that many Apparitions, Fables and Superflitious things being crept into the Philosophy of Pythagoras, and his Disciples, which rendered it wholly ridiculous and contemptible, he did what he could to manage it with prudence, and to clear it of all these Tales, and to believe of it but what he judged reasonable; and

to refer the Predictions of Socrates, and the Counfel he gave his Friends, to some Divinity, we may more reasonably fay, that as he was wholly carried to moral Actions, fo he had particularly confidered all the accidents that happen'd to Men, and that the leaft thing made him foresee and judge of the future. This is what Naudæas has writ concerning the Dæmon of Socrates.

Ffeudom. Maraviglia writes, that Socrates being whovet. Differ. ly taken up in giving Moral Precepts, afcribed all to a Genius, thinking thereby to give weight to his profitable Arguments, which he every where used for Instruction; well knowing what authority a Man carries, who is believed to give his Instructions, by the dire-Ation of a Divine Afflatus: Hence though Plutarch and Apuleius believed Socrates's Genius was a true Damon, which by reason of his most pure and calm mind, convers'd with him from his Infancy, yet nothing evinces it to be ought but the natural Subtilty, Sagacity, Reafon and Prudence of his Mind, cultivated by Meditation and Practice, which as a right distamen admonisht and proposed to him things to be rightly done, and judged well of Futurities: for its reason, which continually whilpers unto us what is to be hop'd for, or feared.

feared, and that is wont to be called our Genius, and Inward Voice always fpeaking to us, without having need of a feparate Genius. And Timarcus, in Plutacch, who went into Trophonius's Cave to enquire after the truth of Socrates's Genius, could receive nothing more probable, but those Genii were portions of the Mind, feated about the head of Man, as being naturally endow'd with a greater Wisdom.

The Learned Anton. Van Dale, M. D. in his Differt. 1. last Edition of his Book of Oracles, rejects the c: 1. Damon of Socrates thus: What have not the Ancient Pagans faid concerning the Damon of Socrates? what not even the Christians? but from what Men of Authority does it appear that Socrates ever had fuch a Familiar Damon? fince all of them ought to have had it from the mouth of Socrates, or of the Socraticks. Cherephon, and others, to whom Socrates had told it. And after having exploded what the Oracle is faid to have deliver'd of Socrates. viz. that he was the Wifest of Men, he concludes the Chapter thus: But truly those things which were fo rashly believed, and delivered by fo many, both Christians and Pagans, concerning his Damon, which is teftified only by himfelf (for fo he boafts of himfelf in Plato's Dialogue Entitled, Theage, and others of his Difciples forfooth) carry the fame, or rather the like fnew of Truth; for, who may not as well believe Pythagoras? who, as Laertius testifies from others, faid he was first Athalides, then Euphorbus, then Hermotimus, then Pyrrbus, a Fisherman of Delos, before he was, in the last place, Pythageras; for the Reafons and Arguments of Socrates concerning his Damon, in Plato, carry the fame weight.

Monsteur Le Loyer delivers himself in a different way concerning the Dæmon of Socrates, writing thus: Do we not find that the Idolatrous Egyptians believed there were Genii, who admonished Men committed to their Care and Government, by a well form'd and articulate Voice: and from whom had they this, but from the Hebrews? Those that examine the Doctrine of the Egyptians, and their Priefts, know that they are but the Hebrews Apes, tho' concealing as much as poffible their Authors, and those whose Doctrine they follow; which they do with fuch an affected diffimulation, that he that does not look near to them, shall never be able to discover the traces and footsteps of these Thieves. They had learnt that the Hebrews, by a fecret Tradition, held their Patriarchs had Angels which guarded them, and that the Patriarch Facob had not concealed his having an Angel, which had preferved him in all places where he had been; they held alfo that these Angels Invisibly admonisht the faid Patriarchs, and that their Voice was heard.

From this Hebrew Tradition and Doctrine, the Egyptians forged their Genii, confounding them with the Angels, tho' the Genii are but Dæmons, and gave them a Voice by which they advertized Men: and I certainly believe, that from the Egyptians, Plato drew and took the Genius or Dæmon of Sacrates, which he makes Invifible, and to be heard Speaking, and forming fome Voice. And tho Plato, imitating in this the Egyptians, feems to fay, that the Genius which governed and guided Socrates was a good Dæmon and Genius, yet I take him but for a Devil, which led Scerates to an unhappy Death. The fame Le Loyer, in his faid Book, fays he concludes with fe- Cap. 17. veral Doctors of the Church, that Socrates was a Magician, because he used Divination.

Now, to confider what these Authors have faid, concerning the Genius of Socrates, we find that even those that deal the most mildly with him, as Naudaus and Maraviglia, deny any Voice coming to him from without, which the words in Plato plainly and naturally import he had. And I believe it must be granted me, that the main ground thefe Men, and others of the fame Opinion go upon, is, that not having had any experience of any fuch thing in themfelves, and not being fully convinc'd, that any other Perfon has, notwithstanding the Testimonies of Men in all Ages, and the Inftances I shall give, they are uneafie to yield the Point, even in the Cafe of Socrates. And I must here fay, I have hundreds of times, feen, heard, and convers'd with those they call Genii, Angels, Spirits, or Damons, appearing to me in humane Shapes; of which I shall give fome Relation beneath, beside the Experiences of many other Perfons, known to me, and now living, in the fame kind; whom oppofers, (notwithstanding any reluctancy) must give me leave to believe to be Men of as found Senfe as themfelves.

When fuch Perfons of an over cautious belief, meet with any thing in Hiftory, or hear fomething related in this kind, we find they proceed two ways; either being fomewhat tender of the Authority fuch things are deliver'd by, they excogitate various Explications of the Fact, as each Man's Fancy fuggefts to him; fo that they will allow fomewhat what of Truth in it, after the way they explain it; as we find in the Cafe of Socrates, Naudæus, and Maraviglia have done; which is like the Complement young Philosophers have been taught to pay to Aristotle, in diflinguishing his Text, when it has feem'd to make against them; or they flatly deny it, and explode it as a Fable, with Dr. Van Dale, Gallæus, and many others; as any Man may easily do of any Historical Fact, however attested (fince it will not bear a demonstrative proof) and boldly cry out, Affirmanti Incumbit probatio.

It was a laudable Undertaking of Naudaus, to write an Apology for all the Great Men accufed of Magick by fome narrow Underftandings; and which, I think, he has generally well perform'd : But as to his way of Apologizing for the Men above-mentioned, I cannot fee how it should abate of their Merit, or of the Obligation we have to them, for the Works they have left us (as he feems to think it would) tho' they had receiv'd a good part of their Knowledge from the Suggeftion of Intellectual Beings; for the World has been long under a Mistake, if prophetick Learning (which befide what has been immediately infpir'd from the prime Caufe, Men may have fometimes had by a fuggeftion from Intelligences) be not of as great a Merit, and has not laid as great Obligations on Mankind, as any excogitated by Humane Wit; and we are as well owing to the prime Caufe for what we deliver by our ordinary Faculties, as for what in this extraordinary way.

Again, Tho' the primary end of good Angels, in directing Mankind, be in things relating lating to their eternal Salvation; yet I knownot why they may not fometimes, infpire or openly direct them in humane Studies, and in things relating to humane Life, fo they are of a good tendency; as I find not but the knowledge of Socrates, and that of others, whom I fhall mention beneath were; tho' that fome have had Knowledge infpird them by Evil Spirits: its what Divines generally teach: Neither fhall I here take upon me to maintain, that the Genii which attended fome of the Perfons above mentioned by Nandæus (if they had any) were of the better fort.

There is one thing I shall note in Naudaus's account of the Dæmon of Socrates, viz. Where he tells us, Plutarch faid it was a Sneezing on the right or left fide, according to which, Socrates foretold a good or evil event to the thing undertaken. Now, tho' Plutarch, in his Academical way of Writing, in his Tract of Socrates's Dæmon, introduces one Polymnis, who fet forth this Opinion, viz. that Socrates was guided in his judgment by a Sneezing, happening to himfelf, or fome stander by, yet I fee no colour of reason, why this opinion should be fathered upon Plutarch himself, more than others there fet forth. Mr. Bogan, tho' otherwife a learned Man, in his additions to Mr. Roufs's Archeologia Attica, feems to me a little over-comical in sporting with So- L. 7. Sett. crates, and his Genius, faying, Socrates (as E- 2. c. 2. munste naris as he was) had so little Sense himfelf, as to fetch advice himfelf from another mans Nofe, and to make a Sneeze ferve in-Itead of a Genius, or Damonium, to tell him the Good and the Bad, &c. but all men are not admirers of Pedantick Railery.

To

To come to Maraviglia, we find he will have it, according to his prejudice, that Socrates's Genius was only his pretence to gain authority to the Doctrine he delivered; tho' ftill he allows fomewhat extraordinary in him, that may be call'd his Genius, viz. the wonderful Sagacity of his Mind, cultivated by a long Meditation, which might in a particular manner have directed his Judgment, as to prefent and future things. But I think this fuspition of Socrates's defign in his Ganius is poorly grounded, fince it no way appears that ever Socrates imputed the Doctrine he delivered to the Suggestion of his Genius, as Numa and others did, but only his being withheld by him, from doing fome Actions which would have prov'd prejudicial to him.

As for Dr. Van Dale, he allows Socrates no more than other Men, and wholly rejects his Genius, as not being well attested, and charges Christians and Pagans for having over rashly believ'd, and deliver'd as a truth the Story concerning him.

Now as to this (with reverence to the Learning of fo great a Man) I muft take freedom to fay, it feems to me he has overdone the matter in this cafe, by preffing things too far; as I conceive he has in feveral other parts of his Works: for as to his rejecting the teftimonies of Xenophon and Plato, as not worth minding, I believe, by unprejudiced Readers they may be look'd upon as unexceptionable Teftimonies in that matter, as any two Men now living on the face of the Earth; for what they fhall deliver by hear-fay, if we fhall be led by fufpicions, and remote poffibilities of Fraud, and contrivance of fuch Men, all all historical truth shall be eluded, when it confifts not with a Mans private humour, or prejudice to admit it. As for what he further urges, that if we believe Socrates's boaft (as he calls it) of his Damon, we may as well believe Pythageras, who faid he was first Athalides, then Euphorbus, &c. before he came to be Pythagoras; I think there is a great disparity in the cafe; for, as to Divine Voices being heard, its no more than what all the Ancient Prophets teffined, besides what we find recorded of them in all Christian and Pagan Hiftories, nor are living Teftimonies wanting: whereas, for the other, its well known how all the learned have expounded the Pythagorean Tranfmygration : concerning which the very learned Joan. Reuchlin writes De Art. thus. The Pythagorean Metempfycofis fignify'd Cab. 1. 2. nothing among the truly learned, but a fimilitude of notions and itudies, which were formerly in fome Men, and afterwards fprung up again in others: and fo it was formerly faid, that Euphorbus was reborn in Pythagoras, because that warlike Valour which was celebrated in the Trojan Euphorbus, some way appear'd again in Pythagoras, by reason of the love he bore to the Athleta, or those that gave themfelves to manlike exercifes. Ficinus In Ep. alfo teffifies the fame, affirming, that the Tranfmigration alfo, as it refpects Brutes and Men, according to the fense of all the learned Platonicks (except Pletinus) imported only that as affects of Brutes became habituated in Men, Man seem'd to have past into their Natures. But if Dr. Van Dale will have it that Pythagoras declared this as a truth, in a litteral sense: when he shall produce some D 2 others, others, who have declared the like experience of a Transmigration in themselves, as I have given inftances backing what is faid of Socrates, we may allow it a like motive of credibility. L. de Orac. And if the opinion of Origen (whom the Dr. Differt. 1. praises as more discreet in his opinion concerning the Pagan Oracles, than the other primitive Fathers) weighs any thing with him, he will find him pretty fmart against those that reject the Genius of Socrates, where he fays; Nor will there ever be wanting calumny to the uncandid, who have a malicious fense even of the best of Men, since they make a sport even of the Genius of Socrates, as a thing feign'd.

Since I have intimated it above, I shall here give a farther inftance, or two, of this learned Perfons over-arguing himfelf, as I conceive, in the Third Chapter of his First Differtation, treating of the Origen of Oracles. where he writes against the Imposture of the Gentiles in that kind, he charges them for having contrived generally the feats of their Oracles on Mountains, where were Caves and Subterraneous Vaults, partly made by Nature, partly by Art, for carrying on their Cheats; and that none but Kings, Princes, and Great Men, confcious of the Cheat, were admitted to confult them. Now, if any of the Gentiles, who had a belief in their Oracles, as I think it beyond difpute, that many, even of the most learned of them, had; nay, if they knew them to be Cheats, as fome thought them o be, would they not prefently reply, that a Mountain was made choice of for Moles to. receive the Law of God, and that no Man under pain of Death, was to approach the Mountain but himself and Aaron? and likewife wife that the Jews kept their Sanctum Sanctorum altogether as private, and as liable to a fufpicion of a Cheat, and admitted none but the Prince, the Senate, or fome great Perfon to confult the Oracle of Urim and Thummim; and the High-Prieft only faw the fign of God in the Breftplate, directing an Anfwer, as the learned Joan. Leufden has let forth in his Philologus He-Differ. 25. bro mixtus. So that we find the force of this Argument wholly evacuated, it preffing equally on both fides. And I am forry I muft fay it, I find too many Arguments made use of by fome Writers, against the Religion of the Gentiles, which fall indirectly, I will not fay defignedly, on all Religion.

Again, the faid Author, in his Tract De ch. . Divinatione Idololatrica, after having told us of the Superstitious Practice of the Gentiles, in driving away the Lemures with a noise of Brass, adds; Those that will believe these things, may as well believe what Pliny writes, viz. L.17.6.15. Above all things that have ever been heard of, is the prodigy happening in our Time, by a ruine in the Marrucine Territories, where the Olive-field of Vectius Marcellus, a chief Perfon of the Equestral Order, past over the whole common Road, and on the contrary, Plow'd Lands came thence into the Olive-field. Now, this feem'd very strange to Pliny (who, tho' an admirer of great things, and a Man excellently qualified for recording historical Facts, was never lookt upon by the learned as a diligent enquirer into caufes) and wholly incredible to the Author; tho' I think it no fuch extraordinary Phanomenon of Nature, there being feveral Inftances to be given of the like kind, as well within our Nation as elsewhere. D 3 SIGAN

Stow tell us, in his Summary, that An. 1582. Fan. the 13th at Hermitage in Dorcetshire, a piece of Ground of three Acres, remov'd from its place, and was carryed over another Clofe, where Alders and Willows grew, the fpace of forty Rods, or Perches, and ftopt up the Highway that leads to Cirne, a Market-Town, and yet the Hedges it was inclos'd with, inclose it ftill, and the Trees ftand bolt upright, and the place where the Ground was before is left a Pit. So An. 1571. Marcley-bill, in the East part of Herefordshire, with a roaring noise removed it felf from the place where it ftood, and for three days together travell'd from its old Seat. It began first to remove Febr. the 17th being Saturday, at Six of the clock in the Evening, and by Seven of the clock the next Morning, it had gone forty Paces, carrying with it Sheep in their Folds, Hedge-rows and Trees, whereof fome were overturn'd, and fome that flood upon the Plain, are firmly growing upon the Hill, those that were East were turn'd Weft, and those in the West, were fet in the East: In this remove it overthrew Kinnaston-Chappel, and turn'd two High-ways near an hundred Yards from their old Courfe. The Ground that thus removed was about 26 Acres; which opening it felf with Rocks and all, bore the Earth before it 400 Yards fpace, without any ftay, leaving Pasturage in the place of the Tillage, and the Tillage overfpread with Pafturage; at laft over-whelming its lower parts it mounted to an Hill of twelve Fathoms high, and fo refted after three Days. travel. More inflances may be giv'n of the fame Nature, this being wrought by that kind of Earthquakes, we call Brafta, or Brafmatics, from from $\beta_{ed}\xi_{\omega}$ ferves, bullis, vi æftus ejicis, which raife, and protrude the Earth, many Iflands having been fo caft up from the bottom of the Sea on a fudden. As for the Plough'd Lands coming in the place of the Olive-field, we may eafily conceive this to have happen'd by a Gyrative motion of that piece of Land following upon the protrusion from the deep.

I intimate thefe things only to caution Men not to be over hafty in rejecting things that may feem Strange, and do not prefently fall within their Comprehension; and that in opposing Adversaries they use due Circumspection in attending to the vast extent of the Power of Nature, and the various Manifestations of God in Men, many things being evident to fome Persons, which to others seen wholly incredible.

In the last place; as for the Suggestions of Monsieur le Loyer, viz. that Plato had his Notion of Socrates's Genius from the Egyptians, &c. I think them altogether groundless, fince Pythagoras, who liv'd before Socrates, is averr'd to have made his great Proficiency in Learning from his Converse with Spirits, and fince it was fo usual a thing for the Pythagoreans to see Spirits, as Apuleius acquaints us. And why must it be an evil Genius, bringing Socrates to an unhappy end ? If we believe Plato. we find Socrates did not think it fo, but on the contrary was defirous to die; and I think no confidering Man, who has liv'd an upright Life, would think it an unhappy thing to be freed from the grievances of decrepit Age; Socrates, according to the lowest Computation, being 70 Yeas of Age when he died; Suidas fays 80, others 90. And as for his being a Magician, this need not to have been feign'd to procure him a Genius, fince his Damon is faid to have attended him from his Infancy. And fo much concerning the Genius of Socrates.

I shall now proceed to give an Account from Naudans, of the Genii afcrib'd to the other Men before-mentioned by him. As for the Genius of Aristotle, he thinks it a Jeft in those Men that have ascrib'd one to him; it being manifest, according to all his Interpreters, that he never admitted other Intelligences, but those he affign'd as movers to each Sphere of the Heavens, rejecting all other kinds of Dæmons, fo standing firm to his Principles, and not admitting any thing, that was not known to him, either by Motion or Operation : He likewife referring all that is wont to be afcrib'd to Damons, to Nature, that is, to the Properties of Natural things; to Humours, and Temperaments of Animals, to the Nature of Places, and to their Vapours and Exhalations, leaving nothing to do for these Substances. And after Naudaus has giv'n feveral Reafons · against Aristotle's admitting of Dæmons, he adds, I think, one probable Argument may be drawn from his Book concerning Divination by Dreams, where, to fhew that there is nothing Supernatural in them ; he fays, but because some Animals likewise Dream, certainly Dreams are not fent from God, nor caus'd by him, but must be Dæmonical, fince Nature is Damonical, not Divine. And though it be greatly controverted among Interpreters and Commentators, in what Senfe we must explain this Epithet giv'n by Aristotle to Nature ; it feems Leonicus has better hit on it than the others; and that the Learned Charpentarius, has has found the whole Energy of this Phrafe, when he fays, Aristotle would shew by it, that that force may be found in Nature well order'd, depending on the Conversion of the Celestial Orbs, which may ferve to explain all those things, for which others have recourse to Damons; by the means of which Explication he fays, he may answer the fole Reason, giv'n by Casalpinus, for establishing Damons according to L. de Inthe Doctrine of Aristotle.

In reference therefore to the Genius of Ari- perip. c. 7. storle, ascrib'd to him by some Persons ; I shall fet down what Piccolomini and Cafalpinus have writ concerning his Opinion, as to the Existence of Damons, the former contending against his Admission of them, the latter for it, and shall fubjoyn my own Sense in the Matter.

Piccolomini states the case, whether Aristotle L. de inthought there were Damons, and concludes in vest. Dam. the Negative, writing as follows : The word Parip. Damon may be taken, either metaphorically, or properly, if metaphorically, Arifoile may be allow'd to have granted Dæmons, he faying, 2 Top. los. that Xenocristes affirms him to be an Eudæmon, 19. who has a studious Mind; for this is to each Man an Eudamon; fo we may alfo fay with Kriftotle, that the Mind coming from without, and governing a Man, is his Eudemon; fo in his Book of Divination by Dreams, he fays, That Dreams are not fent by God, but are Dæmonical, because Nature is Dæmonical, not Divine ; intimating that Nature, by a Metaphor, may be call'd a Deron; which name agrees to it, becaufe it is God's Meffenger, is powerful, and Works focretly and wonderfully; all which things are aferib'd to Demens; fo when the name of Damon is given to a part of the

the Mind leading us, we may fay with Ariftotle, that two Dæmons are born and live with us. viz. Reason, and the sensual Appetite : and he that is led by right Reason, is led by a good Damon, and he that is led by Anger, or Concupiscence is carryed away by an evil Dæmon ; but the doubt is concerning a Dæmon properly taken, whether it be a Dæmon by its Nature, or a foregin Damon: the former of which may be aptly enough defin'd to be, An Animal having a reason, and understanding superior to Man, using a subtle body, and mediating betwixt God and Man; the latter is the Soul of a Man, departed this Life, being freed from the grofs Body, and using a fubtle vehicle. And in this Senfe Aristotle did not think there were Damons; not Dæmons by Nature, First, because as he profest to explain all particular degrees of things, to fet forth a compleat Philosophy, he no where speaks of Dæmons. Secondly, in his third Book of the Soul, he plainly rejects them, fetting forth, that no Animal can confift either of Air, or Fire, or any other fimple Body; though he makes particular mention of Air and Fire, because the Academicks thought the Bodies of Damons to be aiery, and in fome fort fiery. But to pass by many other Passages of Aristotle against Dæmons, he thinks this a most firm Reason, That there is nothing in the Universe in vain, speaking of the Degrees and Species of things; whereas if there were Damons, they would be of no use, according to Aristotle, which hence appears, because all those things which are commonly judg'd Works of Damons, are afcrib'd by him to other Caufes, never any to Dæmons: For those things which excited the ancient Philosophers tQ to excogitate Diemons, were chiefly Divinations by Dreams, which Aristotle afcrib'd to Narure; the various kinds of Furies or Raptures, which he attributes to a various temperament of Melancholy ; the Anfwers of Oracles, which he refers to the property of certain Steams proceeding from the Cavities of the Earth; the faying of a Verse by an ignorant Person, which Aristotle likewise refers to Melancholy : Since therefore Philosophers are rais'd by Works to the fearch of Caufes, and Aristotle afcrib'd all those Works to other Caufes, and not to Damons, we gather, he thought there were none. And fo as to Foreign Damons, or the Souls of Men separated from the Body, Aristotle held there were none : For in his Second Book of the Soul, he fays, there is no Text 26. Soul without the Body : And in the Seventh of his Metaphyficks, he fays, there is no Man without Flesh and Bones : And in his Second Book of the Generation of Animals, he fays; Cap. 13. there is no Inftrument without a Faculty, not an organical Faculty without an Inftrument: Now, the Soul of Man is organical, &c.

Casalpinus, after having quoted Plato, in- L. de Introducing Socrates, concluding against his Ca- vest. Dem. lumniators, who charg'd him of admitting no. 7. Gods, that he that grants there are Damonical Works, of neceffity admits Damons, which are either Gods, or Sons of Gods, in his Seventh Chapter he writes thus: We may gather in Aristotle, that there are Damonis, by that Argument by which Socrates gather'd there were. He that afferts there are Damonical Works, is compel'd of necessity to confels, there are Damons. Aristotle afferts, there arc Damonical Works, viz. Dreams and Nature ; there-therefore of Necessity he must confess there are Damons, whence they are fo denominated. And the Philosopher seems to have underftood that middle Nature betwixt God and Mortal things, mention'd before by us, to be a Damon; for when he had deny'd Dreams to be fent by God, (as fome thought they were) because they happen not only to the wifest of Men, but indifferently to Idiots, and some other Animals; yet he fays Dreams are Demonical, because Nature is Dæmonical, not Divine; tho' therefore somewhat Divine be contain'd in Nature, yet it does not merit the Name of Divine, but Damonical, because it follows the Wifdom of an Intelligence, whence it's rendred admirable, even in the leaft things. and Dreams are Damonical, by reason of the wonderful force of the Imagination.

Now, these two Authors consider'd, I think it may be agreed, that Aristotle did not admit a Dæmon properly taken, as Piccolomini has fet forth; but he admitted the Facts commonly afcrib'd to Damons, which he accounted for from other Caufes; as we find by what is quoted from Charpentarius, by Naudaus, according to which (as Naudæus fays) Cæsalpinus's fole reason for establishing of Damons, according to Aristotle's Doctrine, may be folv'd. Yet however, fince Aristotle admits the Facts commonly afcrib'd to Dæmons, I fee not why he may not properly enough be faid to have had a Genius, tho' it may be explain'd by an Intellectus Agens, coming from without, or by an orderly influx from the Intelligences that move the Heav'ns, he having a mind to fet up for himfelf, by an hypothesis of his own, contrary to that of Plato receiv'd before, and which

which is more confonant to Chriftianity. Nor can I think Aristotle's so plausible for folving Phanomena, tho' it may more gratify the Humour of fome Persons. In reference to Aristotle's Genius, I may add what Rhodigi- Left. Annus writes, viz. That, among the Ancients, tig.l. a.c. 2; Plato had the Symbol of Divine given him, and Aristotle of Damonical; the reason why Aristotle was fo stil'd, feems to be, that he chiefly treated of natural things, the confideration of which lies, in a manner, in the fublunary World, where they thought Damons had their abode : But Plato railing himfelf higher, being addicted to the Contemplation of Intelligible Beings, got him a more eminent guide of Life, and defpifing those things which others admir'd, even to a Madnefs, he ftrove with all his force to bring that which is Divine in us, to that Divine Being which only is truly fo, whence he got his name of Divine.

Naudæus, after he has rejected the Genius of Aristotle, proceeds to the others ; but first tells us. That what all the Platonicks have fet forth concerning Dæmons and Magick, can neither be prov'd by Reason nor Experience; and as for the Reafon they draw from many Effects, which they fay must necessarily be referr'd to these Causes, before he obliges himself to receive it, he first wishes they would well facisfy Pomponatius, Cardan, and Bernardus Mirandulanus, who shew, pertinently enough, that: its better to have recourse to the Proofs of our Religion, to believe Angels and Dæmons, than to that heap of Experiences, of which a reafon may be rendred by the Principles of Natural Philosophy. After which he fays, We ought ought no longer to make doubt, but all that is faid of the Genii of Plotinus, Porphyrius, and Jamblicus, ought to be referr'd to what he has faid before concerning the Deemon of Socrates.

To this I reply, that even fetting by the Proofs of our Religion for Angels and Demons, I fee not but as for folving the Experiences he fpeaks of, by natural Principles, Aristotle's Hypothesis of Intelligences moving the Heavens, is altogether as precarious, and less fatisfactory than the other, us'd by otypers of the Gentiles: And as for his referring what is faid of the Genii of the three Philosophers before-mention'd, to what he has faid of the Genius of Socrates, I think I have shewn above, that he has not validly refuted his Demon.

As to the Genius of Plotinus; Porphyrius his Scholar, who has writ his Life, which is prefix'd to Plotinus's Works, fet forth with Commentaries, by Ficinus, fays thus in it : " An Egyptian Prieft coming to Rome, and be-"ing foon made known, by a Friend of his, " to Plotinus, and having a defire to fhew a " Specimen of his Wildom at Rome, perlwa-" ded Plotinus to go along with him, and he " would prefently shew him his Damon, or " Familiar Spirit, whom Plotinus readily obey'd. " The Invocation of the Damon was made in " the Temple of Is; for Plotinus faid, this "was the fole place in Rome, which the " Egyptian found pure : But when the Dæmon " was call'd to prefent himfelf to his view, "\inftead of a Damon, a God appear'd, which was not of the Species of Dæmons; the " Egyptian thereupon thus prefently cry'd out, "You are harpy, O Plotinus! who have a God " for your Daemon, and have not light on a Guide

" of an Inferior kind. Plotinus therefore having a Familiar of the Order of Divine Damons, it was with reason that he always fublimely rais'd the Divine Eye of his Mind to that; and for this reason heafterwards compos'd a Book concerning each Man's particular Diemon, where he endeavours diligently to affign the Caufes of the difference of Familiar Spirits. Porphyrins, to fhew the Divine Spirit of his Master, Plotinus, adds beneath : " I had once thoughts " of killing my felf, which Plotinns wonder-" fully perceiv'd; and as I was walking in " the House, he prefently came to me, and " faid, What you meditate, O Porphyrius ! is " not like that of a found Mind; but rather, of a " Mind grown mad with Melancholy; and there-"fore he commanded me to depart from " Rome. Those that would read Plotinus's Tract concerning each Man's Familiar Spirit, may find it in his Works.

Naudæus proceeds next to the Genii of Chicus, Scaliger, and Cardan. As for Chicus, he looks upon him, by what he has writ, as a Superfitious Perfon, who affirm'd, he often made use of Revelations from a Spirit call'd Floron, which he faid was of the Order of the Cherubims. But Naudæus rejects this, with other fabulous Relations of other Perfons, faying with Lucretius:

Concerning the Genii of Scaliger and Cardan, Naudæus writes as follows. If it were permitted me, and it became me to follow rather my will, than my duty, I fhould freely excufe

cufe my felf from faying any thing against the Genii, which the two fole great Perfons, whom we may oppose to the two most learned, and famous among the Ancients, have attributed to themfelves, and who have been. as it were, the last effort, and miracle of Nature, Scaliger and Cardan: for I certainly believe, either they deceived themfelves, in admitting these Genii, because, after having well examined themfelves, they could not find in them the caufe of fuch, and fo extraordinary Perfection; or that they did it thro' modefty, not to discover by their Learning, how much all the reft of Mankind were inferior to them; or, finally, that they would cover from envy, under this particular affistance, and free from the jealoufy of Men. that great renown they had acquir'd to themfelves, by their ftudious diligence and labours. However, as truth is fooner found out when many Perfons employ themfelves in the fearch of it, the opinion of those is not to be rejected, who, fay Scaliger, practifed this ftratagem, in imitation of all great Perfons, and not to yield in Ambition to his Antagonift. L. 3. c. 26, attributing to himfelf for a Genius, in his Art of Poetry, a meer fally or emotion of Mind; by which the Soul is heated, as it were, in it felf, to raife it to the knowledge of fomewhat, during which, a Man may at any time fay and write many things, which he understands not after the heat of this enthuliafm is over. And as for Cardan, he speaks so variously of his Genius, that after having faid absolutely in his Dialogue entitl'd Telion, that he had one, which was Venereal, mixt with Saturn and Mercury; and in his Book, De libris propring, that that he communicated himfelf to him by his Dreams, he doubts at the fame place whether he had really one, or whether it were the excellency of his Nature, I perceived (faid he) whether it were from the Genius (et over me, or that my Nature is placed in the extremity of an human state, and in the confines of the Immortals, &c. And finally concludes in his Book, De Rerum Varietate, that he had none, frankly faying, I truly know not that eng Damon, or Genius attends me. Whence we may furely judge, that he and Scaliger had no other Genius, but the great Learning they had acquired, by their diligence and labours, and the experience they had of things; on which coming to raife their judgments as on two Pyramids, they judg'd pertinently of all matters, and let nothing efcape from being known, and manifest to them.

We here fee what conjectures Naudaus has made concerning the Genii of thefe Men. which are as eafily rejected as they are groundlefly fuggested by him. And tho' Cardan fays, in his Book De Rerum Varietate, he knew no L 15. Genius attended him; we know that Book was writ many Years before he writ his Life, which was but a little before his Death, and on which I think we have most reason to rely; where he plainly fays, he had a Genius tho' not well discovered by him till his latter Years. And this Book writ by Cardan, of his own Life, was set forth by Naudæus himfelf, which makes it feem fomewhat ftrange that he fhould deny he had any Genius. But, for the Readers fatisfaction, I shall here fet down what thefe two great Men fay themselves of their Geni!,

Genii, and shall leave it to him to judge of it, as he fhall think fit.

C. 47.

To pass by the Genius of Facius Cardanus, L. De D.e. which his Son Hierom Cardan fays, his Father own'd to have attended him for Thirty Years, and where he gives an account of Seven Demons more, whom he faw and converst with; I here give you feveral particulars, tho' not all, which Hierom Cardan has left recorded concerning a Genius that attended himfelf.

In his Book of his own Life, fet forth by Naudaus, where he writes of his good Spirit, he fays, its received as a manifest truth, that familiar Spirits (which the Greeks call Angels,) have forewarned some Men, Socrates, Plotinus, Synefius, Dion, Flavius Josephus, and even my felf: All lived happily befides Socrates and my felf, who neverthelfes am in a very good condition: but C. Cafar the Dictator, Cicero, Antony, Brutus and Caffius had evil, tho' illustrious Spirits. Those of Antony and Cicero, were Glorious, but both Pernicious; that of Josephus was particularly famous, and of a rare excellency for Warlike Valour, favour with Vespesian and his Sons, Riches, Monuments of Hiftories, a threefold Offfping, and in his contest with the calamities of his Nation; alfo in a forefight of future things, wherewith he was illustrated in Captivity, being freed from the outrage of his Friends, and preferved from the Waves of the Sea. But these were manifestly Dæmons, tho' mine, as I believe, a good and merciful Spirit. I was long perfwaded that I had one, but could not find how he should certify me of imminent events, till after the Seventy Fourth Year of my Age, when I fet upon writing my my Life; but that fo many imminent things fhould be foreknown to me, and truly forefeen, and that juft before they happened, and precifely, feems to me a greater Miracle to be done without a Divine Aid, than with a Spirit; for Inftance, When my Spirit faw what was ready to befall me, viz. that my Son was to Marry the next day, an Unfortunate Match, in the Night-time he raifed fuch a beating of my Heart, by a way peculiarly known to him, that the Chamber feem'd to tremble; my Son perceiving the fame, at the fame time, fo that both of us thought there was an Earthquake, which no body elfe perceived.

He adds beneath; There may be fome doubts, why this care for me, and not for others; for I do not excel in Learning, as fome think, but haply on the contrary? Is it an immence love of Truth, and Wildom, with contempt of Riches, even in this flate of Poverty? or by reafon of my defire of Juffice? or that I afcribe all to God, nothing to my felf? or haply for fome end known to God alone?

Again, why does he not openly admonifh me (as I could wifh) of those things, of which he does admonish me? but teaches one thing for another, as by those disorderly Noises (of which he gives several instances, hapning before Deaths, in his 43d. Chatter of the same Book) for me to affure my felf that God beholds all things, tho' I see him not with my Eyes; for he could have admonish'd me openly by a Dream, or some clearer way of manifestation: but haply this shew'd more the Divine Care, and those greater things that hap-E 2 ned ned to me, Fears, Impediments, Anxieties, &c. there is need alfo of Obfcurity, for us to underftand that they are the Works of God, and ought not to be oppofed; its folly therefore to be overhaftily follicitous for knowing thefe things.

At the end of the fame Chapter, he writes, that having fluck to a fplendor that attended him above Forty Years, he had all his art of Writing and publick Teaching, from his Spirit and Splendour, tho' this kind of Science had got him among Men, more Envy than Renown, and more Glory than Profit: but it gave him no fmall, nor vulgar Pleafure, and contributed to the prolonging of his Life, being a comfort to him in many Calamities, an aid in Adversities, an help in Difficulties and Labours; upon the whole, he fays, the fact was plainly fo, he might err in the Caufes, and refers himfelf to fuch as are Wifer, viz. Divines.

In the fame Book he writes thus, Hitherto I have spoken of my felf; as of a Man, and that is fomewhat beneath other Men, in my Nature and Learning, but now I shall speak of fome admirable Disposition of my felf; and fo much the more wonderful, that I find fomewhat in my felf, which I know not what to make off : And that that thing is my felf, tho' I do not perceive fuch things to proceed from me : That it's present, when its meet, and not when I will have it. That which rifes thence is greater than my Abilities; which was first discover'd to me, in the Year 1526. So that it's above Forty four Years fince. I perceive a thing from without enter into my Ear with a noise from that part directly, where where People are talking of me : If it tends to Good in the right fide, or if it comes from the left, it penetrates to the right, and an orderly noife is made: And if the Discourse be contentious, I hear a wonderful Contention ; if it inclines to Evil in the left fide, it comes exactly from the part where those tumultuous Voices are. Therefore it enters on both fides of my Head ; and very often when the thing falls out ill, the Voice on the left fide, when it should end, grows louder, and Voices are multiply'd, and very commonly, if the thing be in the fame Town, it happens that the Voice being scarce over, a Messenger comes in to call me to them; and if it be from another City, and a Meffenger comes, upon computing the time betwixt the Deliberation, and the beginning of the Journey, they come to the fame, and I find Sentence past after the form it is concluded, and this continued with me to the Year 1568, and I wondred it ceas'd.

In the Year 1534. I began to fee in Dreams what things would happen in a fhort time, and if the fame Day, I faw them clearly, and after Sun rifing; fo that I faw a Sentence paft in a Caufe of the College, and that I fhould be Profeffor at Benonia; this ceas'd An, 1567.

The third thing was a Splendor, this I encreas'd by Degrees; it began about the Year 1573 or 74, but particularly this Year 1575. it feems to me I have it perfect, and it's a thing which does not leave me; but inftead of the two foregoing which are ceas'd, it fortifies me against Emulators, and as necessity requires. Its compos'd of an Artifical Practice, and a Circumfluent Light, being very Plea-E 3 fun. fant, and alone performs much more, as to Efficacy, Exercitation, Advantage, and Solidity of Studies, than those two joyn'd together; and does not take a Man from his common Studies, and humane Conversation, but makes him ready at all things, and is most excellent for composing Books, and feems, as it were, the utmost reach of our Nature, for it represents all things together, that make for the matter under Consideration; and if it be not a Divine thing, certainly it's the most perfect of Mortal Works.

Chap. 37.

In the fame Book he writes as follows: While I liv'd at Pavia, and profeft Phyfick there, looking cafually on my Hand, I faw at the root of my ring Finger, of my right Hand, the form of a bloody Sword, I was prefently ftruck with a great fear. In the Evening a Meffenger came with a Letter from my Son in Law, acquainting me that my Son was taken into Cuftody, and that I fhould come to Milan the next Day, and for fifty three Days the Mark increas'd, and went upwards, and behold, the last Day reacht to the top of my Finger, and look'd red like a flaming Sword. I, fuspecting no. fuch thing, and being frighted, and not my felf, knew not what to do, fay, or think; at midnight my Son was beheaded ; in the Morning the Sign was almost gone, in a Day or two it wholly vanish'd.

Chap. 4.

In the fame Book, having giv'n an account of fome ftrange Noifes, and Voices he had heard, and of a ftrange Smell he perceiv'd before Deaths, he concludes thus. But concerning thefe wonderful things, it's thus with Men, that when they are prefent, or a little tle before they have happ'ned, they draw the whole Man; after they are a while over, they are fo little heeded, that unless they are brought fresh to the Mind by some force, they doubt, as it were, whether they have feen or heard them; which, I fuppofe, chiefly happens both by Reafon of much more profound Caufes, and for the diftance of our Nature from the Caufes that produce them. I know what Scoffs and Laughter, fome, that would feem wife, raife at fuch things; the chief ring Leader of whom is Polybins, a Philosopher, without Philosophy, who underftood not even the Duty of an Hiftorian, but by extending it too far, became ridiculous, fometimes admirable, as where he speaks of the Acheans. In short, Tartalia L. 2. Hift. rightly faid, that no Man knows all things, and those nothing, that do not know their Ignorance of many things. You fee Pliny, who has deliver'd fo clear an Hiftory, fhews himfelf a Blockhead, where he treats of the Sun and Stars; what wonder therefore that Polybius, (while he meddles of the more fublime and Divine things) has fo clearly expos'd his Ignorance. I-religiously Swear, that a Senfe and Confciousness of only one of these things, is more dear to me, than a long lafting Reign over the whole Earth would be. And beneath, but let this fuffice, for I have only here fet down in fhort, when these things happen'd, and how, and fuch in which thefe could be no Suspiscion of Error or Imposture; and I only beg you, Reader, when you read fuch things, do not propose humane Pride for your Scope, but the greatness and amplitude of the World, and of the Heavens, and the vile Darkness in which we live, and you will E 4 will eafily Understand, I have related no incredible things. The fame Author, in his Dialogue, intitl'd Tetim, or of Humane Counfels, where he makes Tetim and Ram, Interlocutors, makes Ram fay, I believe Cardan has a Genius for his Companion, which difcover'd himfelf late to him, being wont before to admonish him by Dreams and Noises; and beneath, fo many and fo wonderful things have happen'd to him, in his Life, that I am forc'd to believe, being intimate with him, he has a great, powerful, and rare Genius, fo that he is not Master of his Actions; but those things he desires, he has not, the things he has he did not covet or hope for.

At the end of his fourth Book of Wildom, he writes as follows, concerning the Genii of other Men. All great Men feem to be led by some Divine Spirit, or Damon; Socrates, before his Death, had warning of the Day in a Dream, Dion faw a Spettre in his Houfe, what was it open'd Cains Cafar's door the Night before he was flain ? What was it faid to Brutus, as he was alone, I am thy Evil Genius, thou fhalt fee me again at Philippi? What was that august Figure seen by Callius in his Tent, that was like to Cæfar? What foretold Sylla in his Dream, of his imminent Death? Or what was it lie heard fo Pleafant in a clear Sky? What from a Maufolaum call'd Nero before his Death ? What admonish'd Caligula of his Death in a Dream? Why did Antony hear the departure of Bacchus from Alexandria, the Night before his Death? What mixt a fleeping Potion for Adrian in a Dream before his Death? Certainly, the Damon that was in them; for Humane Nature, when highly exal-1. 1. 1. 1. tcd, ted, rifes to the force of a Damon. These forefaw their Deaths, but could not prevent the violence of it. Neither are thefe the only Perfons, who having this Wildom have had violent ends: For Paul, who, aided by the Divine Spirit, could fee the Secrets of God, and Stephen the Heavens open, and Philip, who was carry'd invisible through the Defart, died all by the Hands of others. But there is this great difference betwixt these Spirits, that the Divine is joyn'd with Juffice and Piety, and the other Vertues, and has tranquility and reft always attending it; the Damonical is rais'd by Murthers, Robberies, and Falfe-dealings; and is always accompanyed with fulpifcious and manifold Difquiets. Who but a Perfon of troubled Senfes, and a difcompos'd Mind would chuse to embrace the Damonical? But as in fick Perfons, the vitiated tafte abhors Sweet and Fat things, and is more delighted with fuch as are fharp and infipid ; fo the Nature of Mortals being corrupted with Vice, abhors the beft, and adheres to the worft; and this is done chiefly by the likeness of these two kinds, which, how-great it is may eafily be understood by this, that Simon and Elimas, the Magicians, were accounted Divine Men, and Chrift, who was God, was thought by many to have a Devil. And fo much for Cardan.

Scaliger, speaking of the Genius aforib'd by Virgil L. 3.6.25. to Aneas, viz. Achates, so called from axes as writes thus of the Genii that attend. Men. We read in the Books of the Pythagoreans, enricht by the Platonicks, that we have two Genii attending us a Good and a Bad; by the guidance and counfels of the Good, Good and Elect Perfons joyn themselves to God, from whom they they have received him as a Mediator. To fome Heroes, he fhews himfelf, by others he is never feen but is heard, which Socrates profeffes of his, in more than one place in Plato, by fome Divine Spirits he is neither feen, nor heard, but fo introduces and prefents himfelf, that by his light he discovers an intelligence of fecret things, for Men to write: wherefore it often happens, that when that Celeftial Heat is over in us, we our felves either admire those our Writings, or do not own them for ours, and do not understand fome things after the way they were directed and dictated by him; nor do I think it hapned otherwife to Plato, to whofe Writings a light is added by Interpreters, much greater than may proceed from vulgar judgments. As for my felf, who think I am not to be compared even with the leaft, if any thing falls from me at any time unawares, I may not hope fo much may be performed by me afterwards, which is the reafon I never fet upon meditating, or writing, unlefs invited by my Genius, who speaks inwardly with me, tho' not heard, fhewing the fpacious fields of the Divinity in our Minds, which being abstracted and fufpended from the offices of the Body, it deputes to other Functions; fo that he did not fpeak wholly at random, who thought, that Aristotle's Intellectus Agens, were the fame with Plato's Genius; we have inftances of both in Hiftory, for an Evil one appear'd to Brutus, and foretold him an unhappy end; A Good one to Casar, when he past Rubicon, shewing him the way to that, in which he plac'd his chief bliss, Oc.

Heinfins

Heinfins fays, in a manner, the fame thing In Dedic. of himfelf with Scaliger, writing thus; Here Hippon.fui. are fome things to which, being my felf, I am not able to afpire, which after the heat has left my Mind, I confider as a Reader of another Man's Works. Scaliger alfo elfewhere Exer.344. calls his Genius, most Learned, whose defire is vast and immence: And Heinfins fays, 15. uninitiated Perfons do not understand these things.

Scaliger also, on Ariftole De Plantis, writes P. 9. 2. in thus; famblicus, in his Mysteries, fays, he that fbeing inspir'd, receives the Deity, has a fort of appearance of Fire before its ingress, and it's feen the God either coming, or departing; therefore those Spirits that apply themselves to our Mind with Darkness, bring us frivolous, wavering and doubtful things: And I know a Person to whose Eyes a Fire prefents it felf often, either meditating, or expecting Messense.

CHAP.

This is what Scaliger and Cardan have faid concerning their own Genii, and those of others; from which the judicious Reader may eafily difcern their fense concerning them.

CHAP. III.

What perception Men have had of Genii, or Spirits, and their operations by the Sight.

A S I come now to give an account of the perception Men have had of Genii, or Spirits, and their operations, by their particular fenfes; I shall begin with the most fpiritualized fense, viz. the Sight, and fet forth what perception Men have had of them by that; and whereas in my account, according to the feveral fenfes, it may fometimes happen, that more than one fense may be concerned at one and the fame time, in a perception of them, I shall entitle the Chapters, according to the predominant fense in that Action. And whereas it often happens that fome particular Perfons have a perception of Spirits, both by the Sight and Hearing, when other Perfons prefent perceive nothing, I shall treat of these Persons in particular Chapters.

To begin therefore with inftances of Perfons perceiving Spirits by the Sight; Campanella tells us, there are Angel Guardians for each Species, and individual Perfon, as St. Hierom writes, and himfelf has found by experience, which he did not understand before.

In

In the fame work, he tells us of a Friend L.2.c.25. of his, who was no ignorant, nor timerous Perfon, nor given to fpeak untruths, who affured him he had often feen and converfed with Evil Dæmons; and he fays, he met with many others afterwards, who had been incredulous in this kind, but upon their feeing and converfing with Spirits, chang'd their Opinions, and their Lives.

Elfewhere he writes thus, Porphyrius and Ib.1.4.c.1. Plotinus fay there are Angels Good and Bad, as daily experience teaches; and my felf alfo have found by manifeft experience, not when I greatly endeavoured it, but when I was minding another thing; and therefore it's no wonder if they did not appear to curious Nero.

In his Atheismus Triumphatus, he alfo tells us C. 11. of a Friend of his that had a fensible experience of Spirits, whose Voice he used to hear betwixt fleeping and waking, and especially when any evil was to happen to him.

Father Le Brun Printed a Book two Years fince at Paris, in French, which has for Title, Historire Critique des pratiques superstitieuses, &c. In the Second part of this Book, Chap. 7. he. writes concerning Trithemius, as follows: The Abbot Trithemiss, after an ardent defire of knowing Secrets unknown to all Mankind. learned fuch as were Aftonishing by a Revelation, which has no way the character of being Divine. I examine not whether all he faid he had learnt, be natural; I know fome Perfons pretend it ; but it's plain it was without making a due reflection. However it may be, I shall only speak of the manner after which Trithemins learnt thefe Secrets: He Writ it it confidently to a Carmelite Father, a Friend of his, call'd Borftins, who died at Ghent, before the Letter came to him: It was open'd and communicated to many Perfons, and Trithemius did not difown it. I have in hand, fays he, in his Letter, a great Work which will amufe the whole World, if ever it fees the Light; it's divided into Four Books, and the First has for Title of it, Steganography; the Work throughout is full of great and aftonishing things, which Man has never heard of, and will feem incredible. If you ask me, how I learnt these things? It's not by Man, but by the Revelation of I know not what Spirit; for thinking, on a day, this Year 1499. if I could not discover fecrets unknown to Men; after having a long while ponder'd on those I have mentioned, and being at length perfwaded that what I fought for was notpoffible, I went to Bed, being fomewhat afhamed for having carried my Folly fo far, as to attempt an Impoffible thing. In the Nighttime fome one prefented himfelf to me, and calling me by my name, Trithemius, faid he, do not believe you have had all these thoughts in vain, tho' the things you fearch are not poffible to you, nor to any other Man, they will become fo. Teach me then, I reply'd, what I must do to fucceed. Then he laid open the whole Mystery, and shew'd me that nothing was more eafy. God is my Witnefs, that I fpeak the Truth, and that I have taught these Secrets but to a Prince, who by an evident proof has been convinced of the poffibillity of it. It Imports that none but Princes should know these forts of Secrets, least Traitors.

Traitors, Impostors, or other Ill Men make use of them for doing many Mischiefs.

Boilfardus L. de Magia, Genius & Angelis, C. 5. mentions this Letter of Trithemius, and fays he there adds, that he could teach all the things he had of the Spirit, in all the Languages of the World; and that he clears himfelf of the Crime of Magick, and any commerce with Evil Spirits, by a Sacred Oath and Execration. Naudaeus writes that Trithemius in-Apol. des. deed lay under a fufpicion of Magick, on the Grands hoaccount of that Letter, and endeavours to mines, &c. clear him of it, but I leave it to the Readers, to confider what Trithemius's Words import, as to a converfation with fome Spirit, be he Good or Bad.

The fame Boiffardus writes, that an Illustri- c.6: ous German Count, whom he knew, profest, he had a Familiar Spirit, whom he affirm'd to be of the Celessial Order, whose Counsel he used in all things he undertook, at home and abroad.

Philip Melanethon tells us, that he had feen L. de Ani-Spectres, and that he knew many Men worthy me. of credit, who affirm'd they had not only feen Spectres, but had likewife difcourfed with them. So Maximus Tyrius fays, he faw Afcu- Serm. 27: lapius, but it was in a Slumber, but Hercules he faw, as he was Waking.

There was a Pamphlet Printed in London, Anno 1645. in Quarto, Entitled, A True and exact Relation of the several Informations, Examinations and Confessions of the late Witches Arraigned and Executed in the County of Effex.

Who were Arraigned and Condemned at the late Seffions held at Chelmsford, before the Right Honourable Rober: Earl of Warwick, and and feveral of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace. July the 29th. 1645.

Before this Seffions feveral Informations concerning Witches, and their Practifes, were taken before Sir Harbottel Grimston, and Sir Thomas Bowes, His Majesty's Justices of Peace for the faid County. Some of which Informations are as follows.

I. The Information of Matthew Hopkins of Manningtree, Gent. Taken upon Oath before us, the 25th. of March, 1645.

This Informant faith, that the faid Elizabeth Clarke, alias, Beddingfield (fuspected for a Witch as aforefaid, and whofe Mother and fome others of her Kinsfolk, did fuffer Death for Witchcraft and Murther) being by appointment of the faid Juffices, watcht feveral Nights, for the better discovery of her wicked Practifes: This Informant came into the Room, where the faid Elizabeth was watcht, as aforefaid, the laft Night, being the 24th. of this Inftant March, but intended not to have flay'd long there, but the faid Elizabeth forthwith told this Informant, and one Mr. Sterne, there present, if they would ftay, and do the faid Elizabeth no hurt, fhe would call one of her white Imps, and play with it in her Lap; but this Informant told her they would not allow of it; but that flaying there a while longer, within a quarter of an Hour after, there appeared an Imp like to a Dog, which was White with fome Sandy Spots, and feem'd to be very Fat, and Plump, with very fhort Legs, and forthwith Vanisht away : and the faid Elizabeth faid the name of that Imp, was Farmara; Imp, and immediately there appeared another Imp, which the called Vinegar Tom, in the fhape of a Grey-hound, with long Legs; and the faid Elizabeth then faid, that the next Imp fhould be a black Imp, and fhould come for the faid Mr. Sterne, which appeared, but prefently Vanisht; and the last that appeared was in the shape of a Pole-cat, but the Head fomewhat bigger; and the faid Elizabeth then told this Informant, that fhe had five Imps of her own, and two of the Imps of the Old Bedlam West, (meaning one Ann West , Widow who is now alfo fufpected to be guilty of Witchcraft) and faid fometimes the Imps of the Old Bedlam Suck'd on the faid Elizabeth, and fometimes her Imps Suck'd on the Old Beldam West; and the faid Elizabeth farther told this Informant, that Satan would never let her be at reft, or quiet, till fhe did confent to the Killing of the Hogs of one Mr. Edwards of Mannintree, and the Horfe of one Robert Taylor, of the fame Town.

II. The Information of John Sterne, Gent. Taken upon Oath before us, the 25th. Day of March, 1645.

This Informant faith, that Watching with Elizabeth Clarke (fulpected for Witchcraf, as aforefaid) fhe defired this Informant, and the reft that were in the Room with her, to fit down, and faid fhe would fhew this Informant and the reft fome of her Imps; and within half an Hour, there appear'd a white thing in the likenefs of a Cat, but not altcgether fo big, and being ask'd if fhe would not be afraid of her Imps? fhe 'anfwer'd, F w¹.at what do you think I am afraid of my Children? and that fhe call'd the name of that white Imp Hoult. And this Informant farther faith, that prefently after there appear'd another white Imp with Red Spots, as big as a fmall Dog, which the then called Jarmara; and that immediately after there appear'd at the Threshold of the Door another Imp, about the bigness of the first, but did presently Vanish away: and then the faid Elizabeth being ask'd if any more Imps would come? fhe answer'd that Vinegar Tom would come by and by, and forthwith there appear'd another in the likeness of a Dumb Dog, somewhat bigger than any of the former; and the faid Elizabeth also told this Informant, that she had three Imps from her Mother, which were of a Brown Colour, and two from the Old Beldam West; and that there had five Imps appear'd; but fhe had one more call'd Sack and Sugar, which had been hard at Work, and it would be long before it came, but it should Tear this Informant.

III. The Information of Frances Mills, Grace Norman, Mary Phillips, and Mary Parfley: Taken upon Oath, before the faid Justices, the 25th. Day of March, 1645.

These Informants fay joyntly, that watching with the faid Elizabeth Clarke, fulpected as aforefaid, about Twelve of the Clock last Night, the faid Elizabeth finack'd with her Mouth, and beckon'd with her Hand, and Instantly there appear'd a white thing, about the bigness of a Cat; and that these Informants mants faw five Imps more, which the faid Elizabeth named, as abovefaid, &c.

IV. The Information of Edward Parly of Mannintree; Taken upon Oath before the faid Justices, the 25th. of March, 1645.

This Informant faith, that watching with the faid Elizabeth Clarke the last Night, he ask'd her if he should continue still in the Room with her: and the faid Elizabeth defired he fhould, if he would Fight for her with the Devils; for they would come this Night, and that which fhe call'd Hoult would come first, and then that which she call'd Jarmara; which did appear in the likeness of a white Dog, with red Spots; and prefently after there appear'd that Imp which fhe call'd Vinegar Tom; and then that which the call'd Sack and Sugar : and the faid Elizabeth then told this Informant, that the Devil had had poffeffion of her Six or Seven Years, and that he had oftentimes knock'd at her Door in the Night-time, and that fhe did rife, open the Door, and let him in, and that he went to Bed to her three or four times a Week, and had the Carnal knowledge of her, as a Man.

V. The Information of John Banks of Mannintree, Taken upon Oath before the faid Justices, the 25th. of March, 1645.

This Informant faith, that watching with the faid Elizabeth Clarke, he did Inform and Confirm all the particulars exprest, and for down in the Information of the faid Mr. Sterne. F 2 To

To the Five Informations before fet down, I fhall add the Examination of Ann Leech of Mission, in the County aforefaid, Widow, taken before the faid Juffices, April the 14th. 1645. as follows.

This Examinant faith, That she had a Grey Imp fent her, and that she, together with Elizabeth Clarke, and Elizabeth Gooding, did about a Year fince, fend their Imps to kill a Black Cow, and a White Cow belonging to Mr. Edwards, which was done accordingly; and fays, That she fent her Grey Imp, Elizabeth Clarke a Black Imp, and Elizabeth Gooding a White Imp; and that about 20 Years fince the fent a Grey Imp to kill two Horfes, of one Mr. Bragg, of Milley, which were kill'd accordingly. That fhe, and the faid Elizabeth Gooding, fent either of them an Imp, to deftroy the Child of the faid Mr. Edwards; this Examinants Imp being aWhite one, and Elizabeth Gooding'sa Black Imp; and that about thirty Years fince this Examinant had the faid White Imp, and two others, a Grey and a Black Imp, of one Anne, the Wife of Robert Pierce, of Stoake, in Suffolk, being her Brother; and that these Imps went commonly from one to another, and did mifchief where-ever they went. And that when this Examinant did not employ them abroad to do mifchief, she had not her Health; but when they were employ'd, fhe was healthful and well; and these Imps did usually suck those Teats, which were found about the privy Parts of her Body ; and that those Imps did often speak to this Examinant, and that in an Hollow Voice, which the plainly underftood, &c. the was was executed at Chelmsford, as also Elizabeth Clarke before mention'd.

Now, as to the five Informations before fet down (in which Eight Perfons are concern'd) all given in upon Oath, that they faw fuch Imps, as they mention, I cannot well conceive what an oppofer of any real Apparitions of Spirits can fay; for here I do not tell you of afflicted Perfons, who pretended to fee Spectres, which were feen by none but themselves, nor of an Old distracted Woman, who fancies she has and sees Spirits, attending her, when there is no fuch thing: Nor do I give you the Teftimonies of Crafty, Melancholy Wenches, or Old Women, as fome fuch there may have been; but here are the Testimonies of Eight unexceptionable Perfons, as I conceive, concurring in one thing: And if this be not a fair Proof, I know not what is fo.

As to the Examination of Anne Leech, concerning her Imps, though the Fact flands but upon herTeftimony, yet in regard it relates to fomewhat that I fhall write elfewhere in this Book, I thought fit to infert it. And I here forbear to infert the Spirits raifed by Mrs. Bodman, who was executed at Salisbury, for which Fact there was also but one Teftimony.

Sometime fince, I drew the Account before fet down from the foremention'd Pamphlet, printed Anno 1645. I cafually met with a Pamphlet publifh'd in London, Anno 1648. by Mr. Stearne above mentioned; the Title of it is, A Confirmation and difcovery of Witchcraft, &c. by John Stearne, now of Laws-Hall, near Bury St. Edmonds, in Suffolk, fometimes of Manningtree in Effex.

In this Pamphlet, among other things, he gives an Account of the Facts abovementition'd, as follows.

Mr. Hopkin, and my felf went together to Elizabeth Clarke, of Manningtree in Effex; who had been kept three Days, and three Nights under a guard, and when I had ask'd her, who fhe had accus'd as Witches, we were going away; but she faid to us, if you will stay, I will fhew you my Imps, for they are ready to come ; then faid Mr. Hopkin, Beffe ! Will you do us no harm? No faid fhe, What? Do you think I am afraid of my Children ? You shall fit down; fo we did, where fhe appointed us; then one of the Company, who was appointed to be with her that Night, faid to her, Belle, I ask'd you a Question of late, but you answer'd not; then she faid, What is it ? He reply'd, tell the Truth, has not the Devil had the ufe of your Body? She faid, Why fhould you ask me fuch a Queftion? He answer'd, I defire to know the Truth, and no otherwife; then she fetch'd a deep Sigh, and faid, it is true; then faid Mr. Hopkin, in what manner and likeness came he to you? She faid, like a Tall, Proper, Black-hair'd Gentleman, a Properer Man than your felf; and being ask'd, which she had rather lie withal, she faid the Devil; and fo particulariz'd every thing, and how he came in, and his Habit, and how he lay with her, and spake to her, and she then affirm'd this to be Truth, and fo prefently fell a smacking with her Lips, and call'd Lought, two or three times, which prefently appeared to us eight, (for there were fix which were appointed to be with her that Night before we went) in the likeness of a Cat (for she told cold us before in what shapes they would come, and fo that prefently vanish'd. Then she call'd again, as before, Jarmara ! Then appear'd another like a Red, or Sandy spotted Dog, with Legs not fo long as a Finger, to our perceivance, but his back as broad as two Dogs, or broader of that bignefs, and vanish'd: After that fhe call'd more, as before by feveral Names, which came in feveral fhapes, one like a Greyhound, with Legs as long as a Stags; another like a Ferrit; and one like a Rabbit, and fo in feveral shapes they appear'd to us, till there were fome feven or eight feen. Some by fome of us, and others by other fome of us; then I ask'd her if they were not all come, for there were more come than fhe fpake of, fhe anfwer'd, that they came double, in feveral shapes, but faid one was still to come, which was to tear me in pieces : I ask'd her why? fhe faid, becaufe I would have had her try'd by Swimming, and told me, that now fhe would be even with me; and fo told in what manner it fhould come, black and like a Toad, and fo afterwards it did come, as the reft averr'd that faw it, &c.

This Account we find fomewhat differs from the former, but whether enough to invalidate the Testimony, I must leave it to the Readers Consideration.

Mr. Glanvil, in his Collections of Relations, for proving Apparitions, Spirits, and Witches, tell us of an Irifliman, that had like to have been carry'd away by Spirits; and of the Ghoft of a Man who had been feven Years dead, that brought a Medicine to his Bed-fide. The Relation is thus.

A Genr

7 I

A Gentleman in Ireland, near to the Earl of Orrery's, fending his Butler one Afternoon to buy Cards; as he pass'd a Field, to his wonder, he espy'd a Company of People sitting round a Table, with a deal of good Cheer before them in the midft of the Field : And he going up towards them, they all arofe and faluted him, and defir'd him to fit down with them ; but one of them Whisper'd these words in his Ear: Do nothing this Company invites you to. Hereupon he refus'd to fit down at the Table. and immediately Table and all that belong'd to it were gone; and the Company are now dancing and playing upon Mufical Inftruments. And the Butler being defir'd to joyn himfelf with them, but he refufing this alfo, they all fall to Work, and he not being to be prevail'd with, to Accompany them in working any more than in feafting, or dancing, they all difappear'd, and the Butler is now alone, but inftead of going forwards, home he returns as fast as he could drive, in a great Confternation; and was no fooner entred his Mafter's Door, but falls down, and lay fome-time Senfelefs, but coming again to himfelf, he related to his Master what had pass'd.

The Night following there comes one of this Company to his Bed-fide, and tells him, That if he effered to fir out of Dorrs the next Day, he would be carryed away. Hereupon he kept within; but towards the Evening, having need to make Water, he adventur'd to put one Foot over the Threfhold, feveral flanding by, which he had no fooner done, but they efpyed a Rope caft about his Middle; and the Poor Man was hurried away with great Swiftnefs, they following him as faft as they could, but could could not overtake him, at length they efpy'd an Horfe-Man, coming towards him, and made figns to him to ftop the Man, whom he faw coming near him, and both ends of the Rope, but no Body drawing; when they met, he laid hold on one end of the Rope, and immediately had a fmart blow given him over his Arm with the other end; but by this means the Man was ftop'd, and the Horfe-Man brought him back with him.

The Earl of Orrery hearing of these strange Passages, fent to the Master to defire him to fend this Man to his Houfe, which he accordingly did; and the Morning following, or quickly after, he told the Earl, that his Spectre had been with him again, and affur'd him, that that Day he should most certainly be carry'd away, and that no endeavours fhould avail to the faving of him; upon this he was kept in a large Room, with a confiderable number of Perfons to guard him, among whom was the Famous Stroker, Mr. Greatrix, who was a Neighbour. There were beside other Persons of Quality, two Bishops in the House at the fame time, who were confulted concerning the making use of a Medicine, the Spectre or Ghoft prefcrib'd, of which mention will be made anon, but they determin'd on the Negative.

Till part of the Afternoon were fpent all was quiet, but at length he was perceiv'd to rife from the Ground, whereupon Mr. Greatrix, and another lufty Man clapt their Arms over his Shoulders, one of them before him, and the other behind, and weigh'd him down with all their ftrength; but he was forcibly taken up from them, and they were too weak to keep their hold, and for a confiderable time he

he was carryed in the Air, to and fro over their Heads, feveral of the Company ftill running under him, to prevent his receiving hurt, if he fhould fall, at length he fell and was caught before he came to the Ground, and had by that means no hurt.

All being quiet till Bed time, my Lord order'd two of his Servants to lye with him, and the next Morning he told his Lordship, that his Spectre was again with him, and brought a Wooden Difh, with grey Liquor in it, and bid him Drink it off; at the first fight of the Spectre, he faid he endeavour'd to awake his Bed-fellows, but it told him, that that endeavour fhould be in vain; and that he had no caufe to fear him, he being his Friend, and he that at first gave him the good advice in the Field, which had he not followed, he had been before now perfectly in the Power of the Company he faw there; he added, That he concluded it was impoffible, but that he should have been carryed away the Day before, there being fo ftrong a Combination against him; but now he could affure him, that there would be more Attempts of that Nature, but he being troubled with two forts of fad Fits, he had brought that Liquor to Cure him of them, and bid him Drink it; he peremptorily refusing, the Spectre was angry, and upbraided him with great Difingenuity, but told him, however, he had a kindness for him, and that if he would take Plantane Juice, he should be well of one fort of Fits, but he should carry the other to his Grave; the Poor Man having by this time fomewhat recover'd himfelf, ask'd the Spectre, whether by the Juice of Plantane he meant that of the Leaves, or Roots? It reply'd the Roots. Then

Then it ask'd him, whether he did not know him? he afwered no; it reply'd, I am fuch an one: the Man anfwered, he had been longDead: I have been Dead, faid the Spectre, or Ghoft, Seven Years, and you know that I liv'd a loofe Life, and ever fince I have been hurried up and down in a reftlefs condition, with the Company you faw, and fhall be to the day of Judgment; then he proceeded to tell him, that had he acknowledged God in his ways, he had not fuffer'd fuch fevere things by their means; and further faid, you never Pray'd to God that day before you met with this Company in the Fields.

This Relation was fent to Dr. Henry More, by Mr. E. Fowler, who faid, Mr. Greatrix told it feveral Perfons: The Lord Orrery alfo own'd the Truth of it; and Mr. Greatrix told it to Dr. Henry More himfelf, who particularly enquired of Mr. Greatrix about the Mans being carried up into the Air, above Mens Heads in the Room, and he did express affirm he was an Eye-witness thereof.

Wierns tells us', that a Young Woman, De prefig: was miferably tormented with an Evil Spirit, Dam. 1. 1. in the Caftle of Caldenbroe, in Guelderland, and had been carried away in the Air by him, if himfelf had not with-held her by Violence. He fays alfo, that at Magdeburg, 1. 2. c. 7. a certain Magical Juggler, who was wont to lead about a little Horfe for a Show, would let him walk about in a Circle in an open Theatre, and at the end of the Show, would tell the Company, that he could get but little Money among Men, and therefore he would go up to Heaven; whereupon he would throw a Cord up in the Air, and the little Horfe Horfe would go up after it, himfelf taking hold of the Horfes Tayl, would follow him, his Wife taking hold of him, would follow alfo, and a Maid Servant would follow her, and fo mount up in the Air, as it were link'd together, the Spectators standing in great admiration; till a certain Citizen coming by chance that way, and asking, what was done? It was answered that a Jugler with his little Horfe was gone up into the Air : whereupon he affured them that he faw him just before going into an Inn in the Street; therefore finding themselves deluded, they went away. Wierus adds, no Man may deny but all this kind of allyance with Dæmons, by whatever means gotten, and all the way of these delusions is a peftiferous Fraud, introduc'd for the utter deftruction of Men.

Mr. Thomas Tilson, Minister of Aylesworth in Kent, in a Letter dated July the 6th. 1691. which he fent to the late Mr. Baxter in London, gives an Account of an Apparition at Rochesser; which Account Mr. Baxter has Printed in his Historical Discourse of Apparitions and Witches. It is as follows.

Mary the Wife of John Goffe of Rochefter, being Afflicted with a long Illnefs, removed to her Fathers Houfe at Weft-Mulling, which is about Nine Miles diftant from her own, there fhe Died June the 4th. this prefent Year 1641. The day before her departure, fhe grew very impatiently defirous, to fee her two Children, whom fhe had left at home, to the care of a Nurfe; fhe pray'd her Hufband to hire an Horfe, for fhe muft go home, and Dye with the Children; when they perfwaded her to the contray, telling her fhe was not fit to be taken out of Bed, nor able to fit on Horfe-back, fhe entreated them, however to try, if I cannot fit, faid fhe, I will lie along upon the Horfe, for I must go to fee my Poor Babes.

A Minister, who lives in the Town, was with her at Ten of the Clock that Night, to whom she express'd good Hopes in the Mercies of God, and Willingness to die, but, faid she, it is my Misery that I cannot she my Children.

Between One and Two of the Clock in the Morning fhe fell into a Trance; one Widow Turner, who watch'd with her that Night, fays, That her Eyes were open, and fixt, and her Jaw fall'n; fhe put her Hand upon her Mouth and Noftrils, but could perceive no Breath; fhe thought her to be in a Fit, and doubted whether fhe were alive or dead.

The next Day, this dying Woman told her Mother that fhe had been at home with her Children. That is impoffible, faid the Mother, for you have been here in Bed all the while; yes, reply'd the other, but I was with them laft Night, when I was a fleep.

The Nurle at Rochefter, Widow Alexander by Name, affirms, and fays, fhe will take her Oath on't before a Magistrate, and receive the Sacrament upon it, that a little before Two of the Clock that Morning, fhe faw the likeness of the faid Mary Goffe, come out of the next Chamber, (where the Elder Child lay in a Bed by it felf) the Door being left open, and stood by her Bed-side about a Quarter of an Hour; the Younger Child was there lying by her; her Eyes mov'd, and her Mouth went, but she faid nothing. The Nurle moreover fays, 78

fays, that the was perfectly awake, it was then Day-light, being one of the longest Days in the Year. She fate up in her Bed, and look'd stedfastly upon the Apparition; in that time fhe heard the Bridge Clock strike Two, and a while after faid, In the Name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoft, what art thou? Thereupon the Appearance remov'd, and went away. She flipt on her Cloaths and followed, but what became on't fhe cannot tell; then, and not before, the began to be grievoully affrighted, and went out of Doors, and walk'd upon the Wharf, (the House being just by the River fide) for fome Hours, only going in, now and then, to look to the Children; at Five of the Clock fhe went to a Neighbour's Houfe, and knock'd at the Door, but they would not rife; at Six fhe went again, then they arofe and let her in : She related to them all that had pass'd; they would perfwade her fhe was mistaken, or Dreamt; but she confidently affirm'd, If ever I faw her in all my Life, I faw her this Night.

One of those to whom the made the Relation (Mary the Wife of John Sweet) had a Meffenger came from Mulling that Forenoon, to let her know her Neighbour Goffe's Wife was dying, and defir'd to fpeak with her; the went over the fame Day and found her departing. The Mother, among other Difcourfe, related to her how much her Daughter had long'd to fee the Children; and faid, the had feen them. This brought to Mrs. Sweet's Mind, what the Nurfe had told her that Morning, for till then the had not thought to mention it, but difguis'd it rather, as the Woman's diffurb'd Imagination.

The

The fubstance of this I had related to me, by John Carpenter, the Father of the Deceas'd, next Day after her Burial, July the 2d. I fully Difcours'd the Matter with the Nurfe, and two Neighbours, to whole Houle she went that Morning.

Two Days after, I had it from the Mother, the Minister that was with her in the Evening, and the Woman that fate up with her that last Night; they all agree in the fame Story, and every one ftrength'ns the others Teftimony.

They appear to be fober intelligent Perfons, far enough from defigning to impose a Cheat on the World, or to mannage a Lye, and what Temptation they lie under for fo doing, I cannot conceive. So far the Letter to Mr. Baxter.

According to the foregoing inftance, Helmont tell us of a Boy, who through an excuffive defire of feeing his Mother, fell into an Extafy, and gave her a visit, she being many Miles distant from him, and that upon his coming to himfelf, remembring all things, he gave People many Marks of his having been with her. Marcus Marci, having fet down Phyl. vet. this Relation from Helmont, adds, though we reft. part fhould grant the Boy's Mind or Imagination 5. had reach'd to that place, it would be ridiculous to think he could have perceiv'd those fensible things being prefent, unlefs we likewife admit the Organs of his Senfes alfo, with which he could have receiv'd those Images, had pass'd thither : Therefore we must fay, that as the Imaginative Faculty comes fometimes to the Knowledge of future things, fo it does to the Knowledge of things absent ; and as for the manner after which it is done, he has explain'd it elsewhere. Captain

Captain Henry Bell, in his Narrative prefixt to Luther's Table, printed in English, An. 1652. having acquainted us how the German Copy printed of it, had been discover'd under Ground, where it had lain hid Fifty two Years, that Edition having been fupprest by an Edict of the Emperor Rudolphus the Second, fo that it was Death for any Perfon to keep a Copy thereof; and having told us, that Calparus Van Sparr, a German Gentleman, with whom he was familiarly acquainted while he negotiated Affairs in Germany, for King James the First, was the Person that discover'd it, An. 1626. and transmitted it into England to him, and earneftly defir'd him to translate the faid Book into English, fays, he accordingly fet upon the Translation of it many times, but was alwayshindred from proceeding in it by fome intervening Bufinefs. About fix Weeks after he had receiv'd the Copy., being in Bed with his Wife, one Night between Twelve and One of the Clock, the being afleep, but himfelf awake, there appear'd to him an Ancient Man, ftanding at his Bed's-fide, array'd all in White, having a long and broad White Beard, hanging down to his Girdle, who taking him by his right Ear, faid thus to him, Sirrah! Will not you take time to translate that Book which is fent unto you out of Germany ? I will shortly provide for you both place and time to do it; and then he vanish'd ; hereupon being much affrighted, he fell into an extream Sweat, fo that his Wife awaking, and finding him all over Wet, fhe ask'd him what he ail'd ? He told her what he had feen and heard ; but he never regarded Visions nor Dreams, and fo the the fame fell out of his Mind. But a Fortnight night after, being on a Sunday at his Lodging in Kingstreet, Weltminster, at Dinner with his Wife, two Meffengers were fent from the whole Counfel Board, with a Warrant to carry him to the Gatebouse, Westminister, there to be kept till farther Order from the Lords of the Council. Upon which Warrant he was kept there ten whole Years close Prisoner; where he spent five Years of it in translating the faid Book, having good cause to be mindful of the Old-Man's saying: I will shortly provide for you both place and time to tranflate it.

Cardan tells us, That Jacobus Donatas, a rich Se- De Rer. nator of Venice, was wont to relate how himfelf variet. being in Bed with his Wife one Night, and 1. 15. c. having a Wax Candle burning by him, and 93. two Nurfes at the fame time lying there in a Truckle-Bed with a Child under a Year old ; he faw the Chamber Door to be open'd by degrees, and I know not what Man to put his Head in ; the Nurfes faw him too, but neither knew his Face; the young Man being affrighted, arole, and fnatch'd his Sword and Buckler, and the Nurfes each of them great Wax Candles, he goes into the Hall adjoyning to the Chamber, there he found all things fast shut, he return'd with great Admiration. The Infant who was well in Health, dyed the next Day. This he never related without fighing.

We have also feveral inflances in History of frightful Spectres appearing before Pestilences and other Afflictions. Procopius, where he writes of the great and wonderful Pestilence, that in De bell. the time of Cofroe and Justinian dispeopl'd the pers. 1. 2. Earth, fays, there were then feen publickly, G and and in private Houfes Daemons in an Humane fhape, which ftruck those they met, and those they ftruck were presently seiz'd with the Disease, and this happen'd to some waking, in open Day, to others in the Night time.

CHAP. IV.

What Perception fome Perfons have had of Genii, or Spirits by the Senfe of feeing, when others prefent at the fame time have feen nothing.

Ucas Jacobson Debes, M. A. and Provoft of the Churches in the seventeen Islands of Foeroe, fubject to the King of Denmark, in his Description of the faid Islands, and Inhabitants, and his Account of feveral Obfervables there, in his eighth Chapter tells us, how Satan, even fince the pure Light of the Gospel there, as well as before, has behav'd himfelf in deluding and feducing those Inhabitants: They having many Examples how he has taken away fome, and carry'd away others, reftoring them afterwards, but weaken'd in their Understandings; whereof he gives us some certain Relations, that are yet in the Memory of Man, and fome others that happen'd while he himfelf was at Foeroe ; he tell us, That Apparitions of Spirits is a thing fo generally known in Focroe, that almost every where in the Country, where they have read no Books thereof, thereof, nor heard any Relation from other Places, know it fo perfectly by the Works and Apparations of Satan, that they are in no doubt at all of it. And that they may be feen by fome Perfons, and not by others, might be prov'd by many Examples in Feeree, that being a meer endowment of their Nature ; and, he fays, People grow much alter'd upon feeing fuch Apparitions, which Apparitions they call Hollow Men. An expression exactly agreeing with that of Virgil, where he tells us what the Sybil, who undertook to carry And - In 6. as to the Elyfian Fields, faid to him at the entrance of Hell, where the Ghofts, came against him.

and fuch they always appear'd to my felf, not with folid Bodies of Flesh and Bones.

For particulars, I refer the Reader to Mr. Debes's Book, and shall only fet down one Relation from him of a thing which happen'd, An. 1667. It is as follows : A Person call'd Faseb Oluffon, being then at Giow, in Ofteroe, in the 24th Year of his Age, on the 17th of Fan. fell into a Sicknefs, lying a Bed during a Formight, and on the 14th Day of his Illness, as he lay afleep at Night, there came one into him with fhining Cloathson, whereat he awaken'd, and perceiv'd him in that Figure, in the Bed by him, the Room appearing full of Splendor, and it ask'd the Man where his Pain was? Whereunto heanfwer'd nothing; afterwards the Apparition ftroak'd him with his Hand along G 2 his Breaft, and round about, whereby he was prefently heal'd.

Now, though Dæmonologers generally give inftances of fome Perfons feeing Spirits, when others, in the fame Room, at the fame time, fee them not, and fome Men undertake by Phyfiognomy, to tell who fhall have Vifions of Spirits, or Angels, and who fhall never fee Apparitions of them, though they are in the Room with others that fee them; yet the moft convincing inftance of this peculiar Sight, that I know of in the World, is, that of the Second fighted Perfons in Scotland, who are call'd Second fighted, becaufe they have the Gift of feeing more than others can that are with them.

My late Friend, Mr. John Aubrey, at the end of his Book of Miscellanies, Printed in London, An. 1695, gives an Account of these Second fighted Persons, which was sent him from a Learned Person in Scotland, whose Letters he shew'd me before he Printed them : And I shall here set down a few Particulars, taken from that Account, relating to my purpose.

I. They generally term this Second fight, in Irifh Taifhitaraugh, and fuch as have it, Taithe trim, from Taifh, which is properly a fhadowy Subftance, and fuch as can only be fome way difcern'd by the Eye, but not lay'd hold on by the Hands; for which they affign'd it to Bugles or Ghosts; fo that Taistar is as much as one that converses with Ghosts, or Spirits, or as they commonly call them the Fairies, or Fairy-felks; others call these Perfons Phissichin, from Phis, which is properly forefight, or foreknowledge.

II. Thofe

II. Those that have the Second fight, fee a multitude of Men and Women, Night and Day, round about them, and a particular Relation is made of one of those Persons, a Man of an upright Conversation, who us'd ordinarily by looking to the Fire, to foretel what Strangers would come to his Houfe the next Day, or fhortly after, by their Habit, and Arms, and fometimes also by their Names; and if any of his Goods or Cattle were miffing, he would direct his Servants to the very place where to find them, whether in a Mire, or upon dry Ground : he would also tell if the Beast were already dead, or if it fhould die e're they could come at it; and in the Winter, if himfelf with others with him fate thick about the Fire-fide. he would defire them to make Room for fome others that flood by, though they did not lee them : He faw two Spirits continually, and fometimes many more, though others, lay he continually faw more, and would often feem very angry, and fomething troubl'd, nothing visible to others moving him. The two particular Spirits that constantly attended him were call'd, one Brownie, in the fhape of a Boy, the other Meig Malloch, or Meg Mullack, in the fhape of a Girl, who were two Ghofts, which (as it's conftantly reported) of Old. haunted a Family in Straths Pey, of the Name of Grant; of which Name and Family this Perfon was.

Note, That King James in his Dæmonology L. 3. C. 2. mentions alfo a Spirit, call'd Brownie, that was wont formerly to haunt divers Houfes, without doing any Evil, but doing, as it were, neceffary turns up and down the Houfe; he appear'd like a rough Man, nay, fome believ'd G 2 that that their Houfe was all the Sonfier, as they call'd it, that is, the more lucky, or fortunate, that fuch Spirits reforted there.

III. As to the extent of these Peoples knowledge this fecret way, it reaches both prefent, pafs'd, and future Events. They forefee Murthers, Drownings, Weddings, Burials, Combats, Manslaughters, &c. of all which there are many inftances to be given; they commonly forefee fad Events a little while before they happen; for inftance, if a Man's fatal end be hanging, they'll fee a Gibbet, or a Rope about his Neck; if beheading, they'll fee a Man without a Head ; if drowning, they'll fee Water up to his Throat ; if stabbing, they'll fee a Dagger in his Breaft; if unexpected Death in his Bed, they'll fee a Winding Sheet about his Head : They foretel not only Marriages, but of good Children, what kind of Life Men shall lead, and in what Condition they shall die ; alfo Riches, Honours, Preferments, Peace, Plenty, and good Weather. There is one instance of a Second fighted Perfon, who faw a young Man, attending a young Gentlewoman, as fhe went up and down the House, and this was about three Months before her Marriage with him; and fometimes they foretel things which fall out feveral Years after. It's likewife usual with Persons that lose any thing to go to fome of these Men, by whom they are directed how; with what Perfons, and in what place they fhall find their Goods. It's alfo to be noted, that this Gift bears a Latitude, fo that fome have it in a far more Eminent degree than others.

IV. As for the way of receiving this Gift, and communicating it to others, the Account tells tells us, that in the Isle of Skye, especially before the Gospel came thither, several Families had it by Succeffion, defcending from Parents to Children, and as yet there are many that have it that way. So Cardan tell us, De Rer. it runs in a Blood among the Turks, for Per- varit. 1.8. fons to caft themfelves into an Extafy at Plea- c. 43. fure. Some fay, they get this Gift by compact with the Devil, others, fay, by converse with those Damons, we call Fairies. They fay, they can communicate the Gift to others in a few Days, and have offer'd to do it for a small Matter; and, they fay, that if at any time, when they fee those ftrange fights, they fet their foot on the foot of another who has not the fecond fight, that other will, for that time, fee what they are feeing. And as I am told by a Perfon who has convers'd with those Second sighted Persons, the Gift will continue with the Man that has fo receiv'd it, all his Life.

V. This Gift is very troublefome to those that have it, and they would gladly be rid of it; for if the object be a thing that is terrible. they are feen to fweat and tremble, and fcreek at the Apparition ; at other times they laugh and tell of the thing cheerfully; just according as the thing is Pleafant, or aftonishing. A certain Person desir'd a Second sighted Man to teach him his Skill; who told him he could do it in three Days time, but faid he would not advise him, or any Man to learn it; for upon learning it he would never be a minute in his Life, but he would fee innumeble Men and Women, Night and Day, round about him, which he believ'd would be troublesome to him: Whereupon the Person G4 would would not learn it. And those that have it wish to be rid of it, judging it a Sin, and that it came from the Devil; and some of them have apply'd themselves to the Ministry, defiring their Prayers for their being freed of it, and they have been freed accordingly. In the Isle of Skye, if a Woman has it her felf, and be marryed to a Man that has it also, unless a Child of theirs be baptiz'd just upon the delivery, he has it all his Life; if he be then baptiz'd, he is freed from it.

VI. The Perfons that have this Gift, are obferv'd, for the most part, to be vicious, tho' fome very honest Perfons, of an upright life, have it.

Mr. Aubrey, in a fmall Addition, which he has annext to his Account of Second fighted Perfons, L. de Peffe. gives us a Relation from Diembroke, of an old Woman with whom it was ufual, where any Friend of hers dyed, to fee their Apparitions without an Head, and this though the Perfons were never fo far off. And I have been credibly inform'd of a Gentleman in the Low-Countries, who, as he walk'd the Streets of a Town would often meet People without Heads, as it feem'd to him, and would ask the next Perfon he met with, who fuch Perfons were, and would acquaint his Friends that thofe Perfons would die within a Year, which always came to pafs.

> Relating to this we find it's a Cuftom with the fews, on the 7th Day of their Feaft of Tabernacles, viz. the 21ft Day of the Month of Sept, to go forth in the Night time, in the Moonfhine, because they think all things that will happen to them that Year, are reveal'd to them that Night in the Moonfhine, Leufden, in his Philologna lologus Hebr.co mixtus, has giv'n us a cut of this Difert.31" Practice, which I have also here inferted : Where Jews are going forth in the Moonshine with Branches of Palms, Olives, and Willows in their Hands, to fearch out the Events of the whole Year ; but the Head of one of them lies hid, and is not feen in the fhadow, whence the Perfon concludes he shall die that Year. Buxtorf, in his Synagoga Judaica, thus fets forth all Chap. 21. these things. They go forth in the Night time, in the Moonshine, some having only their Heads bare, fome with a Shirt on only, or alfo naked, having a Sheet about them, which they let fall, and ftretch forth their Arms and Hands; if any Man's Head be feen wanting in the fhadow, he is in danger of Life, and it's a fign he will die that Year; if a Finger be wanting, the Death of a Friend is forefhown; if the righthand, a Son; if the left, a Daughter will die; if he see no shade at all, he must prepare for Death, for there is no hope of avoiding it; and if he be upon undertaking a Journey, it's a fign he will never return home, &c. This the Rabbins make out from the Words, Numb. 14.9. Their Shadow is departed from them ; but they write, it is not to be underftood of the simple shadow, because it cannot be but a Man must fee his shadow in the Moonshine ; but of the (hadow of the (hadow; for if it be well minded, we shall find a twofold shadow, whereof the fecond is a Reflection of the first, which the Rabbins call the shadow of the shadow.

I know not how far this may relate to the Doctrine of the Cabalists, for as Boisfardus tells L. de Dius, the Arabian Priests held with them, that vin. &c. there are Three parts of the Soul, the First is called Neschama, and is wholy Divine, abstracted ftracted and feparated from the Body; this Virgil calls Aurai fimplicis Ignem. The Second is called Ruab, and it is the Rational Soul which partakes of the Divinity and the Body, joyning both together with a wonderful Harmony, it gives Life to the Body, and caufes that it has not an abhorrence for the Frail and Mortal Flesh, in which it lives. The Third part of the Soul is that which diffolves this Harmony, and it is as the Idol, Image, Shadow, and as the out-coat, drawn from the furface of the Body; the Cabalifts call it Nephes, it wanders about Sepulchers, and is fometimes visible, but to the eyes of those whom God Illuminates; and this Nephes is that Fatal Hair in the Crown of Mens Heads, Sacred to Pluto and Proferpine, which before it be cut, and drawn away from the Crown of the Head, the Soul cannot be feparate from the Body; fo also unless this Nephes be drawn, as it were from the outmost furface of the Body, a Man cannot leave this Life; and this part of the Soul (if we believe the Doctrine of the Cabalists) is that which is called out by Magicians and Necromancers, Pluto and Profer-pine being first appeas'd, which if they put on their former Bodies, and fuch an Habit as they wore alive, their Anfwers are called Necromantical, if they appear'd only in flitting and fubrile Shadows, their answers were faid to be Scyomantical; So far Boiffardus. Whense I only Note, that if there be fuch a fhadowy and wandring part of the Soul, as is here mentioned, call'd Nephes; its probable the Woman mentioned by Diembroke, faw that at the death of Perfons.

As to my own experience, relating to that of the Second-Sighted Perfons abovemention'd, I shall here fet it down, in reference to two of the particulars above Written, from Mr. Aubrey's Account, viz. the Second and Fifth. As, in the fecond particular, it's faid, that those that have the Second Sight, see a multitude of Men and Women, Day and Night, about them: So it was with my felf for fome time, for I faw Hundreds, tho' I never faw any in the Night time, without a Fire, or Candle-light, or in the Moonshine, and as the Perfon mention'd in that Paragraph, had two particular Spirits there Named, which conftantly attended him, befides others without Names; fo it was with my felf, two Spirits constantly attending me, Night and Day, for above Three Months together; who call'd each other by their Names, and feveral Spirits would often call at my Chamber Door, and ask, whether fuch Spirits lived there, calling them by their Names, and they would answer, they did. As for the other Spirits that attended me, I heard none of their Names mentioned, only I ask'd one Spirit which came for fome Nights together, and rung a little Bell in my Ear, what his Name was, who answer'd Ariel. We find that one of the Spirits which attended the Second Sighted P rson, appeared as a Boy, the other as a Girl: but the two that conftantly attended my felf, appear'd both in Womens Habit, they being of a Brown Complexion, and about Three Foot in Stature; they had both black, loofe Network Gowney and with i black Safh about their Middles, and with i the Network appear'd a Gown of d Golden Colear, black, loofe Network Gowns, type with a Colour, with fomewhat of a Light firiking thro' it; their Heads were not dreft with Topknots, but they had white Linnen Caps on, with Lace on them, about three Fingers breadth, and over it they had a Black loofe Network Hood.

As the forefaid Second Sighted Perfon, fitting by the Fire with others in the Winter-time. would fee Spirits standing by, and often feem angry and difturbed, tho' nothing visible to others mov'd him; fo, as I have been fitting by the Fire with others, I have feen feveral Spirits, and pointed to the places where they were, telling the Company they were there. And one Spirit, whom I heard calling to me. as he ftood behind me, on a fudden, clapt his Finger to my Side, which I fenfibly perceived, and started at it; and as I faw one Spirit come in at the Door, which I did not like, I fuddenly laid hold of a pair of Tonges, and ftruck at him with all my force, whereupon he Vanish'd.

As in the Fifth Particular above Written: He faid that the Gift of the Second Sight is very troublefome to those that have it, and they would gladly be rid of it. So I must declare, that I would not for the whole World, undergo what I have undergone, upon Spirits coming twice to me; their first coming was most dreadful to me, the thing being then altogether new, and confequently more furprifing, tho' at the first coming they did not appear to me, but only called to me at my Chamber Windows, Rung Bells, Sung to me, and play'd on Musick, &c. but the last coming alfo carried terrour enough; for when they came, being only Five in Number, the Iwa

Two Women before mentioned, and Three Men (though afterwards, there came Hundreds) they told me they would kill me, if I told any Perfon in the Houfe, of their being there, which put me in fome Confternation, and I made a Servant fit up with me Four Nights in my Chamber, before a Fire, it being in the Christmas Holydays, telling no Person of their being there. One of these Spirits in Womans drefs, lay down upon my Bed by me every Night: and told me, if I Slept, the Spirits would kill me, which kept me waking for three Nights: In the mean time a near Relation of Mine, went (tho' unknown to me) to a Phyfician of my acquaintance, defiring him to prefcribe me fomewhat for Sleeping; which he did, and a Sleeping Potion was brought me, but I fet it by, being very defirous and inclined enough to Sleep without it. The Fourth Night I could hardly forbear Sleeping, but the Spirit lying on the Bed by me, told me again, I fhould be Kill'd if I Slept, whereupon I rofe, and fat by the Fire fide, and in a while return'd to my Bed; and fo I did a Third time, but was still threatned as before: whereupon I grew impatient, and ask'd the Spirits what they would have? told them, I had done the part of a Christian, in humbling my felf to God, and fear'd them not, and rofe from my Bed, took a Cane, and knock'd at the Ceiling of my Chamber, a near Relation of mine lying then over me, who prefently rofe, and came down to me, about two of the Clock in the Morning; to whom I faid, you have feen me disturbed these Four Days past, and that I have not Slept, the occasion of it was, that Five Spirits which are now

now in the Room with me, have threatned to kill me if I told any Perfon of their being here, or if I Slept, but I am not able to forbear Sleeping longer, and acquaint you with it, and now ftand in defiance of them; and thus I exerted my felf about them, and notwithftanding their continual Threats, I Slept very well the next Night, and continued fo to do, tho' they continued with me above Three Months, Day and Night.

A Gentleman having lately fupply'd me with another Account, concerning the Second Sighted Perfons, which was fent fome Years fince to a Lady, by a Perfon of whom fhe had defired it. I fhall here fet down the particulars of it, as follows.

I. He fays the more general Account given of the Second Sighted Perfons, is, that many Highlanders, but far more Islanders are qualified with this Sight. That Men, Women and Children, are indifferently gifted with it; fome Children have it, whofe Parents have it not, and fome Parents have it, whofe Children have it not; fome adult Persons have it, who had it not in their Youth, and cannot tell by what means or caufe it was produc'd in them. It is a great trouble to those that have it, and they would be rid of it at any rate. The Sight is of no long duration, continuing for the most part, but as long as they can keep their Eyes steady, without twinkling; the most Assured therefore fix their look, that they fee the longer, but the Timerous fee only by glances, their Eyes always trembling at the first sight of the object.

II. That which is feen generally by them, is the fpecies of Living Creatures, and of Inanimate amimate things, as Ships, and the Habits upon Perfons: They never fee the Species of any Person already Dead; what they foresee fails not to exift in the mode and place where it appears to them; they cannot well know what space of time shall intervene betwixt the Apparition and the real Existence, but fome of the boldeft and longeft experienced have some Rules of Conjectures. As if they fee a Man with a Shroud in the Apparition, they will conjecture at the nearnefs, or remotenefs of his Death, by the more or lefs of his Body that is cover'd with it. They will ordinarily fee their absent Friends, tho' at a great diftance; fometimes no lefs than from America to Scotland, fitting, or standing, or walking in fome certain place, and then they conclude with affurance, that they shall fee them so, and there. If a Man be in Love with a Woman, they ordinarily fee that Man ftanding by her, and fo if a Woman be in Love. They conjecture of their enjoyments by the Species touching the Perfon, or appearing at a diftance from her. If they fee the Species of a Person, who is Sick in any other place, in an Healthful Pasture, or Action, they conclude a recovery; but if they are to Dye, they fee them cover'd with 2 Winding-Sheet.

These generals were verified to Persons of Honour, by such of them as did See, and were esteem'd Honest and Sober by all the Neighbourhood. And because there were more of these Seers, in the Isles of Lews, Harris and Vist, than elsewere, some Persons of Quality intreated Sir James Macdanel, who is now dead, Sir Norman Maclod, and Mr. Daniel niel Morifon, a very honeft Minister, who are ftill alive, to inquire into this Sight, and to acquaint them therewith, which they did, and all of them found an agreement in these generals, and Informed them of many particular and notorious Instances, confirming what they faid.

He fets down fome remarkable Inftances, which he fays were of very knowing and ingenious Perfons, who had made it their bufinefs to be well informed concerning the Second Sight; which Inftances being not Printed in any other Author, that I know of, I fhall infert them here.

The First Instance, he fays, is from a Perfon of great Learning, and eminent Quality, who gave the following Relation.

I was once Travelling in the Highlands. with many Servants, one of them going a little before me, and entring into a Houfe, where I was to ftay all Night, fuddenly ftept back with a fcreech and a noife, and fell by a Stone which hit is Foot : I askt what the matter was (for he look'd as one very much Frighted) he told me very ferioufly, I must not Lodge in that Houfe; I ask'd why? he faid, he wish'd fo, because a Dead Corps would very shortly be carried out of it, and that feveral Perfons carrying of it, met him at the Door, when I heard him cry; and therefore he would not have me Lodge in fo unlucky a place; and feeing me Laugh and go in, he faid to the other Servants, he was very forry I did fo, for he was fure what he faw would very fhortly come to pafs; this made me inquire if there were any fick Perfon in the Houfe, but there was none; the Land-

Landlord was a ftrong Healthy Highlander, yet before I went from the House, the next Day, he Died of an Apoplectick Fit.

The Second Inflance is from another Perfon, who writes thus.

In the Year 1653. Alexander Monro, who was afterwards Lieutenant Collonel to the Earl of Dunbarton's Regiment, and my felf were walking in a place called Ulabill in Logh: Broome, in a little Plain at the foot of a rugged Hill; there was a Man working with a Spade, in the walk before us, and his Face to the Hill; he did not mind us as we past near him, which made me look at him, and perceiving him to ftare a little ftrangely, I conjectured him to be a Seer, I called him, at which he ftared and fmiled : what are you doing faid I? he answered me, I have seen a very ftrange thing; an Army of Englishmen, lead. ing their Horfes down that Hill, and a number of them are come down to the Plain, and eating the Barley which is growing in the Field, near to the Hill. This was on the Fourth of May, for I noted the Day, and it was Four or Five Days before the Barly was Sown in the Field he spoke of. Alexander Monro ask'd him, how he knew they were Englishmen? he faid because they had on Hatts and Boots, which he knew no Scots would have there; we as little fet by what he faid, as other foolifh Visions, but in the beginning of August following, the Earl of Middleton, then Lieutenant for the King in the Highlands, having occasion to march a Party towards the South Highlands, fent his Foot thro' a place called Innerlawel, but was forced to fend his Horfe, with Alexander Monro to pals down H the

the very forementioned Hill, as lefs rugged, tho' bad enough, than that of Innerlawel; and the formoft Party, which was first down the Hill, fell to eating the Barly, on the little Plain under it; and Monro call'd to mind what the Seer-had told us, in May before; he writ of it, and fent an express to me with it.

The Relator of the Third Instance writes as follows.

I had once an occasion of being in Company with a Young Lady, and was told there was a notable Seer in the Company; I call'd him to fpeak with me (as I did ordinarily when I found any of them) and as he had answered me to several Questions, I ask'd him if he knew any Perfon to be in Love with that Lady, he faid he certainly knew that there was a Man in Love with her (but he did not know the Man) for in the Two Days he had been in Company with her, he perceived one flanding near her, and his Head leaning on her Shoulder; which he faid, according to his Observations, foretold, that the Man would Marry her. This was in the Year 1655. I defired him to describe the Perfon, which he did, fo that I could conjecture by the description, it was such an one of the Lady's Acquaintance, tho' there were no thought of their Marriage, till Two Years after; and happening, in the Year 1657. to find this Seer, who was an Islander, in Company with the other Perfon, whom I conjectured to have been described by him; I call'd him aside, and ask'd him, if that were the Perfon he faw by the Lady's fide, Two Years ago? he faid it was truly the fame, and he had feen that Lady just then standing by him Hand Hand in Hand. This was fome few Months before their Marriage; and the Man is fince Dead, and the Lady ftill alive.

The Fourth Inftance is thus.

In January 1652. (fays one of great Note) Lieutenant Collonel Monro, and my felf hapned to be in the Houfe of one William Maclod of Ferrinlia in Roffe, the faid Monro, the Landlord and my felf fitting in Three Chairs near the Fire, and in the corner of a great Chimney were two Monders, who came that very Night to the House, and were related to the Landlord: while one of them was talking to Monro, I perceived the other to look odly towards me; from his Look, and being an Islander, I conjectured him a Seer, and ask'd him what he ftar'd at? he anfwered by defiring me to rife from that Chair, becaufe it was an unlucky one. I ask'd him why? he faid there was a Dead Man in the Chair next to me: well, faid I, if he be in the Chair next me, I may keep my own, but what kind of Man is he? he faid he was a tall Man, with a long grey Coat, having Boots on, and one of his Leggs hanging over the arm of the Chair, and his Head hanging down to the other fide, and his Arm backward, as if it were broken. There were fome Troops of English-Men then Quartered near that place, and there being at that time a great Frost after a Thaw, the Country was covered all over with Ice: Four or Five of the English Riding by this House, some Two Days after the Vision; while we were litting by the Fire, we heard a great Noife, which proved to be these Troopers, who with the help of other Servants, were carrying one of H 2 their their Number, who had got a very mifchievous fall, and his Arm Broken, and falling frequently into Swooning Fits, they brought him into the Hall, and fet him in the very Chair, and in the very Pofture the Seer had defcribed; but the Man did not Die, tho' he recovered with great difficulty.

The Fifth Instance is taken from the Account given in by Sir Norman Maclod.

There was a Gentleman in the Ile of Harris, who was always feen by the Seers, with an Arrow in his Thigh: Those in the Isle who thought these Prognoffications Infallible, did not doubt but he would be Shot in the Thigh, and Die of it. Sir Norman faid, he always heard it the Subject of their Difcourfes for many Years, when that Gentleman was prefent, at last he Died without any fuch Accident; Sir Norman was at his Burial, at St. Clement's Church in the Ille of Harris. At the fame time another Gentleman was brought to be Buried in the fame Church. The Friends on either fide came to a debate who should first enter the Church, and from Words came to Blows; one who was Arm'd with a Bow and Arrows let fly amongft them (every Family in that Iste, have their Burying Places in the Church, in a Stone Cheft, and their Bodies are carried in open Biers to the Burial Place.) Sir Norman having appealed the Tumult, One of the Arrows was found flicking in the Dead Man's Thigh. To this Sir Norman himfelf was Witnefs. Mr. Aubrey, in his Account of the Second Sight, has a Relation much of the fame with this, tho' with fome variation.

The

The Sixth Instance is taken from the Account which Mr. Daniel Morifon, Minister in the Isle of Lewis, gave in.

This Relation, tho' fomewhat of a different Nature from the others, may be worth Notice. He tells us of a Young Woman in his Parifh, who was mightily Frighted by feeing her own Image ftill before her, when fhe went into the open Air, the Back of the Image being always towards her: So that it was not a Reflection, as in a Mirror, but the Species of fuch a Body as her own, and in the very fame Habit; the Minifter kept her a long while with him, but fhe had no Remedy, till fhe was about Four or Five Years Elder, and then it left her.

The Gentleman who writ the foregoing Relations, in a Letter to a Lady, adds in the close of it, that in order to folve the Phanomenon of the Second Sight, a hint may be taken from this Image, which appeared to the Woman abovementioned, and from fuch another mention'd by Aristotle, in the Fourth Book of his Metaphylicks; as also from that common Opinion that Young Infants fee Apparitions, which are not feen by Elder Eyes; and likewife from this, that feveral who have had the Second Sight, when in the Highlands, or Illes, upon their being transported to Live in other Countries, especially in America, lose this quality, as it's reported by Gentlemen, who knew some of them in Barbadoes, that faw no Visions there, tho' they were known to have been Seers, when they lived in the Mes of Scotland.

Lau-

Laurentius Ananias, Printed & Book in Latin, at Venice. An. 1581. concerning the nature of L.2. circa Daemons, where he writes fomewhat which finem. feems ally'd to this Gift of the Second Sight. It is thus.

> Some Dæmons fo miferably delude fome Old Women, and Children, that they certainly perfwaded themfelves, that on fet Nights, and at fet Hours, their Souls being called, depart from their Bodies, and joyn themfelves to the Souls of the Dead; which proceeds but from Damons corrupting the Imagination of those Creatures, thro' Infidelity after that manner; and as they relate this to credulous Old Women, they Predict the Deaths of certain Perfons; and if the event fometimes anfwers, they confidently affirm, even upon their Oath, that they were Souls from whom they had it, when in truth they are nothing but Illusions of the Devil, perverting their Fancy; which error has poffeft the Minds of fome Perfons, above the Vulgar: though it hence appears they are all under a delusion; for it hapned fome Years fince, that in a Town where fome Perfons were found obnoxious to these affects and illusions of the Devil, one Mark Antony, who was look'd upon as an Honeft Upright Perfon, no way given to fpeak Untruths, was feized with it, and often gave true Predictions concerning certain Perfons, especially fuch as were near their Deaths: this Man being fent for by my Brother, Febn Antony Amanias, who is a Prieft, and he coming to him, my Brother ask'd him, whether what was reported of him were true, and he did not deny it, whereupon my Brother advised him to quit that erronious Opinion, telling telling him, that those could not possibly be the Souls of the Dead, but that they were deceitful Damons, and that he greatly offended God in giving Credit to them, wherefore he begg'd him, that for Gods fake, and the wellfare of his Soul, as he perceived that Damomaical feizure coming upon him, (as he always perceived it beforehand) or, when he began to be feized with it, he would ferioully proteft against obeying them any longer, and that he would earneftly Pray to God to Free him from that Diabolical Delusion and Madness of Mind. Mark Antony being somewhat aftonished at what was faid to him, believed my Brother, and promifed him to follow his Advice, to the utmost of his Power, and fo went Home, and when the usual Day came, that he was obnoxious to those Illusions, he was not feiz'd with them, and was very Joyful, and gave God thanks for it. But upon the next return of the Day, and Hour (for he was not wont to be Infefted with those IIlufions every Day of the Week, but only Tuesdays and Thursdays) finding his wonted feizure coming upon him, and that he was called by those unclean Spirits, and being greatly afflicted in Mind by their Signs, he cry'd out with great Vehemency, that he would no longer follow them. Upon which outcry, almost all the People in the House were Awaken'd, and went to him, to whom he related all that had paft, and fhew'd how he was feverely Beaten by those Spirits, and from that time he was wholly freed from them; for which he gave God great Thanks,

Note,

Note, in Reference to this Relation, what is written by Henry Boguet, a Judge in Cafes of Witchcraft, in the Country of St. Claude, in Burgundy, concerning the particular Nights on which Witches have their Sabbaths, or meetings. In his Discourse of Witches, printed in French, at Lyons, 1605. Chap.19. he writes as follows,

I formerly thought that the Sabbath was held only Thursday Nights, because all the Witches, I have feen, have fo declar'd: but fince that I have read that fome of them have confess'd, they affembled, fome the Night betwixt Monday and Tausday, fome the Night betwixt Friday and Saturday; others the Night preceeding Thursday, or Sunday; thence I have concluded, that there is no Day prefixt for their Sabbath, but that the Witches go to it when the Devil requires them. I shall add here, that Antide Coles, a Witch, confess'd, she had been at the Sabbath, each good Day of the Year, as at Christmas, Easter, and the like Holidays. So far Boguet.

Conformably to the Relation of Laurentius Ananias, I have been well inform'd of a Woman in Glouceftershire, who, when any Person of the Neighbourhood was taken Ill, would generally predict their Death, or recovery, and was much reforted to on that Account; at length she was seized, and had to an Assist at Gloucester, concerning this Fact; where being ask'd by the Judge, how she came by her knowledge, as to the Death or Recovery of Perfons sick; she told him, she could give no other Account of it, but that when any Person was was fick, and fhe had a Mind to know the Iffue, a Jury of Fairies came to her in the Night time, who confider'd of the Matter; and if afterwards they look'd cheerful, the Party would recover; if they look'd fad, he would die. Nothing elfe being brought againft the Woman, fhe was clear'd. The Perfon from whom I had this Information, was a Justice of Peace of that County, then on the Bench. And here I must fay, that before I heard this Relation, or had read Amanias, I faw a Jury of Fairies, or Gbofts, or what you please to call them, fummon'd, and pais a Verdict on a Perfon known to me.

Cardan tells us, That Genii fometimes ap-De Rer. pear fad before the Deaths of Perfons, and var. 1. 15. gives an inftance in Inlian the Emperor, who c, 78. being near Clefiphon, and fludying Philofophy, faw his Genins looking fad (whom formerly he had feen in France, looking cheerfully, and I know not what Verfes foretelling the Death of Confrantius, and confequently his Happinefs) and the Horn of Amalthæa, with which the Genins of the Republick was wont to be drawn, being fhut, and his Chamberlane, or Steward of his Houfe, going from him, and fo the next Day the Emperor was kill'd.

Baptista Fulgosus tells us, That fometimes the L. 1. fatt. Spirits remain inclos'd in Humane Bodies, & dict. but their Motions are so occult, and the Senses Memorab. so bound, that we cannot easily know whe-c. 6. ther those Bodies are alive, or not: Hence fome are faid to be rais'd from the dead, who were never really dead, experience having shewn they were still living; of these Persons fome relate wonderful things, as that they had been where they never were; but their Spirit rit being collected in it felf, comprehends, and fees those things, which being in its usual State, through various distracted Thoughts, by reason of the Corporeal Sight, it does not know. As St. Auftin teftifies, of one Curina, who liv'd in the Country of Hippo, in Africa, and falling into an ill Diftemper, was look'd upon by all Men as in a manner dead, having loft his Senfes, fo that he took no Food; and having continued in this State for fome Days, his Friends would have buried him, only they perceiv'd a little breathing at his Noftrils, but when afterwards all Perfons thought him to be departed, on a fudden, opening his Eyes, he defir'd that fome one fhould be prefently fent to Curina, the Blackfinith, his Neighbour, to fee how he did, and when it was found he was dead at that very hour, he affirm'd, that he was led before a certain Judge, who vehemently chid those Spirits by whom himself was brought before him, becaufe he would have Curina the Blacksmith, and not him, and for that caufe he was reftor'd to Life. In this Extafy he faid, he faw Paradife, and many other things; and among others, that he was baptiz'd by St. Austin, at Hippo, and he was admonish'd to to be, because what then feem'd to be done was a Vision; therefore being reftor'd to his Health, he had fulfil'd what he was admonish'd.

In Dife. de excel. G dig. hominis.

be So, as Bonayfeau tells us, The Spirit of Hermotinus, as it feem'd, leaving his Body as dead, wandred about various Places, and afterwards related those things which could be known only by those Persons, which were present to the things themselves. Herodotus, and Maximus Tyrias write the same of Arifxus.

Possidenius tells us, That a certain Rhodian dying, nominated fix of his equals, and faid, who should die first, who next, and so on, and the Event answer'd the Prediction.

A Vision which happen'd to the Ingenious and Learned Dr. Denne, may not improperly be here inferted. Mr. Ifaac Walton, writing the Life of the faid Doctor, tells us, That the Doctor and his Wife, living with Sir Robert Drury, who gave them a free Entertainment at his House in Drury-lane; It happen'd that the Lord Hy, was by King James fent in an Ambasy to the French King, Henry the Fourth ; whom Sir Robert refolv'd to accompany, and ingag'd Dr. Donne to go with them, whole Wife was then with Child at Sir Robert's House. Two Days after their arrival at Paris, Dr. Donne was left alone, in that Room, in which Sir Robert, and he, and fome other Friends had dined together. To this place Sir Robert return'd within half an hour; and as he left, fo he found Dr. Donne alone ; but in fuch an Extafy, and fo alter'd in his Looks, as amaz'd Sir Robert to behold him, infomuch, that he earneftly defir'd Dr. Donne to declare what had befall'n him in the fhort time of his absence. To which Dr. Donne was not able to make a prefent Anfwer; but after a long and perplext Paufe, did at last fay, I have feen a dreadful Vision since I faw you; I have feen my Dear Wife passtwice by me through this Room, with her Hair hanging about her Shoulders, and a dead Child in her Arms: this I have feen fince I faw you. To which Sir Robert reply'd, fure, Sir, you have flept fince I faw you, and this is the refult of fome Melancholy Dream, which I defire you to forget, for you are now awake. To which Dr.

Dr. Donne's reply was, I cannot be furer that I now live, than that I have not flept fince I faw you, and am as fure at her fecond appearing fhe ftopt, and look'd me in the Face and vanish'd. Rest and Sleep had not alter'd Dr. Donne's Opinion the next Day ; for he then affirm'd this Vision with a more deliberate, and fo confirm'd a Confidence, that he inclin'd Sir Robert to a faint belief, that the Vision was true; who immediately fent a Servant to Druy-Houfe, with a Charge to haft'n back, and bring him word whether Mrs. Donne were alive; and if alive, in what Condition she was as to her Health; the Twelfth Day the Meffenger return'd with this Account : That he found and left Mrs. Donne very fad, and fick in Bed; and that after a long and dangerous Labour, she had been deliver'd of a dead Child; and upon Examination the Abortion prov'd to be the fame Day, and about the very hour that Dr. Donne affirm'd he faw her pass by in his Chamber. Mr. Walton adds, This is a Relation which will beget fome wonder, and well it may, for most of our World are at prefent poffess'd with an Opinion, that Visions and Miracles are ceas'd; and though 'tis most certain, that two Lutes, being both ftrung and tun'd to an equal pitch, and then one play'd upon, the other, that is not touch'd, being lay'd upon a Table at a fit Distance, will (like an Eccho to a Trumpet) warble a faint audible Harmony, in Answer to the fame tune, yet many will not believe that there is any fuch thing as a Sympathy with Souls, O.C.

Aŋ

An Ancient, and Learned Gentleman, now living, and well known in London, has told me, that being at a Widow Gentlewoman's House, about seven Miles from London, one Day about three of the Clock in the Afternoon, he retir'd to his Chamber; where he had not long been, but a ftrange Light, fuch as he had never feen before, appear'd in the Room, in which Light, he faw a Child of the Gentlewoman of the House, which had been left fick in London, lye dead, as also a Friend of his own; he was much furpriz'd at this, and after the thing was over, he went down from his Chamber to the Gentlewoman of the Houfe; and as he had been defir'd to come tho' next Day, to the House of a Lady, who liv'd in the fame Parish, he desir'd the foresaid Gentlewoman to fend word to the Lady, that he could not wait on her the next Day, as he had promis'd, for he knew that both the faid Gentlewoman and himfelf should be sent for to London; and then he told the Gentlewoman what had pass'd; and in a while a Coach came for them from London accordingly. The fame Gentleman told me, that upon his falling into a Trance at Cambridge, he faw alfo a Friend of his dead in London, who upon enquiry was found to have died just at the time he faw him.

Cardan gives a Relation fomewhat of this De Rer. Nature as follows: My Kinfinan Baptifta Car-var. 1.8. dan, fludying at Pavia, on a certain Night ^{c. 24.} tryed to make a little Fire as he rofe, and in the interim heard a Voice fay, farewel my Son, I am going to Rome; and he faw a vaft Splendor, as that of a bundle of Straw all on Fire; being affrighted, and throwing by the Fire-Shovel, Shovel, he hid himfelf under his Bed-cloaths. till his School-fellows return'd from the Academy; upon their return, thinking him to be fick, they knock'd at his Door, he open'd it, and they asking him the caufe of his flay there. he answer'd, he thought his Mother was dead, and told them what he had feen and heard, and wept withal: They turn'd the thing to a Jeft, fome laughing at him, fome comforting him; the Day following, having heard nothing of his Mother's fickness, he was certifyed of her Death, and that the expir'd at that very hour that he perceiv'd those things. The Town Cardan is distant Two and Forty Miles from Pavia. That Man was not given to Lyes, vain or fuperstitious, and who faid he had never feen, or heard any preternatural thing till then.

A Book newly coming to my Hands, which contains a more particular Account, in fome refpects, of the Second fight in Scotland, than any I have met with, I shall give here fome Account of it.

Mr. M. Martin, Printed the laft Year in London, a Book in 80. intitl'd, A Description of the Western Isles of Scotland, call'd by the ancient Geographers Hebrides. It contains many curious Particulars, relating to the Natural and Civil History of those Islands, with a Map of them, and in his Preface he tells us, that perhaps its peculiar to those Isles, that they have never been described till now by any Man, that was a Native of the Country, or had travelled them, as himself has done; and in the Conclution of the faid Preface, he tells us, he has given here fuch an Account of the Second fight, as the Nature of the thing will bear, and which has always always been reckon'd fufficient among the unbyafs'd part of Mankind; but for those that will not be fo fatisfyed, they ought to oblige us with a new Scheme, by which we may judge of Matters of Fact. The chief particulars he has giv'n us concerning the Second fight are, in a Chapter by it felf, as follows.

I. In the Second fight the Vision makes such a lively Impression on the Secre, that they neither see, nor think of any thing else, but the Vision, as long as it continues; and then they appear pensive, or jovial, according to the Object, which was presented to them.

II. At the fight of a Vision, the Eye-lids of the Perfon are erected, and the Eyes continue ftaring till the Object vanish, as has often been observed by the Author, and others prefent.

III. There is one in Skye, an Acquaintance of whom obferv'd, that when he fees a Vifion, the inner part of his Eye-lids turns fo far upwards, that after the Object difappears, he muft draw them down with his Fingers; and fometimes employs others to draw them down, which he finds to be much the eafter way.

IV. The faculty of the Second fight does not lineally defeend in a Family, as fome imagine, for he knows feveral Parents that are endow'd with it, but not their Children; and fo on the contrary, neither is it acquir'd by any previous compact; and after a ftrict enquiry, he could never learn from any among them, that this faculty was communicable any way whatfoever.

Note, That this Account is differing from the Account giv'n before from Mr. Aubrey. And I think Mr. Martin's reason here against the descent of this faculty from Parents to Children Children, is not generally conclusive, for tho' he may know Parents endow'd with it, and not Children, and fo on the contrary, yet there may be Parents who are endow'd with it, being qualifyed as Mr. Aubrey has faid, (viz. both being Second fighted) whofe Children may have it by defcent. And as to this faculty's being any other ways communicable, (fince the Accounts differ) I must leave it to a farther Examination.

V. The Seer knows neither the object, time, nor place of a Vision before it appears, and the fame Object is often feen by different Perfons, living at a confiderable diffance from one another. The true way of judging, as to the time, and circumftance of an Object, is by Obfervation; for feveral Perfons of Judgment, without this faculty, are more capable to judge of the defign of a Vision, than a Novice that is a Seer. As an Object appears in the Day or Night, it will come to pass fooner or later accordingly.

VI. If an Object be feen early in the Morning (which is not frequent) it will be accomplifh'd in a few Hours afterwards : If at Noon, it will commonly be accomplifh'd that very Day : If in the Evening, perhaps that Night : if after Candles be lighted, it will be accomplifh'd that Night : it's later always in accomplifhment by Weeks, Months, and fometimes Years, according to the time of the Night the Vifion is feen.

VII. When a Shroud is perceiv'd about one, it's a fure Prognoflick of Death; the time is judg'd according to the height of it, about the Perfon; for if it be not feen above the middle, Death is not to be expected for the fpace of a Year, and perhaps fome Months longer; and as it is frequently feen to afcend higher towards the Head, Death is concluded to be at Hand within a few Days, if not Hours, as daily Experience confirms. Examples of this kind were fhown the Author, when the Perfons of whom the Obfervations were made, enjoy'd perfect Health.

There was one inftance lately of a Prediction in this kind by a Seer, that was a Novice, concerning the Death of one of the Author's Acquaintance; this was communicated to a few only, and with great Confidence; the Author being one of the Number, did not in the leaft regard it, till the Death of the Perfon, about the time foretold, confirm'd to him, the certainty of the Prediction; the forefaid Novice is now a skilful Seer, as appears from many late inftances: he lives in the Parifh of St. Mary's, the most Northern in Skye.

VIII. If a Woman be feen flanding at a Man's left Hand, it's a prefage that fhe will be his Wife, whether they are Marryed to cthers, or Unmarryed at the time of the Apparition. If two or three Women are feen at once standing near a Man's left Hand, she that is next him will undoubtedly be his Wife first, and fo on, whether all three, or the Man be fingle, or Marryed at the time of the Vition, or not, of which there are feveral late inftances of the Author's Acquaintance. It's an ordinary thing for them to fee a Man that is to come to the House shortly after; and if he be not of the Seer's Acquaintance, yet he gives fuch a lively Defcription of his Stature, Complexion, Habit, &c. that upon his Arrival he Answersthe Character giv'n of him, in 112 all refpects. If the Perfon fo appearing be one of the Seer's Acquaintance, he can tell by his Countenance whether he comes in good or bad Humour. The Author has been feen thus by Seers of both Sexes, at fome Hundreds of Miles diftance : Somethat faw him in this manner, had never feen him Perfonally, and it happen'd according to their Visions, without any previous Defign of his to go to those places, his coming there being purely Accidental. And in the 19th Page of his Book, he tells us, that Mr. Daniel Morifon, a Minister, told him, that upon his Landing in the Island Rona, the Natives receiv'd him very affectionately, and Addrefs'd themfelves to him with this Salutation. God fave you, Pilgrim ! you are heartily welcome here, for we have had repeated Apparitions of your Perfon among us, viz. after the manner of the Second Sight.

IX. It's ordinary with them to fee Houfes, Gardens, and Trees, in places void of all three, and this in Procefs of time uses to be accomplish'd; of which he gives an instance in the Island of Skye.

X. To fee a fpark of Fire fall upon ones Arm, or Breaft, is a fore-runner of a dead Child to be feen in the Arms of those Persons, of which there are feveral fresh Instances.

To fee a Seat empty at the time of ones fitting in it, is a prefage of that Perfons Death quickly after.

When a Novice, or one that has lately obtain'd the Second fight, fees a Vision in the Night time without Doors, and comes near a Fire, he prefently falls into a Swoon.

Some

Some find themfelves, as it were, in a crowd of People, having a Corps which they carry a long with them; and after fuch Visions the Seers come in fweating, and defcribe the People that appear'd; if there are any of their Acquaintance among them, they give an Account of their Names, and also of the Beaters, but they know nothing concerning the Corps.

All those that have the Second fight, do not always fee these Visions at once, though they are together at the time; but if one who has this faculty defignedly touch his Fellow Seer, at the instant of a Visions appearing, then the second sees it as well as the first.

XI. There is a way of foretelling Death, by a Cry, that they call Taisk, which fome call a Wrath, in the Low-land. They hear a loud Cry without Doors, exactly refembling the Voice of fome particular Perfon, whofe Death is foretold by it; of which he gives a late inftance which happen'd in the Village Rigg, in Skye Ifle.

XII. Things are also foretold by Smelling fometimes, as follows: Fish, or Flesh is frequently smelt in the Fire, when at the fame time neither of the two are in the House, or, in any probability like to be had in it, for fome Weeks, or Months. This smell several Perfons have, who are endued with the Second sight, and its always accomplish'd foon after.

XIII. Children, Horfes, and Cows, have the Second fight, as well as Men and Women advanc'd in Years.

That Children fee it is plain, from their crying aloud at the very inftant, that a Corps, or any other Vision appears to an ordinary Seer: Of I 2 which which he gives an inftance in a Child, when himfelf was prefent.

That Horfes fee, it's likewife plain, from their violent and fudden flarting, when the Rider, or Seer, in Company with them, fees a Vision of any kind, Night or Day; it's obfervable of an Horfe that he will not go forward that way, till he be led about at fome diflance from the common Road, and then he is in a sweat; he gives an inflance of this in an Horfe, in the Ifle of Skye.

That Cows have the Second fight, appears from this; that if a Woman Milking a Cow, happens to fee a Vision by the Second fight, the Cow runs away in a great fright at the fame time, and will not be pacifyed for fome time after.

In reference to this, Paracelfus, Tom. 9. 1. de Arte præsagå, writes thus, Horses also have their Auguries, who perceive by the fight and simell wandring Spiris, Witches and Spectres, and the like things; and Dogs, both see and hear the fame things.

Here, in the next place, the Author answers Objections that have lately been made against the reality of the Second fight.

First, It's objected, that these Seers are Vifionary, and Melancholy People, who fancy they fee things that do not appear to them, or any Body elfe.

He Anfwers, The People of these Isles, and particularly the Seers are very Temperate, and their Diet is Simple and Moderate, in Quantity and Quality; so that their Brains are not, in all Probability diforder'd by Undigested fumes of Meat, or Drink. Both Sexes are free from Hysterick Fits, Convulsions, and feveral ral other Diftempers of that fort. There are no Mad-men among them, nor any inftance of felf Murther. It's obferv'd among them, that a Man drunk never has a Vision of the Second fight. And he that is a Visionary, would difcover himfelf in other things, as well as in that; nor are such as have the Second fight, judg'd to be Visionaries by any of their Friends, or Acquaintance.

Secondly, It's objected, That there are none among the Learned, able to oblige the World, with a fatisfactory Account of these Visions, therefore they are not to be believ'd.

He Anfwers, If every thing for which the Learned are not able to give a Satisfactory account, fhall be condemn'd as Falfe and Impoffible, we fhall find many other things, generally believ'd, which must be rejected as fuch.

Thirdly, It's objected, That the Seers are Impoftors, and the People who believe them are Credulous, and eafily impos'd upon.

He Answers, The Seers are generally Illiterate, and well meaning People, and altogether void of Defign, nor could he ever learn that any of them made the least gain of it; neither is it reputable among them to have that faculty : befide, the People of the Isles are not fo Credulous, as to believe an Impoffibility, before the thing foretold be accomplish'd, but when it actually comes to pass, afterwards it is not in their Power to deny it, without offering Violence to their Senfes and Reafon; belide, if the Seers were Deceivers, can it be reasonable to imagine, that all the Islanders, who have not the Second fight, should combine together, and offer Violence to their Underfundings 1 3 ftandings and Senfes, to force themfelvs to believe a Lye from Age to Age? There are feveral Perfons among them, whole Birth and Education raife them above the fulpicion of concurring with an Imposter, merely to gratify an illiterate and contemptible fort of Perfons. Nor can a reasonable Man believe, that Children, Horfes, and Cows could be ingaged in a combination to perfwade the World of the reality of the Second Sight.

Every Vision that is feen, comes exactly to pais, according to the Rules of Observation, tho' Novices and heedless Persons do not always judge by those Rules: concerning which he gives Instances.

There are Visions feen by feveral Perfons, in whofe days they are not accomplished: and this is one of the reasons, why fome things have been seen, that are faid never to have come to pass; and there are also several Visions seen, which are not understood till they are accomplish'd.

The Second Sight is not a late difcovery, feen by one or two in a Corner, or a remote Ith, but its feen by many Perfons, of both Sexes, in feveral Ithes, feparated about Forty or Fifty Leagues from one another; the Inhabitants of many of thefe Ithes, never had the leaft Converfe, by Word or Writing: and this faculty of Seeing Vifions, having continued, as we are informed by Tradition, ever fince the Plantation of thefe Ithes, withcut being difprov'd by the Niceft Sceptick, after the ftricteft Enquiry, feems to be a clear proof of its Reality.

Its

It's observable, that it was much more common Twenty Years ago, than at present; for One in Ten does not see it now, that faw it then.

The Second Sight is not confin'd to the Weftern Ifles alone, the Author having an Account, that its likewife in feveral parts of Hulland, but particularly in Bommel, where a Woman has it, for which fhe is courted by fome, and dreaded by others. She fees a Smoak about ones Face, which is a forerunner of the Death of a Perfon fo feen, and fhe actually foretold the Deaths of feveral that lived there; fhe was living in that Town this laft Winter.

The Second Sight is likewife in the Ifle of Man, as appears by this Instance; Captain Leaths, the chief Commander of Belfast, in his Voyage 1690, lost Thirteen Men by a violent Storm, and upon his Landing in the Isle of Man, an Ancient Man, Clerk to a Parish there, told him immediately, that he had lost Thirteen Men; the Captain enquired how he came to the knowledge of that, he answered, that it was by Thirteen Lights, which he had seen come into the Church-yard; as Mr. Sacheverel tells us, in his late description of the Isle of Man. Note, That this is like the fight of the Corps-Candles in Wales, which is also well attested.

Here the Author adds many other Inftances concerning the Second Sight, of which I shall fet down only a few.

A Man in Knockow, in the Parish of St, Mary's, the Northermost part of Skye, being in perfect Health, and sitting with his fellow Servants, at Night, was on a fudden taken Ill, dropt I 4 from from his Seat backward, and then fell a Vomiting, at which the Family was much concern'd, he having never been subject to the like before; but he came to himfelf foon after, and had no fort of Pain about him. One of the Family who was accustom'd to fee the Second Sight, told them that the Man's Illnefs proceeded from a very ftrange caufe, which was thus. An illnatured Woman (whom he named) who lives in the next adjacent Village of Bornskittag, came before him in a very furious and angry manner, her Countenance full of Paffion, and her Mouth full of Reproaches, and threatned him with her Head and Hands, till he fell over, as you have feen him. This Woman had a Fancy for the Man, but was like to be disappointed as to her Marrying of him. This Inftance was told the Author by the Master of the Family, and others who were prefent when it happened.

Sir Norman Macklead, and fome others, Playing at Tables, at a Game call'd in Irifb, Falmermore, wherein there are Three of a Side, and each of them throw the Dice by turns, there happened to be one difficult Point in the disposing of one of the Table-men; this obliged the Gamester to deliberate before he was to change his Man, fince upon the difpofing of it; the Winning or Lofing of the Game depended; at length the Butler, who ftood behind, advifed the Player, where to place his Man, with which he comply'd, and won the Game. This being thought extraordinary, and Sir Norman hearing one Whilper him in the Ear, ask'd who advifed him fo skilfully? he answer'd it was the Butler; but this seem'd more strange; for he could not Play at Tables. Upon

Upon this Sir Norman ask'd him how long it was fince he had learnt to Play? and the Fellow own'd that he had never Play'd in his Life, but that he faw the Spirit Brownie (a Spirit ufually feen in that Country) reaching his Arm over the Players Head, and touching the part with his Finger, on the Point where the Table-man was to be plac'd. This was told the Author by Sir Norman and others, who happen'd to be prefent at the time.

Daniel Eow, alias Black, an Inhabitant of Bornskittug, who is one of the precifeft Seers in the Ifles, foretold the death of a young Woman, in Minginis, within lefs than 24 Hours before the time, and accordingly fhe Died fuddenly in the Fields; tho' at the time of the Prediction fhe was in perfect Health; but the Shroud appearing clofe about her Head, was the ground of his Confidence, that her Death was at hand.

The fame Perfon, foretold the Death of a Child in his Mafter's Arms, by feeing a fpark of Fire fall on his Left Arm: and this was likewife accomplifh'd foon after the Prediction.

Some of the Inhabitants of Harries, Sailing round the Isle of Sky, with a defign to go to the opposite Main-land, were ftrangely furprifed with an Apparition of Two Men Hanging down by the Ropes that fecured the Maft, but could not conjecture what it meant; they purfued their Voyage, but the Wind turning contrary, they were forced into Broadford, in the Isle of Skye, where they found-Sir Donald Mac Donald keeping a Sheriffs Court, and Two Criminals receiving Sentence of Death there; the Ropes and Maft of that very very Boat were made use of to Hang those Criminals. This was told the Author by feveral who had this Instance related them by the Boat's Crew.

Several Perfons, living in a certain Family, told the Author that they had frequently feen two Men standing at a Gentlewoman's Left Hand, who was their Master's Daughter; they told the Mens Names, and being her equals it was not doubted but fhe would be Marry'd to one of them; and perhaps to the other, after the Death of the First. Sometime after, a Third Man appeared, who feemed always to ftand nearest to her of the Three, but the Seers did not know him, tho' they could defcribe him exactly; and within fome Months after, this Man who was feen laft, actually came to the House, and fully anfwer'd the defcription given of him by those who never faw him, but in a Vision, and he Marry'd the Woman shortly after: they live in the Isle of Skye, and both themfelves and others confirm'd the truth of this Inftance. when the Author faw them.

Archibald Mac Donald, of the Parifh of St. Mary's in the Isle of Skye, being reputed famous for his Skill in foretelling things to come, by the Second Sight, hapning to be in the Village Knockow one Night, and before Supper, told the Family that he had just then feen the strangest thing he ever faw in his Life, viz. a Man, with an ugly long Cap, always shaking his Head; but that the strangest of all was a little kind of an Harp, which he had, with Four Strings only, and that it had Two Hart's Horns fixt in the front of it: all that heard this odd Vision fell a Laughing

Laughing at Archibald, telling him that he was Dreaming, or had not his Wits about him, fince he pretended to fee a thing which had no being, and was not fo much as heard of in any part of the World. All this could not alter Archibald's Opinion, who told them, that they must excuse him, if he Laught at them after the accomplishment of the Vision. Archibald returned to his own House, and within Three or Four Days after, a Man with a Cap, Harp, &c. came to the Houfe, and the Harp, Strings, Horns and Cap answer'd, the defcription of them at first view, and he fhook his Head when he play'd; for he had Two Bells fixed to his Cap. This Harper was a Poor Man, who made himself a Buffoon for his Bread, and was never feen before in those parts, and at the time of the Prediction he was in the Isle of Barray; which is about Twenty Leagues distant from that part of Skye. This Relation is Vouch'd by Mr. Daniel Martin, and all his Family, and fuch as were then prefent, and live in the Village where this happened.

One Daniel Nicholfon, Minister of St. Mary's in Skye, the Parish in which Mr. Archibald Mac Donald liv'd, told the Author, that one Sunday, after Sermon, at the Chappel Uge, he took an occasion to inquire of Archibald, if he still retained that unhappy Faculty of Seeing the Second Sight, and wish'd him to get rid of it, if possible, for faid he, it's no true Character of a Good Man. Archibald was highly displeased, and answered that he hop'd he was no more unhappy than his Neighbours, for feeing what they could not perceive. I had, faid he, as ferious Thoughts as my my Neighbours, in time of hearing a Sermon to Day, and even then I faw a Corps lay'd on the Ground clofe to the Pulpit; and I affure you it will be accomplifh'd fhortly, for it was in the Day time. There were none in the Parifh then Sick, and few are buried at that little Chappel, nay fometimes not one in a Year. Yet when Mr. Nicholfon return'd to Preach in the faid Chappel, a Fortnight, or Three Weeks after, he found one buried in the very Spot, named by Archibald. This Story is Vouch'd by Mr. Nicholfon, and feveral of the Parifhioners ftill living.

Note, That it's an Argument of fomewhat Evil, attending this faculty of the Second Sight, becaufe there are Inftances given of fome Perfons, who have been freed of it, upon using fome Christian Practices.

Sir Norman Mac Lead, who has his Refidence in the Isle of Bernera, which lies between the Illes of N. Vist and Harries, went to the Ise of Skye about Business, without appointing any time for his return; his Servants in his abfence, being all together in the large Hall at Night, one of them, who had the Second Sight, told the reft they must remove, for there would be abundance of other Company in the Hall that Night; one of his Fellow-Servants answered, that there was very little likelyhood of that, because of the Darkness of the Night, and the danger of coming thro' the Rocks, that lie round the Iste: but within an Hour after, one of Sir Norman's Men came to the Houfe, bidding them provide Lights, &c. for his Master had newly Landed.

Sir

Sir Norman being told of this, call'd for the Seer, and examined him about it; he answer'd, that he had seen the Spirit Brownie, in humane shape, come several times, and make a shew of carrying an Old Woman that sate by the Fire, to the Door, and at last, seem'd to carry her out by Neck and Heels, which made him Laugh heartily, and gave occasion to the rest to conclude him Mad, to Laugh so much without any reason. This Instance was told the Author by 'Sir Norman himfelf.

Four Men from the Ille of Skye and Harries, went to Barbadoes, and ftay'd there fome Years, who tho' they had wont to fee the Second Sight in their Native Countrey, never faw it in Barbadoes; but upon their return to England, the First Night after their Landing, they faw the Second Sight; as the Author was told by feveral of their Acquaintance.

John Morifon, who lives in Bernera of Harries, wears the Plant called Fuga Dæmonum, Sewed in the Neck of his Coat, to prevent his feeing of Visions, and fays, he never faw any fince he first carry'd that Plant about him.

A Spirit, by the Country People call'd Brownie, was frequently feen in all the most confiderable Families in the Ifles, and North of Scotland, in the shape of a tall Man, having very long brown Hair: but within these 20 Years past, he has been seen but rarely.

There were Spirits also that appeared in the shape of Women, Horses, Swine, Cats, and some like Fiery Balls, which would follow Men in the Fields; but there have been but but few Instances of these for 40 Years past. These Spirits us'd also to form founds in the Air, refembling those of an Harp, Pipes, the crowing of a Cock, and of the grinding of Hand Mills: and fometimes Voices have been heard in the Air at Night, Singing Irifb Songs; the words of which Songs fome of the Author's Acquaintance still retain; one of them refembled the Voice of a Woman, who died fome time before, and the Song related to her State in the other World. These Accounts the Author fays, he had from Perfons of as great Integrity, as any are in the World. So far Mr. Martin.

As for Sounds in the Air refembling that of Mufical Inftruments, crowings of a Cock, Singing, &c. I have often heard them my felf.

In my reading, I have met with many well attefted Inftances, which may ftrongly induce a belief of what is faid concerning the Second fight: Of which Inftances I shall here give a few.

Sicillus, an Herald to Alphon fus King of Aragon, in his Book entitl'd, Le Blason des Couleurs, writes thus: There is a Town in Italy, call'd Teridon, where this Miracle is wont to happen, if any Citizen or Labourer be to die that Year, when he labours his Field, there clearly appears a great effusion of Blood, and the Blood fignifies a near enfuing Death of the Poffeffor of that Field.

The Lord Henry Howard, in the Book he Chap: 17. writ against Suppos'd Prophesies, writes thus.

It chanc'd, after the Decease of a certain honeft Gent. (whom I forbear to Name in some Respects) the Devil appearing (so he Expressed it) first to one of his Daughters, in his wonted fhape fhape, and with a Voice and Countenance anfwerable; and fo again to another, he brought the Young Woman into fo strange a Condition, that it would have griev'd any Man to have feen them; and this feem'd ftrange withal, that at the time his Appearance haunted them, they could as well tell who came into the House, what they faid and did, &c. as any that were present in their Companies. The like Story, for all the World, is written of Hieronymo an Italian, and likewife of one of the Greek Emperors. So far the Lord Howard; who I think may be look'd upon as an unexceptionable Teftimony, in the Story he relates of his own Knowledge, he having otherwife little Faith in things of this kind.

The Learned Camerarius writes thus : I could Har, fub. eafily Name, and fhew a Man living in my cis. cent.1. Neighbourhood, while I write this, who for- c. 70. merly having been Famous for his Mannagement of Serious Affairs, as well as other ways, has now for many Years been kept under a Guard, becaufe now and then, for certain intervals of time, he is acted by a wonderful and troublefome Spirit; for he does not only (when in a fedate Mind) call many that come to him (though Strangers and fuch as he had never feen before) by their proper Names, and talk to them Pleafantly concerning their Parents, Relations, and the Coats of Arms of their Families, and this as Familiarly as tho' he had been a long time Converfant with them (and which he did to my felf) and if he be in a troubl'd State, mixes Falfe and Obfcene things with what he fays; but alfo fometimes he fpeaks and does other unufual and ftrange things; particularly it was observ'd, that that fome Years fince, about that very time that Cilpar Castalion, Admiral of France, with his Son in Law, and many Noblemen of his Religion, were by furprize kill'd in their Beds at Paris, he had wonderful Visions, from which it might have been gather'd, that fome cruel Enterprize was fomewhere contriv'd and executed. Among other things, the very Night of that cruel Butchery made at Paris, he often cry'd out, all is in Blood; and a little after, fee, fee, what great Troops of Devils do I fee wandring in the Air, on every fide, coming from feveral remote Parts, Congratulating each other, and skipping for Joy, as tho' they had executed fome ftrange and cruel Enterprize, long defir'd by them; but he added. crying out, that all those things were acted out of Germany.

I think this a great inftance from a Learned Man; and if any Men can fatisfie themfelves with Ariftotle, to folve Facts of this Nature, by faying, they are Operations of Melancholy, I leave them to their Fancies. If this Fact, and others fet down before by me may be receiv'd as a Truth, I fee not what difficulty there may be in admitting for a Truth, what is reported of Apollonius Tyanens, viz. that as he was difputing in an open Auditory at Ephefus, he cry'd out on a fudden, that he faw Domitian ftab'd at Rome, at the very time that it was done.

To give one inftance nearer home. There liv'd not many Years fince, a very aged Gentlewoman, in London, in Water-Lane, by Fleet-Srteet, whofe Name was Pight, who was endow'd with a Prophetick Spirit, fhe was very well known to many Perfons, of my Acquaintance, now now living in London. Among others, a Gentleman, whole Candor I can no way fulpect, has told me, that he often reforted to her, as to an Oracle ; and that as foon as he came into her Prefence, fhe would ufually tell him, that fhe knew he was coming, for that fhe had feen his Spirit for fome time before: And without his faying any thing to her, the would commonly tell him, what the Bulinefs was, which he came to confult her about, and what the Event of it would be : Which he always found to fall out, as the faid; and many other Perfons, now living can teftifie the like Lxperience of her, as to themfelves.

Joan. Marcus Marci, in his Philof. vet. Refritu- Part 2. ta, tell us of a Boy feiz'd with the Plague at P. 274. Rome, who being thought dead, on a fudden came to himfelf; and calling his Mafter, told him he had really been in Heaven, and there had underftood how many, and who were to die out the Houfe, and naming them; he affirm'd his Mastar should furvive, and to create a belief of what he faid, he fhew'd that he had learn'd all Languages; and prefently theroupon spake in Greek with his Master; he made a Tryal alfo in other Tongues, by converling with those who were skill'd in them, whereas before he had only learn'd the Roman Language; and when he had liv'd thus three Days, falling into a Rage, he lay'd hold of his Hands with his Teeth, and really died; and the others whom he had nam'd died, his Mafter remaining alive.

To the foregoing Account of the Second Sighted Perfons in Scotland, I shall fubjoin a thing no less ftrange, viz. An Account of the Spectr .fighted Perfons in New-Engl nd; fo call'd, hecaufe upon their being feiz'd with strange Fits, as of Weeping, Laughing, Roaring, Convuĸ LODS, tions, violent Agitations, &c. they were wont to fee the Spectres of those Persons, who they said tormented them.

Mr. Cotton Mather, a Minister of New-England, in his Relation of the Wonders of the invisible World, inferted in his Ecclesiastical History of that Country, Printed in London, An. 1702. in fol. has giv'n us feveral Inftances of this kind, as also of many other Diabolical Operations. And Mr. Robert Calef, a Merchent of Boston, in New-England, has giv'n us a pretty full Account of the fame, in his Book, intitl'd, More wonders of the invisible World, or, The wonders of the invisible World display'd, in five Parts, Printed in London, An. 1700 in 40. And whereas thefe two Authors feem to differ in Opinion, the former thinking things to have been real, and proceeding from the Operations of Evil Spirits, and the later looking upon them generally to have been Illusion and Imposture, Ishall give here an Abstract of both, for Men to fee what they may Rationally judge in the Matter.

Chap. 7.

Mr. Mather, in the fixth Book of the faid Hiftory, relates many of these Facts, and that with all fincerity, as he declares, and fays, that no Rational Man of all that Country ever queftion'd them.

His Firft Inftance is of one Anne Cole, a Perfon of ferious Picty (as he writes) living in the Houfe of her Godly Father at Hartford in New-England; who, An. 1662. was taken with ftrange Fits, fo that fhe would express ftrange things, unknown to her felf, her Tongue being guided by a Damon. The general purport of her Difcourfe was, that fuch and fuch Perfons, whom fhe nam'd, were confudring how they might carry on Mifchieyous Defigns againft her, and feveral others, by afflicting their Bodies, or deftroying their good Names. One of the Perfons mention'd by her, was named Green (mith, who was then in Prifon on fufpicion of Witchcraft, and was brought before the Magiltrates; to whom the Ministers, who had taken Notes of what Anne Cole had faid, reading what they had written, fhe with Aftonishment confess"d, that the things were fo, and that her felf with other Perfons, nam'd in the Paper, had Familiarity with the Devil, who told her, that at Christmas they would have a Merry meeting, when the Agreement betwixt them should be fubscrib'd : The declar'd, that her Devil appear'd to her first in the shape of a Deer, skipping about her, and at length, in that shape talk'd to her, and that the Devil had frequently Carnal Knowledge of her. On this Confession, with other concurring Evidences, the Woman was executed, and other Perfons accus'd made their escape; whereupon Anne Cole was deliver'd of her extraordinary Vexations.

The Second Inftance is Elizabeth Kn.p, who in October, 1671. was taken after a very ftrange manner, Weeping, Laughing, Roaring, with violent Agitations, $\mathcal{O}_{c.}$ and had a Deemon fpeaking in her; among other things, file cry'd out in her Fits, that a certain Woman in the Neighbourhood appear'd unto her, and was the only caufe of her Affliction; the Woman thus cry'd out on was a very Vertuous Perfor, who, by the Advice of her Friends, vifited the afflicted, who though fhe were in her Fits, and had her Eyes wholly flut, yet when the innocent Woman was coming in, fhe fhew'd her felf wonderful fenfible of it, and was in great Agonies at her approach; but the in-K 2 nocent Woman pray'd earneftly with, and for this poffefs'd Creature; whereupon, as fhe came to her felf, fhe confefs'd fhe had been deluded by Satan, who, in the fhape of divers Perfons, cruelly tormented her after divers Manners, and then told her it was not himfelf, but they were her Tormentors.

The Third Instance is of the House of Mr. William Morfe of Newbury, which, An. 1679. was infefted with Dæmons, not unlike the Dæmon of Tedworth. Bricks, Sticks, Stones, Pieces of Wood, &c. were often thrown at the House, a long Staff danc'd up and down the Chimny, and afterward was hung on a Line, and fwung to and fro; an Iron Crook was violently hurryed about by an invisible hand; and a Chair flew about the Room, till at last it light on the Table, where Meat flood ready to be Eaten, and was like to have fpoil'd all. A Cheft was by an invisible Hand carry'd from one place to another, and the Doors Barricado'd, and the Keys of the Family taken, fome of them, from the Bunch, where they were tyed, and the reft flying about with aloud Noife of their Knocking against one another; and many other unaccountable things of this kind pafs'd, too long for me here to fet down ; a little Boy belonging to the Family, was a Principal Sufferer in these Molestations, he was flung about at fuch a rate that they fear'd his Brains would have been beaten out; nor did they find it poffible to hold him, his Bed Clothes were pull'd off from his Bed, his Bed fhaken; a Man took him to keep him in a Chair; but the Chair fell a dancing, and both were very near being thrown into the Fire, he was prick'd on the Back, they found an Iron Spindle

Spindle and Pins fluck in him, all the Knives in the Houfe were one after another fluck in his Back, which the Spectators pull'd out : Sometimes he bark'd like a Dog, then clock'd like an Hen, he complain'd, that a Man call'd P---I appear'd to him, as the caufe of all. Before the Devil put an end to these Tricks, the invisible Hand which did all these things, put on an aftonishing visibility. They often thought they felt the Hand that fcratch'd them, while yet they faw it not; but when they thought they had hold of it, it would give them the flip. Once the Fift beating the Man was difcernable, but they could not catch hold of it: at length an Apparition of a Blackamoor Child fhew'd it felf plainly to them; another time a Drumming on the Board was heard, which was followed with a Voice that fang, Revenge, Revenge, Sweet is Revenge ; at this the People being terrifyed call'dupon God ; whereupon there follow'd a Mournful Voice uttering these Expressions. Alas! Alas! we knock no more, we knock no more, and there was an end of all.

The Fourth Instance is of the House of Nicolas Desborough, at Hartford, which, An. 1683. was troubl'd much after the fame manner; it began upon a Controversie happening betwixt the Man of the House, and another Person, concerning a Chest of Cloaths, which the Man apprehended the other unjustly detain'd from him, and it lasted divers Months, till upon refloring the Cloaths the trouble ceas'd. He adds, at Brighling in Suffex, in England, there happen'd a Tragedy not unlike to this, An, 1659. It's Recorded by Clarke, in the Second Volume of his Examples.

His Fifth, and Sixth Inftances are Relations of the fame Nature.

His Seventh Inftance is of one Mr. Philip Smith, aged about Fifty Years, a Deacon of the Church of H. dley, a Member of the general Court, a Justice of the County Court, a Lieutenant of a Troop, and a Man very Exemplary for Devotion, Sanctity, and Gravity, who, An. 1689. was miferably Murther'd by Witchcraft, he was, by his Office, concern'd about relieving the Indigences of a wretched Woman in the Town, who being diffatisfy'd with him, express'd her felf in a threatning manner, fo that he apprehended receiving mifchief at her Hands; he fell ill of a wearing Diftemper, and at length became delirious, and cry'd out not only of Pains, but also of Pins tormenting him in feveral Parts of his Body. In his Affliction he exclaim'd much on the faid Woman, and others, as being feen by him in the Room. Some young Men in the Town went and gave disturbance to the Woman fo complain'd of, and all the while they were diffurbing her, he was at ease and flept, as a weary Man. Gallipots of Medicines prepar'd for him, were unaccountably emptyed, audible fcreechings were made about the Bed, when his Hands and Feet lay wholly ftill, and were held by others. Mr. Smith, at length dies; the Jury that view'd his Corps, found a swelling on one Breast, his Privities wounded, or burnt, his Back full of Bruifes, and feveral Holes that feem'd made with Awles; divers Noifes were heard in the Room where the Corps lay, as the clattering of Chairs and Stools, whereof no account could be giv'n,

His Ninth Inftance, to the Facts of which the Author was himself a Witness, is of Four Children of John Goodwin of Boston, all Religioufly educated. These Children An. 1688. were wrought on by Witchcraft, by an Old Woman, whom the Eldeft Daughter, who was about Thirteen Years of Age, had provok'd, fo that she was immediately feiz'd with odd Fits: in a fhort time after, one of her Sifters, and two Brothers were horribly feiz'd with the fame, all the Children were tormented still just in the fame part of the Bodies, at the fame time, tho' their Pains flew like Lightning from one part to another, and they were kept fo far afunder, that they neither faw, nor heard one anothers Complaints; at Nine or Ten of the Clock at Night they still had a release from their Miferies, and Slept all Night pretty well; but when the Day came, they were again miferably handl'd; fometimes they were Deaf, fometimes Dumb, fometimes Blind, and often all Three at once, and many other unaccountable Symptoms attended them; they made most pitious out-cries, that they were cut with Knives, and ftruck with Blows, and the plain prints of the Wounds were feen upon them; the fuspected Woman's House being fearch'd, feveral Images, or Puppers, or Babies, made of Rags, and stuft with Goats Hair were there found, and the Woman confest that the way to Torment the Objects of her Malice, was by wetting of her Finger with her Spirtle, and stroaking those little Images. The abused Children were then prefent in the Court, and one of the Images being brought to the Woman, she started up, and fnatch'd it into K 4 her her Hand, when prefently upon it one of the Children fell into fad Fits, before the whole Affembly. The Judges caufed a repetition of the Experiment, and still found the fame effect of it, tho' the Children faw not when the Hand of the Witch was laid upon the Images. To make all things clear, the Court appointed Five, or Six Physicians to Examine her very ftrictly, whether she were no way craz'd in her Understanding, who after spending feveral Hours with her, return'd her Compos Mentis, and Sentence of Death was pass'd on her. After her Condemnation, Mr. Mather fays, he vifited her feveral times, and the then told him, fhe us'd to be at Meetings where her Prince, and four more were prefent; fhe told him who the four were, and plainly faid, that her Prince was the Devil; at her Execution fhe faid, the afflicted Children fhould not be reliev'd by her Death, for others besides her felf had a Hand in their Affliction : And accordingly, the Children continued afflicted far worse than before; one of the Children discern'd the Spectres, and told the Names of those that tormented them ; a blow ftruck at the place where he faw the Spectre, was always felt by the Boy himfelf, in that part of his Body, which answer'd to that was ftruck at ; and this, though his Back were turn'd, and the thing fo done, that there could be no Collusion in it, yet after the Agonies were over, to which a push, or a stab at the Spectre had put him to, as in a Minute, or two they would be, he would have a respite from his Ails, a confiderable while, and the Spectre would be gone. The Affliction of the Children went on till they bark'd at each other like Digs, and then pur'rd like Cats. They would complain complain they were in a Red hot Oven, and fweated, and panted, as if they had been really fo. Then they would fay, that cold Water was thrown on them, at which they would fhiver very much. They would complain of being roafted on an invisible Spit, and lie, and roll, and groan as if it had been fo; and by and by, fcreech out, that Knives were cutting them. They would complain that their Heads were nail'd to the Floor, and it was beyond an ordinary ftrength to pull them from thence. Mr. Mather fays, the Dæmons did not know our Thoughts; for if himfelf, or others us'd a Fargon, and faid, untie its Neckcloth, but the Party bidden understood their meaning to be, untie his Shooe, the Neckcloth, and not the Shooe has been, by wrythen Poftures, rendred ftrangely unacceffible; no good thing could then be endur'd near those Children, who while they were themfelves, lov'd every good thing. The eldeft Girl, being at Mr. Mather's House, a Chain invisible to any but her felf. would be clap'd about her, and fhe, in much pain and fear, would cry out when they began ro put ir on ; fometimes Persons present could with their Hands knock it off, as it began to be fastn'd; but ordinarily when it was on she would be pull'd out of her Seat, with much violence towards the Fire, that it was as much as one or to two could do, to keep her out; if Persons present stamp'd on the Hearth, just between her and the Fire, fhe fcream'd out, that by jarring the Chain they hurt her. An unfeen Rope with a cruel Noofe was put about her Neck, whereby fhe was choak'd, till fhe was black in the Face; and though it were got off before it had kill'd her, yet there were the red red Marks of it, and of a Finger and a Thumb near it, remaining to be feen for fome while afterwards; thefe Children were often near burning and drowning, and ftrangling themfelves with their Neckcloths, but ftill feafonably fuccor'd; and, to omit many other Circumftances, they were at length deliver'd from this great Affliction.

Mr. Mather, at the end of Fourteen Inflances of this kind, written by himfelf, lays before us an Account of Vilitations of the fame Nature, which happen'd in New-England, An. 1692. and written by Mr. John Hales, a Perfon, who, as Mr. Mather fays, would not for a World be guilty of overdoing the Truth, in an Hiftory of fuch Importance. The Account is as follows.

At the latter end of the Year, 1691. Mr. Paris, Paftor of the Church in Salem Village, had a Daughter of about Nine Years of Age, and a Niece of about Eleven, fadly afflicted with unaccountable Diftempers, as Phyficians that were confulted thought, and one of them judg'd they were betwitch'd. Mr. Paris had an Indian Man Servant, and his Wife an Indian Woman, who confefs'd that without the Knowledge of their Master and Mistress, they had taken some of the afflicted Perfons Urine, and mixing it with Meal, had made a Cake, and baked it, to find out the Witch, as they faid. After this the afflicted Perfons cry'd out of the Indian Woman, nam'd Tituba, that fhe pinch'd, prick'd, and grievoully tormented them, and they faw her here and there, where no Body elfe could, and could tell where fhe was, and what fhe did when she was absent from them, these Children were bitten and pinch'd by invisible Agents, Agents, their Limbs were rack'd and tormented, and miserably contorted, &c. Tituba was Examined, who confess'd the making of that Cake, and faid, her Mistress in her own Country was a Witch, and had taught her fome means to be us'd for the difcovery of a Witch, and for preventing of being bewitch'd. In a fhort time other Perfons, who were of Age to be Witneffes, were molefted by Satan, and in their fits cry'd out upon Tituba, and Goody Orburn, and Sarab Good, that they, or Spectres in their fhapes, did grievoully torment them. The Juffices at Salem examin'd the Afflicted and Accus'd together, and upon the Examination, Tituba confess'd, that she was a Witch, and that she, and the other two accus'd, did torment and bewitch the Complainers; and that thefe, with two others, whofe Names fhe knew not, had their Witch-Meetings together, relating the times when, and places where they met, with other Circumstances. Upon this Tituba, Osburn, and Good were committed to Prifon. on sufpicion of acting Witchcraft. Soon after these Afflicted Persons complain'd of others afflicting them in their Fits; and the Number of the Afflicted, and Accus'd began to increase; and upon Examination more confels'd themfelves guilty of the Crimes they were fufpected of; the Number of Confession amounting at length to Fifty. The Justices, Judges, and others concerned, us'd all Confcientious endeavours to do what was right, according to former Prefidents in England, in the like Cafes. The Mitter was carryed on chiefly by the Complain's and Accufations of the Afflicted, and by the Confessions of the Accus'd, condemning chemfelves and others : Yet Experience flow'd that that the more were apprehended, the more were still afflicted ; and the Number of the Confessors encreasing, did but increase the Number of the Accus'd; and the executing of fome made way for the apprehending of others: for still the afflicted complain'd of being tormented by new Objects, as the former were removed; fo that those that were concerned were amaz'd at the Number and quality of the Perfons accus'd, and fear'd Innocent Perfons fuffer'd : and henceforth, the Juries generally acquitted fuch as were try'd, fearing they had gone too far before, and all were fet at Liberty, ev'n the Confessors. The Number of the Accus'd was increas'd to above an Hundred, and many of them were Perfons of blamelefs and holy Lives. Nineteen were executed, and all. deny'd the Crime dying; and fome of them were knowing Perfons, and had before this been accounted blameless Livers. The Perfecution ceafing, the Afflicted grew prefently well, the accus'd were quiet, and for Five Years past there has been no Molestation by them. So in Suffelk, in England, about the Year 1645. there was fuch a Profecution, till they faw, that unlefs a ftop were put to it, it would bring all into Blood and Confusion. The like has been in France, till 900 were put to Death ; and in fome other Places the like. So that New-England is not the only place circumvented by the Wiles of Satan in this kind. He relates from Wierus, p. 678, that an Inquisitor in the Subalpine Valleys, enquir'd after Women Witches, and burnt above an Hundred, and was profecuting more, till the Country People rofe, and by force of Arms hindred them, and refer'd the Matter to the Bishop. Their

Their Husbands affirm'd, that at that very time it was faid of them, that they play'd and danc'd under a Tree, they were in Bed with them.

At Chelmsford in Effex, An. 1645. there were 36 at once before Judge Coniers, and Fourteen of them Hang'd, and an Hundred more detained in feveral Prifons in Suffolk and Effex.

As for the Cafe at Salem, he conceives it proceeded from fome miltaken Principles; as that Satan cannot affume the fhape of an Innocent Person, and in that shape do Mischief to the Bodies and Goods of Mankind; and that when the Devil does harm to Perfons in their Bodies or Goods, its at least, for the most part by the help of our Neighbours, fome which are in Covenant with him. This is the fubstance of what Mr. Hales delivers; and Mr. Mather tells us, that Mr. Hales, from whofe Manuscript he Transcribed this, does there Confute these mistaken Principles: yet spends whole Chapters to prove that there is a Witch, whom he thus defines. Tis a Perfon that having the free use of his Reason, does knowingly and wittingly obtain of the Devil, or of any other Divine Power, but the True God, an ability to do or know strange things, or things which he cannot by his own humane abilities arrive unto.

Mr. Mather, in an Appendix, at the end of his Sixth Chapter of his Sixth Book, beforementioned, gives a fhort Relation of fome practifes of Witchcraft, used by the Indians of New England, as follows.

The Indians of Martha's Fineyard, who are now Christians, abundance of them acknowledge the Witchcraft, wherein they had actual Conversations, and explicit Confederacies with Devils, Devils, while they were Pagons. They know that many Perfons among them have been, by the zeal of their Parents, dedicated to their Infernal Gods, and educated for their especial Service: but that the Dæmons accept only of fome here and there to make Pawaws or Wiz.ards of. They know that these Pawaws often Imploy their Damons to finite their Neighbours with Blindnefs, and Lamenefs, and other Mifchiefs, and fometimes to Kill them, and fometimes to Cure their Maladies. They know that their manner is to form a piece of Leather like an Arrow's Head, and then tye an Hair to it; or to take a Bone of some dead Creature : over these things they use Magical Ceremonies, whereupon the Damon prefently fnatches them away, and conveys them into the Bodies of Perfons to be afflicted; or sometime the Damon pretends to them, that he brings a portion of the Spirit of the Perfon, clofely imprison'd in a Fly; and as they deal with the Fly, fo it fares with the Body of the Person intended. Some of the Pawaws faculty chiefly confifts in difcovering and recovering Stoln Goods, by the help of their Damons. A Pawaw, turn'd Christian, faid he had often employed his God, who appeared to him ftill in the form of a Snake, to Kill, Wound, and Lame, fuch as he defign'd Mischief to. So far Mr. Mather.

I fhall now give an Account of what Mr. Calef, above mentioned, has deliver'd in his Book, Entitled, More Wonders of the Invisible World, &c.

In his Preface he tells the Reader, he publifhes thefe his Collections and Sentiments, in hopes, that having well confider'd and compared them with the Scriptures, he will fee Reafon,

Reason, as well as himself, to question a belief fo prevalent, as that there treated of. as alfo the practife flowing from thence; he declares his disbelief of the operations and effects of the Devil, exprest by Mr. Mather, in his Wonders of the Invisible World ; as that the Devil exhibited himfelf ordinarily as a Black Man, and Decoy'd Miferable Malicious Creatures to Lift themfelves in his Service, by entring their Names in a Book; and that they have had their Meetings and Sacraments, having each of them their Spectres, or Devils commission'd by them, and representing of them, to be the Engines of their Malice: By these wicked Spectres afflicting poor People with various Torments, even Killing fome, and caufing fome to deftroy themselves, and carrying fome over Trees, and Hills, Miles together, many of them being tempted to fign the Devil's Laws.

He takes this matter to be, as others understand it, viz. that the Devil has been too hard for many in New England, by his Temptations, Signs, and Lying Wonders, with the help of pernicious Notions, formerly imbibed and profeft; together with the acculations of a parcel of Poffeft, Diftracted or lying Wenches, accusing their Innocent Neighbours, pretending they fee their Spectres, that is, the Devil in their likeness, afflicting of them : whereupon many Tragedies followed, which tho' begun in one Parish, spread over the whole Country; and he thinks a Zeal led by Blindnefs and Paffion, and former Prefidents had herein precipitated Perfons into thefe wickedneffes, or Witchcrafts, and favs, much the fame has been acted this prefent Year in Scotland. His

His Book being divided into Five Parts, he begins his First Part with a Letter fent by Mr. Cotton Mather to a Friend of his, containing a Relation of an Apparition happening to one Margaret Rule, living in the North part of Boston. This young Woman, on a Sunday, December the 10th. 1692. after some Hours of previous diffurbance in the Publick Affembly. fell into odd Firs, which caufed her Friends to carry her home, where her Fits in a few Hours appeared to be preternatural: She was affaulted by eight cruel Spectres, of which the thought fhe knew three or four, but the reft came still with their Faces cover'd: she privately told Mr. Mather the Names of those fhe knew, Who fays, they were miferable Wretches, that for many Years had been ftrongly fuspected for Witches. Those Spectres brought her a red thick Book, not very broad, about a Cubit long, and demanded her to fet her Hand to it, or at leaft to touch it with her Hand, as a fign of her becoming the Devil's Servant; which fhe peremptorily refusing to do, they fell a Tormenting her cruelly, fo that fhe was forced to keep her Bed fix Weeks together. Sometimes, tho' not always, together with the Spectres, there look'd in upon her, as the faid, a Short Black Man, whom they called their Master, being eaxctly of the fame Dimensions, Complexion and Voice with the Devil, that has exhibited himfelf to other Infefted People; not only in other parts of New England, but also in other Countries of Europe, as relations from thence inform us. She was cruelly Pinch'd with Invisible Hands, very often in a Day, and the Black and Blue Marks of the Pinches became immediately vifible visible to the standers' by, she would also be miferably hurt with Pins, that were found fluck in her Neck, Back and Arms; though those Wounds made by the Pins, would in a few Minutes ordinarily be cur'd; fhe would also be ftrangely difforted in her Joints by Exorbitant Convultions. To pass by other ftrange Relations of her, in which Mr. Mather thinks there could be no Imposture, once in the middle of the Night fhe lamented fadly, that the Spectres threatn'd the drowning of a Young Man in the Neighbourhood, whom fhe nam'd to the Company; and it was found, that at that very time, this Young Man having been Prefs'd on Board a Man of War, then in the Harbour, was attempting to Swim on Shoar, and had been drown'd in the Attempt, if a Boat had not feafonably took him up. There were wonderful Noises every now and then, made abour the Room where the lay, which the Perfons present could ascribe to no other Actors, but the Spectres. Once her Tormentors pull'd her up to the Ceiling of her Chamber, and held her there before a very Numerous Company of Spectators, who found it as much as they could all do to pull her down again. She had alfo a. White Spirit which came to her, whole bright fhining and glorious Garments fhe had a frequent view of. He ftood by her Bed continually heart'ning and comforting of her, and Counfeling her to maintain her Faith and Hope in God, and never to comply with the Temptations of her Adverfaries. Mr. Mather fays, he has feen it fulfil'd more than three times in the Deliverance of inchanted and poffefs'd Perfons, whom God has caft in his way, that their Deliverance could not be obtain'd before 1 the

the third Faft kept for them, and the third Day still obtain'd the Deliverance; and after Margaret Rule, had been more than Five Weeks in her Miferies, the White Spirit faid to her; Well, this Day fuch a Man (whom he nam'd) has kept a third Day for your Deliverance, now be of Good Chear, you shall speedily be deliver'd. Mr. Mather enquir'd, whether what had been faid of that Man were true, and was. certainly inform'd, that it was precifely fo. On the last Day of the Week her Tormentors, asshe faid, approaching towards her, would be forc'd still to recoil and retire, as unaccountably unable to meddle with her; and they would retire to the Fire fide with their Puppets. but going to flick Pins in those Puppets, they could not make the Pins to enter, and the faw their Black Mafter to ftrike them, and kick them, to make them do their Work, and renew the Marks of his Vengeance on them, when they fail'd of doing it : At last, being as it were tir'd with their ineffectual Attempts to mortifie her, they furiously faid, Well, thou (halt not be the last; and after a pause, they added, Go, and the Devil go with you, we can do no more. Whereupon they flew out of the Room; and the returning perfectly to her felf, gave thanks to God for her Deliverance: Her Tormentors left her extream Weak and Faint, and overwhelm'd with Vapours, which would not only caufe her fometimes to fall in a Swoon, but likewife now and then, for a little while difcompose her Reason, though her former troubles returned not.

To this Relation Mr. Mather adds, He has aways been of this Opinion, that we are Ignorant of what Powers the Devils may have to do their Mischiefs, in the shapes of some that had never been explicitely engag'd in Diabolical Confederacies; and that therefore though many Witchcrafts had been fairly detected, on enquiries provok'd and begun by Spectre App.ritions, yet himfelf has been to far for abating the excellive Credit of Spectres Acculations, that he ftill charg'd the Afflicted, committed to his Care, that they fhould cry out on no Body for afflicting them; though if it might be of any Advantage to them, they might tell their Minds to fome one Perfon, of Difcretion enough to make no ill use of it. Nor had the Civil Authority profecuted those things, had not a Confcientious regard to the Crys of Miferable Families, overcome the Reluctancies of the Judges to meddle with them.

to

The Second Part of this Book begins with a Narrative of what paft at two Vifits, given by Mr. Cotton Mather, and his Father, to Margaret Rule, written by Mr. Calef, as he fays, from the Mouths of fome Perfons who were then prefent; of which Narrative Mr. Cotton Mather greatly complains, as very unfairly and falfly reprefenting things, in reference to his Father and himfelf.

It contains alfo Letters from Mr. Calef, to Mr. Cotton Mather, offering a meeting with him, and defiring an Information in fome Doctrinals relating to Witchcraft; which meeting Mr. Mather declin'd at the place nominated by Mr. Calef, though he offered to Difcourfe with him concerning it in his Study, or any other Convenient place. There are alfo Papers attefted by feveral Hands of Perfons prefent, that Margaret Rule was lifted up to the Ceiling of the Room, where the lay, by I. 2 an an invisible Hand, and that feveral of the Perfons prefent had much ado, with all their ftrength to pull her down. This is followed by another Letter from Mr. Calef to Mr. Mather, in which, notwithstanding the Attestations of the Perfons prefent, he declares his difbelief of Margaret Rule's being fo lifted up; his reason is, that then Miracles are not ceas'd, (this feeming to him as true a Miracle, as for Iron to Swim) and that the Devil can work fuch Miracles.

Next follows, feveral Letters from Mr. Calef to Mr. Mather and others, relating to the Doctrinals of Witchcraft, both defiring Mr. Mather to explain it, and fetting forth what himfelf conceives of it, according to the Scriptures: and having Inferted a Letter, which he writ to the Ministers, whether English, French, or Dutch, in New England, he concludes it thus, That the only Decifive Circumstance to Convict a Witch, as far as he can find in the Scriptures, is a maligning and oppugning the Word, Work, or Worship of God, and by any extraordinary Sign feeking to feduce any from it; tho' not excluding any other Branch, when as well prov'd by that Infallible Rule; and that the going to the afflicted, or poffeft to Divine who are Witches by their Spectre-Sight, is a great wickedness, and that the fearching for Tets, the experiment of their faying the Lords Prayer, the falling at the Sight, and rifing at the Touch of the fuppofed Criminal, being all of them foreign from Scripture, as well as Reafon, are Abominations to be Abhorr'd and Repented of. Laftly, That their Salem Witchcraft, either respecting the Judges and Juries, and their tenderness of Life, or the multi-multitude and pertinency of Witnesses, both afflicted, and confessions, or the integrity of Historians, areas Authentick, and made as certain, as any ever of that kind in the World have been, and yet every one now fees through it; and that it was the abovementioned Sentiments that procured this faddest Affliction, and most lasting Infamy that ever befel that Country. Mr. Calef's next Letter is to Mr. Samuel Willard, a Member of Harward College in New England, where among other things he fays that by the late Profecution, under the notion of Witches, Twenty fuffered as Evil Doers (befides those that Died in Prison) above Ten more Condemned, and an Hundred Imprifon'd, and about 200 more Accused; and the Country generally in Fears, when it would come to their turn to be Accufed ; that those very Accufers, which had been Imprifoned as Witneffes against fo many, Accused at length those in most High Esteem, both Magistrates and Ministers, as guilty of Witchcraft, which fhew'd their Rulers, that necessity lay upon them to confound what had fo long confounded the Country, as being unwilling to run the fame risque.

Mr. Mather having fent Mr. Calef a Book Printed by Mr. Baxter, Entitled, The certainty of the World of Spirits, for his Inftruction in that kind; Mr. Calef has here inferted a Letter which he fent to Mr. Mather, containing Animadversions on that Book. And in another Letter which he Writ to the Ministers in and near Boston, he speaks of the Doctrine of the Manicheans, and endavours to shew that the present Age is not free from that Infection; and assume the deluge of Blogd-shed among L 2 Chris Chriftians, to this, that Men having taken up a belief of a Covenanting, Afflicting and Killing Witch, and finding no footfleps of fuch a Witch in the Scriptures, have concluded, that though the Scriptures be full in it, that a Witch fhould not Live, yet that it has not at all defcribed the Crime, nor means whereby the Culpable might be detected; and hence they account it neceffary to make ufe of thofe Diabolical, and Bloody ways, always heretofore practifed for their Difcovery; finding that the Rules given to detect other Crimes, are wholly ufelels for the difcovery of fuch.

Mr. Calef's last Letter of his Second Part, is to Mr. Benjamin Wad(worth, a Minister, whom he feems to charge with not well explaining the Scriptures, in reference to Witchcraft, and fays, the late dangerous Notion, that the Devil appears to Perfons, and that they and the Devil make mutual Ingagements, Confirm'd by Signing the Devil's Book, and are from hence Inabled not only to know Futurities, and things done at a Diftance, but are alfo Impower'd thereby to do harm to Neighbours, to raife Storms, and do things above and against the Course of Nature, has been the occasion of shedding fo much Blood in the World. He adds, It's manifest that the belief of the Witches Power to do the things abovementioned, was an ancient belief of the Heathens; and that from them it was received by the Papifts, who have fince Improved upon it, and brought in the notion of a Covenant; and that Protestants feem to have lately Improved it farther, by faying, that Witches can Commiffionate Devils to do those Mischiefs, thereby fetting the Witch in the place of God. He

He has writ also in a precedent Letter, that two Parties in difpute, were not agreed which to put it upon, whether the Devil Impowers the Witch, or the Witch Commissions him one the Contract: but both Parties are agreed in this, that one way or other the Milchief is effected, and fo the Criminal becomes Guilty of Death; in the fearch after which Criminals, many Countries have fallen into fuch Convulsions, that neither the Devastation made by a Conquering Enemy, nor the Plague it felf has been fo formidable.

The Third Part of this Book gives an account of the Differences happening at Salem Village, on the account of Profecutions for Witchcraft, which began there, where one Mr. Paris was Pastor; who, notwithstanding his acknowledging fome Errors he might have fallen into in that respect, was at last difinist from that Cure. In his acknowledgment under his hand, he owns, that the horrid Calamity of afflicting that Country, broke out first in his House, and that in his Family there were some of both Parties, viz. Accufers, and Accufed.

The Fourth Part contains an Ingenious Letter, Writ by a Gentleman without a Name, endeavouring to prove the commonly receiv'd Opinion about Witchcraft; to which Mr. Calef has Written a Reply. And a Second Letter is Written by the forefaid Gentleman, to which Mr. Calef has a Rejoynder.

The Fifth Part contains an account of the most Memorable matters of Fact, touching the fupposed Witchcraft in New England. Now tho' Mr. Calef's Account of Facts, contains many more Particulars, than what I have fet L4 down down before from Mr. Hale's, yet fince they would be too tedious for me to infert here, I fhall only note fome odd paffages in them.

He tells us, that about the end of the Year 1692, a new Scene relating to Witchcraft was begun: One Joseph Ballard at Andover, whole Wife was Ill, and after Died of a Fever. fent to Salem for some of those Accusers, to tell him who Afflicted his Wife; others did the fame, and Horfe and Man were fent from feveral places to fetch those Accusers, who had the Spectre Sight, that they might thereby tell, who afflicted those that were any way Ill. When these came into any place where such were, ufually they fell into a Fit; after which being ask'd who it was that afflicted the Perfon, they would for the most part name one whom they faid fat on the Head, and another that fat on the lower parts of the afflicted. Soon after Ballard's fending, more than Fifty of the People of Andover were complain'd of for afflicting their Neighbours: Here it was that many accused themselves of riding upon Poles through the Air, many Parents believing their Children to be Witches, and many Husbands their Wives, &c. when these Accusers came to the Houfe of any Perfon upon fuch an Account, it was ordinary for other Young People to be taken with Fits, and to have the same Specire Sight. Mr. Dudley Bradstreet, a Juffice of Peace in Lindover, having granted out Warrants and Committed Thirty or Forty Perfons to Prifons, for the supposed Witchcrafts, at length faw caufe to forbear granting out any more Warrants: foon after which, he and his Wife were cry'd out of, himfelf was by them faid to have Kill'd Nine Perfons by Witchcraft, craft, and found it his fafest course to make his Escape.

A Dog being afflicted at Salem Village, and those that had the Spectre Sight being sent for, they accused Mr. John Bradstreet, Brother to the Justice, that he afflicted the faid Dog, and now Rid upon him, he made his Escape into Petatrequa Government, and the Dog was put to Death, and was all of the afflicted that suffered Death.

At Andover they complain'd of a Dog, as afflicting of them, and would fall into their Fits at the Dogs looking on them. The Dog was put to Death.

Note, In reference to this, that in my precedent Account of the Second Sight, Children, Horses and Cows had it as well as Men and Women.

A worthy Gentleman of Bofton being about this time accufed by those of Andover, he sent by some particular Friends a Writ to Arress those Accusers in a 1000 l. Action, for Defamation, with Instructions to inform themselves of the certainty of the Proof; in doing which their business was perceived, and from thence forward the Accusation at Andover generally ceas'd.

And now Nineteen Perfons being Hang'd, and One Prefs'd to Death, and Eight more Condemned, in all Twenty Eight, about Fifty having confeft themfelves to be Witches, of which not One Executed; about One Hundred and Fifty in Prifon, and above Two Hundred more Accufed, the Special Commiffion of Oyer and Terminer came to a Period; after which Six Women, who had confeffed themfelves to be Witches, gave under their Hand that they did it only in complyance with their neareft Friends, who told them it was their only way to efcape, As

As for the Tryals, and the Evidence taken for Conviction at Salem, they are fet forth in Print by Mr. Cotton Mather, in his Wonders of the Invisible World, at the Command of Sir William Phips, then Governour of New England ; but Mr. Calef confidering that his Book might fall into the hands of fuch as never faw those Wonders, has Transcribed here the whole Account he has given thereof, without any variation, but with one of the Indistments annext to the Tryal of each. After Mr. Calef has fet down Mr. Mather's faid Account of the Proceedings at Salem, he writes fome Animadversions on it, and then proceeds to give an Account of the proceedings in the like cafe at Charles-Town, Bofton, and other places; and concludes with a Proclamation, at laft, Iffu'd out by the Lieutenant Governour, Counfel and Affembly of the Maffachufetts Bay, wherein they beg God Pardon for any Errors might have been committed in the late Profecutions. And upon the Day of Fast, in the full Assembly at the South Meeting-Houfe in Boston, one of the Judges, who had fat in Judicature at Salem, delivered in a Paper, defiring the Prayers of the People to the like effect. And some that had been of feveral Juries, gave forth a Paper fign'd with their own Hands, owning that they fear'd they had been fadly Deluded, and Miltaken, and beg'd Pardon of God and their Country Men, for what had past; and declaring that none of them would do fuch things again, on fuch Grounds for the whole World.

I thought good to give this Account at large of the two foregoing Books, becaufe they give us a full Information of the last confiderable Vifi-

Visitation by Witchcrafts, or fo fupposed, that has happned to any Country in the World, and I hope it may be a farewel to them.

As to my own Opinion in thefe Matters, I am convinced by my own Experience (which to me is as a Thousand Witness) that there is fuch a thing, as a Spectre-Sight, fo that one Perfon may fee Spectres, when others prefent at the fame time fee nothing; wherefore I think it not Impoffible that the afflicted Perfons in New England should fee; nay, I believe they faw the Spectres of Perfons, who as they conceived, 'Tormented them; all Histories of Witches, both in England, and in all other Countries, teftifying the fame; tho' I no way think that fuch Spectre-Sight should be received a Judicial Proof against any Person, it being manifest by fome foregoing Examples, that it's, at least fometimes, fubject to Illusions, of which I shall here add a particular Instance from Frommannus, who in his Third Book of Magical Incantation; quotes the Author of Cri- Part. 6. minal Cautions, writing thus.

A Prince of Germany Invited two Religious Dub. 48. Fathers, of eminent Vertue and Learning P. 347. to a Dinner. The Prince at the Table faid to one of them, Father! Think you we do rightly in Hanging Perfons, who are accufed by Ten or Twelve Witches, to have appear'd at their Meetings or Sabbaths? I fomewhat fear we are Imposed on by the Devil, and that it is not a fafe way to Truth that we walk in by thefe Accufations; efpecially fince many Grave and Learned Men every where begin to cry out against it, and to charge our Confciences with it; tell me therefore your Opinion. To whom the Father, being fomewhat of an 1. . . eager eager Spirit, faid, what fhould make us doubtful in this Cafe? or what should touch our Confciences, being convinced by fo many Teftimonies? Can we make it a Scruple whether God will permit Innocent Perfons should be fo traduc'd? there is no caufe for a Judge to flick at fuch a number of Acculations, but he may proceed with fafety. To which when the Prince had reply'd, and much had been faid pro and con, on both fides about it, and the Father feem'd wholly to carry the Point, the Prince, at length, concluded the Difpute, faying, I am forry for you, Father, that in a Capital Cafe, you have Condemned your felf, and you cannot complain if I commit you to Cuftody, for no lefs than Fifteen Witches have deposed, that they have seen you at their Meetings, and to fhew you that I am not in Jeft, I will prefently caufe the publick Acts to be brought, for you to Read them. The Father flood in a Maze, and with a Dejected Countenance, had nothing here to oppofe but Confusion, and Silence, after all his Learned Eloquence. So far Frommannus.

It's obfervable, that when the Spettre-Sighted Accufers came to an Houfe to difcover who afflicted a Perfon taken III, it was ordinary for other Young People to be taken in Fits like the Spettre-Sighted-Perfons, and to have the fame Spettre-Sight; as we know if a Perfon falls into Convultion Fits in the prefence of Young Perfons, it's ufual for thefe to fall into Convultions alfo.

This ftrange Visitation in New England, in which Perfons were feized with ftrange Fits, and came to have a Spectre-Sight, feems to be ally'd to what Plutarch, in his Book of the Vertuons tuous Acts of Women, relates concerning the Milesian Virgins, as follows.

There was a time, that the Milefian Virgins fell into a strange Humour, and raving without any apparent Caufe, only it was fulpected, that there was some Venemous Constitution of the Air, which caus'd in them this Delirium, and alienation of Mind; for they all on a fudden were feiz'd with a defire to die, and a furious Inclination to hang themfelves, and there were many that fecretly did it; and no Remonstrance nor Tears of their Parents, nor Confolation of Friends avail'd any thing, but they would Deftroy themselves, and they always found means to elude all the Subtleties and Inventions of those that Watch'd them : So that it was look'd upon as fome Divine Punishment, which no Humane Provision could remedy; till at length, by the advice of a wife Citizen, an Edict was fet forth, that if any Perfon should hang her felf for the future, her Body should be carryed Naked through the open Streets in the fight of all Men; which put a full ftop to this Tragedy. And if instead of an Indulgent Non Compos, found generally by our Juries of late, on all Felo's de se, fomewhat exemplary were order'd by the Government, poffibly it might deter Perfons from that Crime. Plutarch Notes it as a fign of a Good and Vertuous Difpolition, that the fear of Infamy and Difhonour works more upon Humane Minds, than the fear of those horrible Accidents Death and Torments.

Rhodiginus writes thus. Its faid the Abderites, Ant. Left. while Lyfimachus rul'd, began to be infefted l. 30. c. 4. with a certain New and Wonderfull kind of Difeafe, the manner of it was thus. First there there generally reign'd among them a fierce and burning Fever, when the Seventh Day was come, an abundance of Blood flow'd from their Nostrils, some fell into a plentiful Sweat, and this ended the Fever ; but a very Ridiculous affect feiz'd the Minds of them all, for they were ftir'd up to Act Tragedies, and thunder'd out Iambicks with a very loud Voice, but chiefly the Tragedy of Andromeda, writ by Euripides, and the words of Perseus; the City was fill'd with these kinds of weekly Tragedies, the People bawling out thefe and the like kind of Words. O King, thou Love of Gods and Men! This unufual Delirium held a long while, till the Winter, and a fierce Cold coming, put an end to the Evil. It's thought the rife of this Difeafe proceeded from this, That at that time Archelaus, a Famous Tragedian, in the midst of the Summer, when the Heats were very great, Acted there Andromeda, whereupon the Abderites contracted the caufe of their Difease in the Theater; and when (as its ufual) the Appearances of what was Acted in that Tragedy, were prefented to their Minds, they fell to the faid Tragedy through a Delirium, uponitheir Recovery, Andromeda flicking in their Memories, and Persus with Medula.

L. 8. c. 8. As to a Disposition of the Air in Reference to a Spectre-Sight, Purchas, in the Second part of his Pilgrim, writes, from a Relation of Sandys's Journey from Venice to Constantinople, as follows. We lay in a little Bay, and under a Clift, in the Gulf of Calonus, where not one of us but had his Sleep interrupted by fearful Dreams; he that watch'd affirming, that he had feen the Devil, fo that in a great difmay we put from the fhore abcut midnight; but whether it proceeded from from the Nature of the Vaporous place, or that infefted by fome Spirit, I leave to decide. It's reported of a little Rocky Island hard by, nam'd formerly $\mathcal{A}x$, Sacred to Neptune, that none could Sleep on it, for being troubl'd with Apparitions. The Gulf belongs to the Island Mitylen, or Lesbes.

Thus we find what Difpositions of Mind Men may fall into fundry ways, and how far the Diabolical feifures, relating to practices of Witchcrafts, may be caus'd upon the Minds of Miferable People, being impregnated with Notions of Damons, and the like; and what Communication of Minds there may be betwixt fuch People, will deferve Confideration.

Hippocrates in his Tract of Virgins Diseases, (if it be his) enquires into the Nature and Caufes of fuch Diftempers, as Afflicted the Milefian Virgins, and confiders the Difease call'd Sacred, which he fays is attended with Frights, and Terrors, by which Perfons are Vehemently fcar'd, so that they grow Delirious; and sometimes by Night, fometimes by Day, and fometimes both Night and Day, they think they fee Damons infefting them, and that upon those Visions many have hang'd themselves, though more Women than Men, they being of a weaker Disposition of Mind; and Virgins that are almost ripe for Marriage, find this about the time of the first descent of their Menses, being free from those Evils before ; but about that time the due Courfe of the Blood being ftopt, it returns up to the Heart and Midriff, caufing an acute Inflammation, and brings an alienation of Mind, with Crys and Terrors; and fometimes, he fays, without Spectres, a certain Pleasure of Death feizes them, as feeming a good Thing ; 25

as they return to themfelves, he fays, the Women are wont to Confecrate their most precious Garments, with other things, to Diana, being deceiv'd by the Prophets, who Command them fo to do.

Now though the Caufes affign'd by Hippocrates, feems plausible enough for him, as a Physician, yet I doubt they will not reach all Cafes, and we must have recourse to a Superiour Science for them. It's known to the Learned. that there has been a Science in the World, call'd ScientiaUmbrarum, which, as to the publick teaching of it, has been fupprefs'd upon goodPolitick grounds, though there are still fome Societies of Men, in the World who allow the fludy of it, and teach it to Persons of whose Integrity they are fatisfied; and as Boefatas fays, of Magick, of which this is apart, Eft tanquam res Sacra, que no nisiviris magnis, & peculiari beneficio de calo instructis Communicatur, & nil ausi sunt aggredi quidam Principes in Politicis, in Sacris, in consibiis sine eorum arbitrio.

Calumella knew there was a Science built on Higher Principles, than what are accountable for in Phyficks, when he faid, concerning the Cure of his Bees.

De cult. Hort.l.10,

At fit nulla valet Medicina repellere peftem, Dardaniæ veniant artes. ----

But if this Plague no Medicine can repel, To Arts Dardanian let us fly.

The Scientia Umbrarum, being a Branch of thefe Arts, the Ignorance of which poffibly, may have been the occasion of many mistakes in Judicial proceedings relating to Witchcraft, the the Difpositions of the Aftral Man, being knowable only by that Science. And though many Severities have followed upon it, yet good Policy, perhaps, has rather chosen to fuffer them, than to admit the Publick teaching of that Science, which might have been of more Pernicious confequence to the Publick. But I write these things only by the by, and as opening.

It feems to me, that Mr. Calef deals fomewhat hardly with Mr. Mather in this, that when for his fatisfaction, Mr. Mather had fent him a Paper, attefted by feveral Subfcribers, that Margaret Rule, with whom they were prefent, was lifted up to the Ceiling of the Room, and that feveral times, notwithstanding the Endeavours of strong Persons to keep her down, and there held her for a confiderable time; and that they had much ado to pull her down; yet Mr. Calef declares his disbelief of it. for this reason, that then Miracles are not ceas'd; as though a manifest Experience were to be fo exploded. I have giv'n before two Experiences in the like kind, one from Mr. Glanvil, concerning a Perfon fo lifted up in the Lord Orery's House in Ireland; another from Wierus, a Perfon well known to have been of no Light belief, who declares that a Woman had been carried up in the Air by Spirits, if himfelf had not violently with-held her, and kept her down. As to his great Ground, of the Ceffation of Miracles, I well know many Learned Divines, have been of that Opinion, though I think it no fuch Effential Point of Faith, that Christianity cannot well confist without it. Dr. Brown, in his Religio Medici, writes thus. That Miracles are ceas'd, I can neither prove, Sea. 27. nor absolutely deny, much less define the time M and and period of the Ceffation. And again, Therefore that Miracles have been, I do believe, and that they may yet be wrought by the living, I do not deny, and Dr. Stubbe, in his Account of the Miraculous Cures wrought by Mr. Greatrize writes, according to the Impetuolity of his Spirit, That to fay, Miracles are ceas'd, is a groundlefs Folly, if not a difingenious Impudence, in giving the Lye to various Religions: And if Mr. Calef admitted the point of Margaret Rule's, being fo lifted up, I cannot fee why this muft be concluded a Miracle, unlefs all things Providence permits the Devil to act, and which feem ftrange, fhall be called Miracles.

And whereas Mr. Calef, fo often urges Mr. Mather, with Mr. Gaule's Fourth Head for Convicting a Witch, viz. That a Witch is one that maligns, and oppugns the Word, Work, or Worship of God, and by any Extraordinary figns feeks to feduce any from it; as appears, Deut. 12. 1, 2. Matth. 24. 24. Act. 12. 8. 10. 2 Tim. 2. 8. which Mr. Calef will have to be the only Head well prov'd in the Scripture for difcovering a Witch, and often challenges Mr. Mather to produce any other; and fays, That his not bringing plain Scripture Proof, that there is a Covenanting Witch, is a fufficient Demonstration there is none; it's no confequence but there may be fuch a Witch, and that fairly reducable to the Head of Witchcraft mention'd in the Scriptures; for as there are New Difeafes of the Body, which were unknown to the Ancients, fo I know not why there may not be New Diftempers of the Mind, all Crimes being fuch; and fince Mr. Calef stands fo much for plain Scripture Proof for what he Credits, he may do well to give us a plain plain convincing Scripture Proof (fetting by his own Gloffes) for the ceating of Miracles; or of the time that Providence tyed up its Hands from doing any thing befide the ordinary courfe of Nature; or from commanding or permitting any Good or Evil Angels to do any fuch thing.

I think it worthy Confideration, that in the Account the abovemention'd Mr. Greatrix gave of himfelf, and his Actions, in a Letter to the late Mr. Boyle, Printed in London, An. 1666. there feems a ftrange Agreement in fome Particulars, with what happen'd in the New-England Vilitation; for as the Perfons there Afflicted, affoon as they look'd on those that Afflicted them, would fall down in Fits, fo Mr. Greatrix writes fomewhat of the like Nature, relating to himfelf, addreffing himfelf to Mr. Boyle, as follows.

Sir, I hope you will Pardon me, when I relate to you my own Observations, and " what my Experience inclines me to believe, ' in faying, that I have met with feveral Inftances which feem'd to me to be Poffeffion, 'by Dumb, Deaf, and talking Devils; and ' that to my Apprehension, and others prefent, ' feveral Evil Spirits, one after the other have ' been purfued out of a Woman, and every one of them has been like to Choak her, when 'it came up to her Throat, before it went forth; and when the last was gone, she was ' perfectly well, and fo continued. There have been others, that have fall'n down immediate-'ly affoon as they have feen me, which the ' Mayor of Worcester, Colonel Birch, Major " Wilde, and many Hundreds both at Worcester, 'and here in London, and other Places were 'Eye-Witneffes of: Many when they have heard M 2

' heard my Voice, have been tormented in fo ' ftrange a manner, that no one prefent could ' conceive it lefs than a Poffeffion; as I will Instance in one at York-house, (where Sir John Hinton, Colonel Talbot, and many others were prefent) who had fomewhat within her, which would fwell her Body to that exceffive Degree, on a fudden, as if it would burft her ; and then affoon as I put my Hand on that part of her Body, where it did rife up, it would fly up to her Throat, or fome other ' place, and caufe her Neck to fwell half fo big ' again, and then almost Choak her, then Blind 'her, and make her Dumb, and Foam, and ' fometimes fly into her Hand, and fo con-" tract and fast'n it, that neither Sir John Hinton, or any elfe that did try (as there were many) ' could with all their ftrength open one Finger ' of her hand, nor would it fly his Hand in the 'leaft, nor any other Perfons there, till I put 'my Hand on it, or my Glove; nay, I oftentimes brought it up into her Tongue, by ' running my Hand on her Body, on the outfide of her Cloaths, up to her Throat, which ' was fwoll'n in an Instant as big again, and ' has been feen plainly to fly from place to ' place, and at length with great violence of Belching, which did almost Choak her, and ' force her Eyes to start out of her Head, it went forth, and fo the Woman went away well. Whether this were a Natural Diftemper let any one Judge, that is either Di-"vine, Philosopher, or Physician. I could In-' ftance you in Forty as ftrange, or ftranger ; 'but I will go no farther then London, and Pla-' ces adjoyning, for Instances of this Nature.

'He

He adds beneath, 'That going to the Town of Copoqueen in Ireland, there were many Poor People that came out of England, for feveral Diftempers they labour'd under; and among the reft, two that had the Falling-Sicknefs, who no fooner faw me, but they fell into their Fits immediately, and upon putting my Hands on them, they were reftor'd to their Senfes forthwith; and he purfued their Pains from place to place, till they went out of them. So far Mr. Greatrix.

Here we find, that as the Perfons Afflicted in New-England, affoon as they look'd on the Afflictors, or fo by them fuppos'd, fell into their Fits, and were reftor'd to themfelves upon the Afflictors touching them, fo the Diftemper'd Perfons, affoon as they look'd on Mr. Greatrix, fell into their Fits, and upon his touching them were recover'd.

There was a Book Printed in London, An. 1656. intitl'd, Enthusiasmus Triumphatus, written by one who affum'd the Name of Philofophilus Parresiastes; near the end of which, we find a Relation of a Perfon, who had a Power of healing by ftroaking, like that of Mr. Greatrix. The Relation is thus, p. 57. It's very credibly Reported, and I think cannot be deny'd, That one by the ftroaking of a Mans Arm, that was dead and useless to him, recover'd it to life and ftrength. When I heard of it, and read fome few Pages of that Miraculous Phyficians writing, my Judgment was, that the Cure was Natural, but that his Blood and Spirits were boil'd to that height, that it would hazard his Brain, which proved true; for he was ftark mad not very long after.

Now, however, this Perfon might have valued his Skill in judging of an enfuing madnefs in fuch Cafes, the effect having followed here according to his guefs; yet we find it will not hold in all Cafes, Mr. Greatrix having always liv'd free from any fuch Sequel.

To proceed to other Accounts of Perfons, who have had a Perception of Genii, or Spirits not visible at the same time to others: The Famous Torquatus Taffo, Prince of the Italian Poets, ftrongly afferted his own Experience in that kind. His Life was writ and publish'd in French, An. 1692. by D. C. D. D. U. who in his Preface tells us, that in what he has writ, he has followed chiefly the Hiftory given us in Italian, by John Baptista Manso, a Neapolitan, Gent. who had been a very Intimate Friend to Taffo. In his Life, among other things, he acquaints us, that Toffo was Naturally of that Melancholick Temperament, which has always made the greatest Men, and that this Temperament being aggravated by many hardfhips he had undergone, it had made him fometimes befide himfelf; and that those Melancholick Vapours being diffipated; he came again to himfelf, like those that return from Fits of the Falling-Sicknefs, his Spirit being free as before. That near his later end he retired from the City of Natles, to his Friend Manfo, at Bifaccia, a fmall Town in the Kingdom of Naples, where Manfo had a confiderable Eftate ; and pass'd an Autumn there, in the Divertisements of the Scalon, as Hunting, visiting Ladies, and frequenting other Companies, &c. And here the French Author gives us an Account of Teffo's Senfible Perception of a Genius, as follows. As after these Amusements he usually retir'd to his C'ambor

Chamber, to entertain himfelf there with his Friend Manlo, the later had the Opportunity to enquire into one of the most fingular effects of Tallo's Melancholy, of this Heroick Melancholy, as I may call it, which rais'd his Spirit, fo far it was from rendring it obscure; and which, among the Ancients, would have caus d them to have afcrib'd a Familiar Dæmon to him, as to Socrates. They were often in an hot difpute concerning this Spirit, with which T fo pretended to have a Communication. I am too much your Friend, faid Manso, to him, one Day, not to let you know what the World thinks of you concerning this thing, and what I think of it my felf. Is it possible that being enlightn'd as you are, you should be fall'n into fo great a Weakness, as to think you have a Familiar Spirit ; and will you give your Enemies, that Advantage, to be able to prove by your own acknowledgment, what they have publish'd to the World ? You know they fay you did not publish your Dialogue of the Meffenger, as a Fiction, but you would have Men believe that the Spirit which you make to speak there, was a real and true Spirit; fo that Men have thence drawn this Injurious Confequence, that your Studies have embroil'd your Imagination, fo that there is made in it a confus'd Mixture of the Fictions of the Poets, the Inventions of the Philosophers, and the Doctrine of Religion. I am not Ignorant, answer'd Taffo, of all that is fpread abroad in the World on the Account of my Dialogue : I have taken care divers times to difabule my Friends, both by Letter, and word of Mouth. I prevented ev'n the Malignity of my Enemies, as you know, at the time I publish'd my Dialogue. Men could not M 4 be the Ignorant that I compos'd it for the Young Prince of Mantua, to whom I would explain, after an agreeable Manner, the Principal Myfteries of the Platonick Philosophy. It was at Mantua it felf, after my fecond flight from Ferrara, that I form'd the Idea of it, and I committed it to Paper a little while after my unfortunate return. I addrefs'd it to this Prince, and all Men might have read in the Epifile Dedicatory, the Protestation I there make, that this Dialogue being writ according to the Do-Arine of the Platonicks, which is not always conformable to reveal'd Truths, Men must not confound what I expose there as a Philosopher, with what I believe as a Christian. This Diftinction is by fo much the more reasonable, that at that time nothing extraordinary had happen'd to me, and I spake not of any Apparition. This can be attefted by all those with whom I lodged, or frequented in this Voyage; and therefore there is no reason for confounding the Fiction of my Dialegue with what has happen'd to me fince. I am perfwaded of all you fay to me, reply'd Manso, but truly I cannot be of what you believe, at prefent, concerning your felf. Will you Imagine to your felf, that you are in Commerce with a Spirit? And I ask you of what Order is that Spirit ? Shall us place him in the Number of the Rebels, whom their Pride precipitated into the Abyls? Or of the Intelligences who continued firm in Faith, and Submiffion to their Creator ? For there is no mean to take in the true Religion, and we must not fall into the Extravagances of the Gnomes and Silphes, of the Cabalifts.

Now

Now, the Spirit in queftion cannot be a Damon, you own, that instead of Inspiring you any thing contrary to Piety and Religion, he often fortifies in you the Maxims of Chriftianity; he strengthens your Faith by profound Reafonings, and has the fame refpect with you for Sacred Names and Things. Neither can you fay that It's an Angel; for tho' you have always led a Regular Life, and far from all Diffoluteness, tho' for some Years past you have apply'd your self after a particular manner to the Dutics of a True Chriftian, you will agree with me that thefe forts of Favours are not common; that a Man must have attained to an high degree of Sanctity, and not be far from the Pureness of Celeftial Spirits to merit a familiar Converse. and bear an Harmony with them. Believe me, there is nothing in all these Discourses which you imagine you have with this Spirit. You know better than any Man those Symptoms, which the black Humours wherewith you are Tormented, caufes in you. Your Vapours are the fourfe of your Visions, and your felf would not judge otherwife of another Perfon, to whom a like thing fhould happen; and you will come to this in your own respect also, if you will make a mature reflection, and apply your felf to blot out, by an effort of Reason, these Imaginations which the violence of your evil effect causes in you. You may have Reason, reply'd Taffo, to think fo of the things that pass in me; but, as to my felf, who have a fensible perception of them, I am forced to reason after another manner. If it were true that the Spirit did not fhew, himfelf to me but in the Violent Affault of my V2-

169

Vapours: If he offer'd to my Imagination but wandring and confus'd Species, without Connection or due Sequel; if he used to me frivolous Reafonings which ended in nothing; or if having begun fome folid Reafoning, he left it off on a fudden, and left me in darknefs, I should believe, with you, that all that paffes, is but Dreams and Fantoms; but it's quite otherwife. This Spirit is a Spirit of Truth and Reason, and of a Truth so distinct, of a Reason so sublime, that he raises me often to Knowledges that are above all my Reafonings, tho' they appear to me no lefs clear; that he teaches me things which in my most Profound Meditations never came into my Spirit, and which I never heard of any Man, nor read in any Book. This Spirit therefore is fomewhat of Real; of whatfoever order he be, I hear him and fee him, neverthelefs for its being impoffible for me to comprehend and define him. Manfo did not yield to thefe Facts, which Taffo would have pass'd for Proofs: he prest him with new Questions, which were not without Answers. Since you will not believe me on my Word, faid Taffo to him, another Day, after having well Difputed, I must convince you by your own Eyes, that these things are not pure Imaginations : and the next Day conversing together, in the fame Chamber, Manso perceived that, on a suden, he fixt his Eyes towards the Window, and that he ftood, as it were Immovable; he call'd to him, and jogg'd him many times, but inftead of Answering him; See there the Spirit, fays Tasso, at last, that has been pleased to come and visit me, and to entertain himself with me; look on him, and you will acknowledge the Truth

Trush of what I fay. Manso, somewhat furprifed, cast his Eyes towards the place he fhew'd him, and perceived nothing but the Rays of the Sun paffing through the Glafs: nor did he fee any thing in all the Chamber, tho' he cast his Eyes round it with curiofity. and he defired him to flew him the Spirit, which he look'd for in vain, while he heard Tallo fpeak with much Vehemency. He declares in a Letter, which he writ concerning this to the Admiral of Naples, that he really heard no other Voice but Taffo's own; but they were fometimes Queftions made by him to the pretended Spirit, sometimes Answers that he made to the pretended Questions of the Spirit, and which were conceived in fuch admirable Terms, fo Efficacious, concerning Subjects fo Elevated, and fo Extraordinary, that he was Ravish'd with Admiration, and dared not to Interrupt him. He hearken'd therefore Attentively, and being quite befide himfelf at this mysterious Conversation, which ended at last by a recess of the Spirit; as he found by the last words of Tallo; after which Tallo turning himfelf to him, Well, faid he, are your doubts at last diffipated; on the contrary, answer'd Manso, I am more Imbroyled than ever; I have truly heard wonderful things; but you have not shew'd me what you promifed me. You have feen and heard, refum'd Toffo, perhaps, more than ____ he ftopt here; and Manso, who could not recover himfelf of his furprife, and had his Head fill'd with the Ideas of this extraordinary entertainment, found not himself in a condition to prefs him farther. Mean while he ingaged himfelf not to fpeak a word to any Man of these things he had heard, with a defign fign to make them Publick, tho' he fhould have liberty granted him. They had many other conversations concerning this Matter: after which Manfo, own'd he was brought to that pass, that he knew not what to think or fay, only, that if it were a weakness in his Friend to believe these Visions, he much fear'd it would prove Contagious to him, and that he should become at last, as credulous as himself.

I was willing to fet down this Relation at large, becaufe I think it contains a fufficient Anfwer to what many Learned Friends have faid to my felf, on the like occasion.

Perhaps it may not be ungrateful to the Reader, if I subjoyn here the short Eloge writ on Taffo, by the Famous Thuanus; which is as follows.

Torquatus Taffo died about the Forty Fifth Year of his Age, a Man of a wonderful and prodigious Wit, who was feized with an incurable Fury in his Youth, when he lived at the Court of Ferrara; and neverthelefs in lucid Intervals he writ many things both in Verfe and Profe, with fo much Judgment, Elegancy, and extream Correctness of Style, that he turn'd, at length, that Pity, which many Men had conceived for him, into an Amazement; while by that Fury, which in others makes their Minds outragious, or dulls them, after it was over, his Understanding became as it were purified, more ready in Inventing things, more accute in aptly difpoling them after they were Invented, and more copious in adorning them with choice of Words, and weight of Sentences; and that which a Man of the foundeft Senfe would fcarce excogitate at his Leifure, with the greatest Labour and Care

Care imaginable, he, after a violent agitation of the Mind, fet befide it felf, naturally perform'd with a wonderful Felicity, fo that he did not feem ftruck with an alienation of Mind, but with a Divine Fury. He that knows not thefe things, which all Men know that have been in Italy, and concerning which himfelf fometimes complains, tho' modeftly, in his Writings; let him Read his Divine Works, and he muft neceffarily conclude, either that I fpeak of another Man than Taffo, or that thefe things were written by another Man than Taffo.

What shall we fay of Horace, as to a fensible perception of Spirits, who feems to defire Posterity to believe him, where he fays, Bachum in remotis Carmina montibus Vidi docentem, credite posteri, Nymphasque discentes, & aures Capripedum satyrorum acutas Evoe recenti mens trepidat metu.

Carm. 1.2. Ode 19.

Bacchus in diftant Rocks I've feen Teach Charms, and Nymphs to learn of him. Believe it, and the prick'd up Ears Of Goat-feet Satyrs. Oh! it Scares Me (till to think on't with new Fears.

And I know not why Horace (tho' an Epicurean) being Enthusiastically raised, might not have seen Apparitions, as well as other Men: as when with a Scalded Imagination, he cry's out,

Quô me Bachæ rapiis tui Plenum ? quo nemora, aut quos agor in specus Cam. l. 3. Velox mente nová? Cru-

173

Cruquius has writ a Learned Comment on the former Ode of Horace, which I recommend to the Curious Readers perufal: he there reflects on Lambinus, who, in his Comment on the fame Ode, fays,

----- Credat Judæus Apella, Non Ego ----

he not having duly examined the Scope of that Divine Poet, in that Ode.

Having aver'd my own Experience in feeing Genii, or Spirits, I shall conclude this Chapter with what the most Ingenious Poet fays of himsfelf, in the like case.

Facta canam, sed erunt qui me finxisse loquantur, Nulláq; mortali numina visa putuent.
Est Deus in nobis agitante calessimus illo; Impetus hic Sacræ semina mentis habet, Fas mihi præcipuè vultus vidisse Deorum Vel quia sum vates, vel quia Sacra cano.

CHAP. V.

What perception Men have had of Genii, or Spirits, and their Operations by the Senfe of Hearing.

Thyrans tells us, That God propofed to L. de Ap-Himfelf, in his way of acting with Men, par. Dei Voc. c. 17. First, to render Himfelf Familiar to them; afterwards, in fucceeding Times, to remit somewhat of His Familiarity; at last to Govern Men, not by Himfelf, but by Men.

The moft familiar way that God has manifefted Himfelf to Men, has been by prefenting Himfelf in an outward appearance, and fpeaking to Men in an Humane Shape. He came fomewhat fhort of this, when he was only heard and not feen. It's Inferior to both when he was neither feen nor heard, but infinuated Himfelf in a Dream, or the Fancy; the loweft degree was when he occupied only the underftanding of Man.

If we run over, and examine all Gods manifeftations of Himfelf, we shall find, for the most part, that to the first Men God ofteness prefented himfelf in an outward humane Form: Afterwards, That with later Men he had Difcourses, hiding his external Form. Thirdly, That he was neither seen in a personal Shape, nor his Voice perceiv'd, but he accomplish'd many things in Dreams. Fourtbly, That he enlighten'd the Mind; yet it must no be thought that that God fo nicely obferv'd this Rule, that he never pass'd it by; for when he has appear'd in an outward Form, he has often also been heard, often appear'd in Dreams, often enlighten'd the Understanding. Again, in later Times also, fometimes He has been seen, sometimes heard; but I relate what has happen'd for the most part.

The Minds of Men being at length practis'd, Heafforded them his Prefence, partly by Oracles, which he gave Viva Voce; partly the Underftanding being enlighten'd by Himfelf, and the Ministry of Angels, He, in a manner, withdrew Himfelf, and govern'd Men by Men, as His Deputies; and left them, in a manner, to themfelves, as He now Governs them. So far Thyreus.

I have premitted this from Thyræus, to give a general Notion of the Manifestations of God, and the Intellectual World to Man: This Doctrine being strongly back'd by the Scriptures, and deliver'd down to us from all Ages; as likewife that Genii, Spirits, Angels, and Dæmons, have manifested themsfelves to Man after the like manners.

Appar.Dei, visib. c. 2.

Now Thyreus tells us farther, That as thefe Manifeftations differ in excellency according to the dignity of the Powers they are made to; and each Power has its Dignity, according as it is abftracted from Matter; fo the Sight, in this regard, exceeding the Hearing; the Imagination, the Sight; the Understanding, the Imagination; the most excellent Manifestation will be the Intellectual, next the Imaginary, then the Visible, and, in the last place, the Vocal.

As I pretend to confider chiefly thefe two laft ways, and have already giv'n Accounts in reference to the Senfe of Seeing, I shall here give Inftances of what perception Men have had of Genii, or Spirits by the Sense of Hearing, the manifestation of Socrates's Genius, before-mention'd, being by a Voice, and many having heard ftrange Voices or Noifes, who have never feen any thing. And as to thefe Voices or Noifes heard, we must consider them in a two-fold respect : Either only the Person concern'd hears them, and not others prefent at the fame time, (as it was the Cafe of Socrates;) or they are heard by all Perfons prefent. I shall therefore first give a few Instances of the latter, and then of the others : only noting by the by, what Wierus fays of these Voices or Noises, viz. De Praf. Spirits appear sometimes invisibly, so that c. 13. only a Sound, or Voice, or Noife is perceiv'd by Men, viz. a Stroke, or Knocking, or Whiftling, or Sneezing, or Groaning, or 'Lamenting, or clapping of the Hands, to ' make Men attent to Enquire, or Answer. So far Wierus.

In Luther's Colloquia Mensalia, &c. fet forth Tom. 1. c. in Latin at Francfort, An. 1571, it being a different Collection from that of Aurifaber, which is translated from the High-Dutch into English, we have the following Relation.

'It happen'd in Pruffia, that as a certain Boy was Born, there prefently came to him a Geinterference in the formula of the second second it to Mens Judgments) who had fo faithful a care of the Infant, that there was no need either of Mother or Servant; and as he grew up he had a like care of him : He went to School with him, but fo that he could never N ` be

' be feen, either by himfelf, or any other, in 'all his Life. Afterwards, he travelled into ' Italy, he accompanyed him, and whenfoever any Evil was like to happen to him, either on the Road, or in the Inn, he was percei-'ved to foretel it by fome touch or ftroke; he drew off his Boots as a Servant; if he turn'd his Journey another way, he continued with him, ' having the fame care of him in foretelling 'Evil; at length he was made a Canon, and as, 'on a time, he was fitting, and feafting with ' his Friends, in much Jolity, a vehement Stroke was ftruck on a fudden, on the Table, ' fo that they were all terrified ; prefently the " Canon faid to his Friends, be not afraid, fome great Evil hangs over my Head; the next Day he fell into a Fever, and the Fit continued on him for three whole Days, till ' he died Miferably.

The Second Inftance, I shall give, is from Bodin, which though it has been Printed in English already, yet it relating to the Point I am treating of, and containing many pertinent Instances, I have thought fit to infert it here. He writes therefore as follows ; ' I can ' affure you, a Perfon now living has told me, ' he had a Spirit Daily attending him, and that ' he began to have knowledge of him, about the ' 37th Year of his Age, though he believ'd he 'had accompanyed him all his Life by preceding Dreams and Visions he had to keep 'him from Vices and Inconvenicies; but 'he never fenfibly perceived him, as he had ' done fince his 37th Year; which happen'd ' to him, he fays, having for a Year before ' continually pray'd to God heartily, Morning 'and Evening, that he would pleafe to fend ' him

' him a Good Angel, to guide him in all his Actions. Since, as he told me, he begun to have very Instructive Dreams and Visions, fometimes for him to Correct one Vice, fome-' times another, fometimes for keeping himfelf from Danger, fometimes for refolving him of 'one Difficulty, fometimes of another; and ' this not only concerning Divine, but like-'wife Humane things. Among others, he feem'd to hear a Voice of God, in his fleup, faying to him, I will fave thy Soul. It as I " that appear'd to thee before; fince that every 'Morning, about Three or Four of the Clock, " the Spirit knock'd at his Door, and he rold ' fometimes, and open'd his Door, but faw no 'Body; and every Morning the Spirit conti-' nued, and if he did not rife he knock'd again, ' and kept him waking till he role, then he be-' gan to be afraid, thinking it some Evil Spirit, 'as he faid; and therefore continued to Prav ' to God, without failing a Day, that he would 'fend him a Good Angel, and often fung the · Pfalms, which he could fay in a manner all by heart, and then the Spirit made himfelf ' known to him, as he was awake, ftriking ' foftly the first Day, fo that he fensibly per-' ceiv'd many ftrokes on a Glafs Viol, which 'very much amaz'd him; and two Days after ' having a Friend of his, the King's Secretary, ' who is ftill living, dining with him, the Se-· cretary heard the Spirit ftrike after that man-' ner, on a little Stool ftanding by him; where-' upon he begun to look Red, and to fear, but 'he faid to him, be not atraid, it's nothing; ' however, to give him an affurance, he related ' to him the Truth of the Fact ; now, he has ' affur'd me, that fince the Spirit has always · Accompa-Nz

'Accompanyed him, giving him a fensible fign, 'as touching him fometimes by the right Ear, ' if he did fomewhat that was not Good ; and by his left Ear if he did Well; and if any one ' came to deceive and furprise him, he present-' ly perceiv'd the fign at his right Ear; and if 'it were fome good Man, and came for his 'Good, he perceiv'd alfo the fign at his left 'Ear; and if he were about to Eat or Drink ' any thing that was Evil, he perceiv'd the fign; ' if he doubted of doing or undertaking fome-'thing, the fignal happen'd to him. If he ' thought of fome Evil thing, and was at a ftand, he prefently perceiv'd the fign to put ' him off from it : Sometimes when he began to Praise God, with some Psalm, or to speak ' of his Wonders, he found himfelf feized with 'a certain Spiritual force, which gave him Courage. And for him to difcern a Dream by Infpiration from those idle Fancies that 'happen, when a Perfon is indifpos'd, or ' troubled in Mind, he was awak'd by the Spi-' rit about Two, or Three of the Clock in the 'Morning, and falling afleep a little after, he ' had true Dreams of what he ought to do, or ' believe, or of doubts he had, or of what ' would happen to him; fo that fince that ' time, he fays, there is fcarce a thing that ' has happen'd to him, but he has had an Ad-'vertifement of it; nor a doubt of things that ' he ought to believe, but he has had it refolv'd, 'he duly Praying to God to teach him his Will, ' Law, and Truth'; and as for his Comport-' ment otherwife, he was of a Joyous Disposition enough, in all his Actions, and of a Gay Spirit, alledging to this purpose that Paffage " of the Scripture, which fays, I fan the Coune temances tenances of the Angels joyful. If he chanc'd in ' Company to fay fome Evil word, or forbore fome Days to Pray to God, he was prefently 'advertiz'd in his Sleep. If he read in a Book ' that was not Good, the Spirit struck on the Book to make him leave off; and he was af-' foon directed, if he did any thing against his 'Health, and was carefully guarded in his Sicknefs. In fhort, he has told me fo many ' Particulars, that it would be endless to relate them all; but above all, he was advertis'd to rife ' in the Morning, and commonly about Four of the Clock, and fays, he heard a Voice in ' his fleep which faid, Who is it that will rife first to ferve God ? He fays alfo, he was often adver-' tis'd to give Alms, and the more Alms he gave, the more he found his Affairs to profper; and ' as his Enemies had refolved to kill him, knowing that he was to go by Water, he had a ' Vision in his Dream, that his Father brought ' him two Horses, one Red, and the other White; ' which made him fend to hire two Horfes, and ' his Man brought him two Horfes, one Red, and the other White, he having not told him of what Colour he would have them. I ask'd him, why he fpoke not openly to the Spirit; 'he answer'd me, that he once pray'd him to fpeak to him, but prefently the Spirit ftruck with violence against the Door, as though it had been with an Hammer; giving him to 'Understand, that he took no Pleasure in it, and often he put him by of reading and writing, that he might give reft to his Mind, and Meditate alone, he hearing often a very fubtle and inarticulate Voice. I ask'd him if he had never seen the Spirit in a Form, he told me, he had never feen any thing waking, unlefs

' it were a fort of a Light, in a round Form, ' and very clear. I omit fome other Immaterial Particulars concerning this Perfon in Bodin, who concludes his Relation of him thus. 'I was willing to relate what I have known 'from fuch a Person, to let Men undestand, [•] that an Affociation with Evil Spirits ought not ' to be look'd upon as ftrange, if Angels, and Good Spirits have fuch a Society and Intelligence with Men. But as for what he fays, ' that the Good Angel touch'd his Ear, this is well noted in the Book of Fob, chap. 33. and 'in Ilaiah, chap. 50. where he fays, Dominus "vellicarit mibi aurem diluculo; and Fob fays it ' better yet, discovering to understanding Men ' the Secret, by which God by little and little makes himfelf fenfibly known; and as for ' what he fays, he heard ftriking with an 'Hammer, we read it was the first Mark of the Prophets, for in the Book of Judges, it's faid ' of Manon, that the Angel of God began to ' knock before him, as Rabbi David fays, where ' the Hebrew word, Lepaghamo, fignifies to knock, ' and to found, ring or ting, from the word ' Pabamen, which fignifies a little Bell, or Ta-

' brette, &c. So far Bodin. Mr. Baxter, in his Historical Discourse of Apparitions and Wirebes, writes thus. There is now in London an Understanding, Sober, Pious Man, oft one of my Hearers, who has an Elder Brother, a Gentleman of confiderable Rank, who having formerly feem'd Pious, of late Years does often fall into the Sin of Drunkennels; he often Lodges long together here in his Brother's House; and whensoever he is Drunk, and has slept himself Sober, fomething Knocks at his Bed's Head, as if one knock'd knock'd on a Wainfcot; When they remove his Bed, it follows him : Befide other loud Noifes on other Parts where he is, that all the Houfe hears, they have often watch'd him, and kept his Hands, left he should do it himself : his Brother has often told it me, and brought his Wife, a difcreet Woman, to atteft it; who averrs, morever, that as fhe watch'd him, fhe has feen his Shooes under the Bed taken up, and nothing visible touch them. They brought the Man himfelf to me, and when we ask'd him, how he dare Sin again, after fuch a warning, he has no Excuse: but being Persons of Quality, for fome special Reason of Worldly Intereft, I must not Name him. Two things are Remarkable in this Instance. 1. What a Powerful thing Temptation and Fleshly Concupiscence is, and what an harden'd Heart Sin brings Men to; if one role from the Dead to warn fuch Sinners, it would not of it felf perfwade them.

2. It Pofes me to think what kind of Spirit this is, that has fuch a care of this Man's Soul, which makes me hope he will recover. Do good Spirits dwell fo near us? or, Are they fent on fuch Meffages? or, Is it his Guardian Angel? or, Is it the Soul of fome Dead Friend? that fuffers, and yet retaining Love to him, as Dives to his Brethren, would have him faved? God yet keeps fuch things from us in the Dark. The fame Author, in his faid Book has inferted a Relation fent him by a Gentleman in a Letter, concerning strange Noises, as follows.

" Mr. Harlakenden, who liv'd at Coln Priory in ' Effex (where I often was, his Son being my Pupil) formerly the House of the Earls of Oxford ; N 4 ford ; off from the House was a Tomb-House, with a Chamber over it ; his Butler, Robert Crow, and William his Coachman, us'd to lie ' in that Room; at two of the Clock in the 'Morning there was always the found of a great Bell tolling; they affirming it fo, Mr. "Harlakenden slept in the Evening, fo as to be ' awak'd at one of the Clock, and lay betwixt ' his two Servants to fatisfie himfelf; at two of the Clock comes the usual found of a great Bell tolling, which put him into a fright and fweat, fo as he jog'd his Servants; who a-'waking, faid, Hark ! Tom is at his Sport. It 'reviv'd him to hear them speak. Upon a ' particular occasion, Mr. Thomas Shepherd (who afterwards went to New-England) with ' fome other Ministers, and good People, spent 'a Night in Prayer, and had fome respect to the place, ferving God, to cast out the Devil; 'and from that time, never was any fuch Noise heard in the Chamber. This I had from Mr. Harlakenden's own Mouth; and his ' Servants, ear Witneffes, when I was upon the ^c place. So far this Account.

Another Relation in this kind, I have fent me in a Letter by an Ingenious and Learned Clergy-Man of Wiltschire, who had given me the Relation before, by word of Mouth. It is as follows.

'Near Eighty Years fince, in the Parish of Wilcot (which is by the Devizes) in the Vi-'car's-House there, was heard for a confiderable time, the found of a Bell conflantly tolling 'every Night; the occasion was this; a Debauch'd Person who liv'd in the Parish, came 'one Night very late, and demanded the Keys of the Church of the Vicar, that he might ring ring a Peal, which the Vicar refus'd to let him have, alledging the unfeafonablenefs of the time, and that he fhould by granting his desires, give a disturbance to Sir George ' Wroughton, and his Family, whole Houle ad-'joyn'd to the Church-Yard. Upon this re-' fufal the Fellow went away in a Rage, threat-' ning to be reveng'd of the Vicar, and going · sometime after to the Devizes ; met with one Cantle, or Cantlow, a Perfon noted in those Days for a Wizard; and he tells him how the · Vicar had ferv'd him, and begs his help to be even with him. The reply Cantel made him was this; Does he not Love Ringing? He ' shall have enough of it: And from that time, ' a Bell began to toll in his House, and conti-' nued fo to do tillCantel's Death, who confess'd, 'at Filberton Goal, in Sarum, (where he was " confin'd by King James during his Life) that he caus'd that found, and that it should be heard in that place during his Life. The thing " was fo Notorious, that Perfons came from all Parts to hear it: And King James fent a Gen-' tleman from London, on purpose to give him ' fatisfaction concerning the truth of the Re-'port. This Relation I had from Francis Wroughton Elq; Sir George's Son, who liv'd more than Ninety Years; he never heard the found of the Bell, being abroad at School, but he hasheard it averr'd to be true, by all the Neighbours of repute; and particularly often by his Father, who was at no fmall Expence in Entertaining Strangers, whofe curiofity led them thither. I have only this Circumstance to add, That the found was heard only by those who were in the House, nay, if any one put his Head out of the Window, he could not hear the found, which,

which yet they at the fame time did, who were in the Room.

The Gentleman's Name who fent me this Relation, is Wroughton, and is of Sir George's Family.

Beda, treating of the Seven Wonders of the World, tells us, That in the Capital at Rome, there were Statues fet up for all the Provinces Conquer'd by the Romans, or Images of their Gods; and that on the Breafts of the Statues the Names of the Nations were written, and little Bells were hung about their Necks, and Priefts were appointed to attend there Succeffively Day and Night, to guard those Statues, and to observe them with great Attention, whether any of them mov'd, and caus'd the little Bell to ring, by which they knew what Nation was about to rebel against the Romans; of which the Priests gave the Roman Princes Notice, who prefently provided for things accordingly.

Angelus Rocca, l. de Campan. c. 6. tells us of many Bells, that were wont to found before Perfons Deaths of their own accord. Accounts of the like Nature having been given us by other Writers: And Monfieur de L'Ancre, in his Book intitl'd, Of the Inconstancy of Dæmons, and evil Spirits, tells us, That in the Town of Bourdeaux, there was an honeft Canon of a Church, who had his Houfe for fome time troubl'd with Spirits, and that among other things, there was heard almost every Night a kind of Mufick, like that of an Espinette, fet with certain little Bells, fo Pleafant, that this partly took from him the fear and apprehension of the Spirits.

Kircher, in his Obelifeus Pamphilius, p. 544. tells us, us, The Agyptians thought, that by the found of the Sistrum, their Priests were variously inspir'd for performing Works of Divination, which Famblicus well explains, faying, 'Va-' rious kinds of Motions in the World, answer 'to various Orders of the Gods, and certain " kinds to certain of them; now from these va-' rious Melodies flow, which likewife agree, each by their Motions, to certain Gods in Order, the Principles of those Motions. These 'being every where, beftow their Gifts chiefly ' to those that belong to them, are chiefly pre-' fent to Sounds and Melodies that chiefly agree ' to them, and infinuating themfelves into our Spirits affected with them, they posses the ' Man, and prefently wholly Work in him by ' their Effence and Power.

I fhall conclude this Chapter, with a Relation fomewhat in this kind from Paracellus; tho' how far Spirits may be concern'd in the Matter, I fhall not determine.

He begins the Sixth Book of his Archidoxes, thus. No Man can deny but Compositions of Metals, may Work wonderful things in Supernaturals, which may be made good by many Proofs, as I shall clearly show beneath; for if you Compound all the Seven Metals in a date Order and fit time, and melt them together, as it were into one Mafs, you will have fuch a Metal, in which all the Virtues of the Seven Planets are joyn'd together ; you will find all these Virtues in that one Metal, which we call Electrum. And baneath he writes ; you must know that our Elesrum (which is Compounded of the Soven Metals) thives away all evil Spirits; for in our Eland, the Operation on of the Heav'ns, and Influences of the Seven Planet5

Planets are ftor'd up. Therefore the Ancient Perfian Magi, and the Chaldmans found out and perform'd many things by its means. I cannot here conceal a very great Miracle, which I faw wrought by a Spanish Nercromancer, who had a Bell not exceeding two Pounds Weight, which, as often as he rung, he could caufe to appear about him many Spirits and Spectres of various Kinds; for when he pleas'd, he drew fome Words and Characters on the inward furface of the Bell, and afterwards, if he rung it, a Spirit prefently appear'd in any Form he would have him: By the found alfo of the faid Bell he could draw to him alfo, or drive from him many other Visions and Spirits, and even Men and Beafts; as I faw with my Eyes many of these things done by him : But as often as he would undertake fome New thing, fo often he renewed his Words and Characters; but he would not reveal to me the Secret of these Words and Characters; though deeply confi-dering the thing my felf, I, at length, cafually found it ; which I shall not here disclose: but I plainly enough observ'd, there was more Importance in the Bell than in the Words, for the Bell was certainly made of our Electrum. So far Paracellus.

I may here note, That fome Perfons have told my felf, that they have feen a conftellated Plate here in London, made of fuch Electrum, which, if put under a Man's Pillow at Night, will make him hear Heavenly Mufick.

What perception fome Perfons have had of Genii, or Spirits, and their Operations by the Senfe of Hearing, when others prefent have heard nothing.

HO' as Ludovicus Vives fays, Good and L.de Anim. Evil Spirits have certain Actions unknown c. de Cogn. to us, as Men have among themfelves, which Brutes understand not ; for as Men move each others Fancies and Minds by Words, Nods, Gestures, Letters, or Signs which furpass the Knowledge of Brutes; fo Spiritual Effences may agitate our Fancy by fome Action, proper, and known only to themfelves, the Imaginative faculty first mov'd; yet we do not ascribe all strange things wrought by the Fancy, to the Operation of Spirits; for as the fame Author fays, fome by the meer Action of the Fancy, feem to have got themfelves posted in a state of great Happiness, as we find of him in Horace.

This Inftance we find relates to the Senfe of Hearing, (Horace faying he heard Actors) when only the Perfon concern'd Hears, though we may probably judge he faw the Actors, as well as heard them. So Galen tells us, of a certain Phyfician, nam'd Theophilas, who being ill of a Fever, heard Mufical Inftruments continually playing in his Chamber, and being recover'd perfifted ftill to affirm the thing real. So Barthelin tells us, of a Student of a Melancholick Complexion, Cent. 7. Hist. 83.

Complexion, and diffracted with Grief for the Death of a Sifter, who faid he heard a Celeftial kind of Musick.

We know its faid of Pythagoras and Apollonius Tyanaus, That they heard the Harmony of the Spheres, which tho' fome interpret otherwife, I know not why it may not be thought, they heard fome Celeftial Harmony; this having hapned to feveral Perfons befide themfelves. An Ancient contemplative Gent. now living in London, has told me, That for Forty Years past he had never retired to Contemplation, as he daily did, but he heard an Heavenly Mufick : And I know many others who have often heard the fame, as I must declare I have often heard it my felf, tho' other Perfons prefent with us at the fame time, hear it not, as we do.

Delrio and Torreblanca write, That the Hearing Difg. mag. being vitiated, is wont to deceive us, as it 1.2. quest. happens in Persons troubled with the Morbus 27. Sell. 1. Imaginofus; of which Distemper Learned Men operat.c. 15 make two kinds, one more commonly call'd a Fren(y, when Phantasms are represented to the Mind in visible Species : Concerning which kind you may coufult Cornelius Celfus, and Clalins Aurelianns, and this belongs to the depravation of the Fancy: the other kind is called Corybantiasmus, which takes Sleep from the Sight, and vitiates the Ears, whereby Men feem to hear Ringings and Sounds.

Concerning this Difease Scaliger writes thus. Corybantiasmus is a Disease of the Imagination, which superstitious Antiquity believ'd to be fent by the Corybantes. It feem'd to the Perfons affected with it, that their Ears were always filled with a Noife of Mulick and Singing: those who labour under this Discase are troubled with with Watchings, or want of Sleep, or at leaft with a light Sleep, having their Eyes open; for they have always their Minds intent on Images; whence those that Sleep with their Eyes open were faid to act like the Corybantes, fuch having no found Sleep, by reason of Images and Sounds. So Varro in Prometheo Satyr, Levisomna mens sonorinas Imagines Affatur, non umbræntur somno pupilla,

To this relates that Paffage of Plautus, in fome Comedy of his, the name of which is ftill in queftion.

Mecum habet Patagus æs morbus.

L.5.c.19. Which paffage, in the Notes fet forth by Gronovius on Macrobius is referr'd to the Corybantes, or Priests of Cybele. Patagus denoting the fhaking of their Heads, As the confus'd found of Brass. Whence is that of the Poet.

> Nec te progenitum Cybeleius ære fonoro Luftravit Corybas — — —

The Difeafe it felf is called Corybantiafmus. L. 1. in To this Claudian feems to have alluded. Ruff.

Impatiensq; sui Morbus -----

And Lucretius,

Sollicitæ porro plenæque sonoribus aures.

The word Patagus comes from malasse, cum Strepitu palpito, Item Percutio, ferio: For when the Corybantes were raifed in a Fury, they shak'd their Heads, Danc'd, and run against each othr each other, firiking their Brass Bucklers, and causing a ringing of Brass, not without a Rhythmical Composition of the Dastyle Foot; from which Foot, and Mount Ida, they were called Dastyli Idaei.

Now tho' there be fuch a Difeafe, caufing Mufical Sounds in the Ear, this cannot rationally be imputed to Pytbagoras, Apollonius, or the Gentleman I before mentioned, and others; they not being troubled with want of Sleep, or fhort diffurbed Sleep, nor Sleeping with their Eyes open, which are fet forth as Symptoms of it.

To proceed to give an account of a perception of other Sounds by the Hearing, which by fome are imputed to Spirits, by others to other Caufes, we find among the fuperflitious obfervations of the Gentiles, if any Perfon had a Ringing in his Ears, it was taken as an Omen; and as Pliny fays, it was L. 28. c. 2. ufual for Perfons abfent to perceive that others were talking of them, by a Ringing in the Ear: and to this purpofe there is an Elegant Latin Epigram, writ by a very ancient Poer, and first made publick by Joseph Scalliger, as he fays, in his Notes on Aufonius C. 16, Garrula quid totis refonas mihi noctibus auris? Nefcio quem dicunt nunc meminiffe mei. Hic quis fit, quæris, refonant tibi noctibus aures, Et refonunt totis; Delia te loquitur. Non dubié loquitur me Delia : mollior aura Venit : & exili murmure dulcè fremit. Delia non aliter fecreta filentia noctis Summiffa, ac tenui rumpere voce fokt.

An Account of Genii,

Would you know who? your ear all night does found, All night: It's Delia's Voice there does rebound. It's surely Delia talks of me, a noise Comes (oft and gently, with (weet murmuring voice, Ev'n as my Delia with foft voice delights To break the fecret Silence of the Nights.

Var. bift. 1. 4. 6. 17.

And as Alian tells us, Pythagoras thought fomewhat Divine lay hid in thefe Ringings, he faying, the found which very often happens in the Ears, is the Voice of the Gods, or Damons.

1.2. 4 10.

In Alcib. Plat.

As for the way that Men perceive thefe Sest. Antiq Sounds and Voices, Rhodiginus tells us, that Socrates perceived his Spirit by Senfe, not by the Sense of his Body, but, as the Platonicks were fully perfwaded, by the Senfe of the Ætheaftreal Body lying hid within us; after which way alfo Avicenna thought Angels were wont to be feen and heard by the Prophets; for the words of Damons pals every where, as Plutarch fays, but their found is only heard by those that keep their Minds in a calm, and composed State, undisturbed by Passions, whom we call Sacred and Demonial Men: unless we had rather explain Socrates's perception of his Dæmon, according to Proclus, as follows, The Voice did not come to Socrates paffively from without, but an Inspiration of his Damon from within, proceeding throughout the whole Soul, and paffing to the Organs of the Senfes, a Voice at length manifested it felf, as coming to knowledge, not fo much by Senfe, as by Confent; for fuch illustrations are wont to happen from good Dæmons, and the Gods. Whence Maximus Tyrius fays, You wonder Sucrates came to a familiarity with a Damon, who who was as a friendly Prophet to him, and continually fo attended him, that he feem'd, as it were, Interwoven with his Mind.

So Piccolomeni fays, Socrates heard the voice L. de De. socr. of his Dæmon, not with the Ear of his Body, L. de Rero but of his Mind: wherefore others did not vel. c. Dæ-Hear it, for it was an internal reprefentation mon. of the Voice to the common Senfe and Fancy.

James Gobory alfo, who took on him the Name of Leo Suavius, in his Comment on a Paffage in Paracelfus, 1. 5. de vita longa c. 3. tells us of a found that is made by the Powder of Projection in the Transmutation of Metals, (which I think is to be taken in a Spiritual Sense) of which found he fays the mystical Books of the Spagyrifts make mention, as Augurellus.

Indicio est etiam sonus binc obtusus & aure Deprebendi baud facilis

He adds, The Author of The dangerous Fountain fays, Thère is made a certain Melody, which fometimes ceafes as it were by the Magick Art. And elfewhere, the wonderful found of a ftrange Bell ftrikes my Ear. And Paracelsus himfelf fays, Tympanaq; nobis Anonidi-L de vit. dica reddunt: by the word Anonididica, mean-long. c. 5. ing gentle Anodine Sounds', composing the Mind.

Cardan writes thus: Not only in all Sneez- De Rer. ings, but in other kinds of Prefagings, there var. 1. 13. are thefe things to be obferved; Firft, that it c.87. be no natural thing, but fomething differing from the natural; as it was in that Ringing, wherewith I was admonifh'd for many Years, of any Fame or Rumour concerning me; for O 2 this this was not like to a Morbous affect, which now I have fometimes experience of; for this is inward, and as it were fix'd and troublefome, Light, and coming from without, and as it were feparate; moreover it fhakes my whole Head, as tho' it would compel me to take notice of it; a wonderful thing truly, and almost Incredible: and it's known chiefly from this, that it's Familiar, and in a manner always happens when I am upon fome businefs of concern; nor does it happen in Difeafes. So far Cardan. We know the causes of common Ringings in the Ear.

Schol. Sa- Motus, longa fames, vomitus, percussio, casus, lern. Ebrietas, Frigus, tinnitum causat in aure.

But thefe Ringings Cardan fpeaks of, are of another nature, of which I have had a woderful experience my felf; tho' I may not exprefs it as Lather does, who in his Table Talk tells us, that An. 1530, he was at Coburg, where he was plagu'd in fuch fort with a founding and ringing in his Ears, that it was as if a Wind went out of his Head, the Devil driving it.

Ricoldus, in his confutation of the Law given by Mahomet to the Saracens, writes thus, Mahomet being troubled with the Falling Sicknefs (a Difeafe incident to Great Men, as Aristotle observes in Socrates, Callimachus, and Hercules, to whom we may add Scotus and many others) least others should think him really troubled with it, still as he fell down in his Trances, fay'd that an Angel Convers'd with him, and gave him certain Answers, with the found of a Bell in his Ear. Now, as for hearing founds of Bells, I never heard of any Perfon, who has had fo much experience in that kind as my felf; tho' I know one Perfon, and have been well inform'd of others, who have fometimes heard the Sounds of Bells after the fame manner. But in two Spiritual Visitations that have happen'd to me, some Years distance the one from the other (of which I may give fome account in this Book) I have heard Bells for feveral Weeks together, and that of all forts, from the greateft Church Bells, to a little Hawk's Bell. Sometimes I have heard a Church. Bell gently Tolling; fometimes Bells Ringing in Peal Solemnly, as at a Funeral; fometimes Merry round Ringing, as at Weddings: For fome Weeks together, every Night, as foon as I was in Bed, a Spirit came with a little Bell Ringing in my Ear, and a Voice always Talking to me, and many other varieties I have had in that kind, and that both by Day and by Night ; tho' no Perfon prefent with me at the fame time, has heard any thing, as they told me, upon my enquiry of them. I haveheard every Night, for fome time, Hundreds of Spirits, coming, as it feem'd to me, first at a great distance, Singing, and Ringing hand Bells, who gradually approach'd my House, the Sound feeming nearer and nearer, till at length they came to my Chamber Windows, and fome would come into my Chamber. The first Ringing Sound I heard, was of a Bell gently Tolling at one of my Chamber Windows, which looks to the South ; and at the fame time, at the fame Window, I heard a Spirit striking gentle strokes with a small Rod, as it feem'd to me, on a Brass Pan, or Bason, 0 tuning 3 tuning his ftrokes to a call he us'd, Come away to me, Come away to me; and just upon it another Spirit, at another of my Chamber Windows, which look'd to the East, called to me in a louder and earnest Tone, Come away to me, Come away to me. I shall here forbear any farther particular Account in this kind, as to my own Experience, and shall set down fomewhat relating to what is faid before, as to Ringing of Bells and Brafs, practifed by the Ancient Gentiles.

L.decamp. Angelus Rocca, tells us, It was believed by the Gentiles, that the Manes, or rather Dæmons were driven away by the ringing of Brass, or Bells, as it appears from Ovid, where he fays of the Ghosts or Manes.

> Rursus aquam tangit, Temesaág; concrepat æra, Et rogat ut tectis exeat umbra (uis : Cum dixit novies, manes exite paterni, Respicit, & pure, Sacra peracta putat.

Again be walkes, rings Templaan Brals, And prays the Manes from his House to pass; Then Nine times Cries, Paternal Ghosts be gone, So looks about, thinks Sacred Rites are done.

Therefore the Gentiles thought that by the found of Bells, Evil, or offensive Genii were driven away, or reftrained from giving disturbance, because the Manes (as Hieronymus Magins fays) were thought to love Silence. Whence by the Poets they were called Silentes, as Ovid fays in the fame Book,

Mon eisam hommes animas dixere filentum.

Where-

Wherefore as often as fuch Ghosts have fpoken, they are faid to have us'd rather a low and muttering Voice, than a clear one, as Ovid fays, Ib.

Umbra cruenta Remi vifa est assistere lecto Atq; bæc exiguo murmure vifa loqui.

Remus his Bloody Ghost stood by the Bed, And with low murmur these words uttered.

In reference to this Remigius writes concer- Damma. ning fuch as were accus'd of Witchcraft, and latr. 1. 1. converse with evil Spirits, as follows. Nicolea c. 8. Granatia, Eva Hescletia, Jana-nigra Armacuriana, and many others, fay, the Spirits have fuch a Voice, as one that puts his Head in an Empty Hogshead, or craz'd Veffel, and therefore always in speaking hold their Heads downwards, as Perfons asham'd, or felf confcious of some Crime are wont to do; or at leaft, they have a small and weak Voice. So Hermolaus Barbarus, faid he heard a Voice of an hiffing Damon, as he answer'd himself, and Georgius Placentinus, asking him concerning the meaning of Aristotle's Entelechia. The Elm alfo, mention'd in Philostratus, that is, as I conceive, the Damon of Thefpion, speaking from the Elm, by his command, who was the Eldeft of the Gymnofophists, faluted Apollonius coming to them, with a Slender Voice. The Lecanomancy also of the Affyrians and Chaldaans, was wont to effect this, that the Dæmons deliver'd their Words from the Bason with a stridulous and low hissing. So far Remigius.

L. 4.c. 16. In ita Ilidori.

To this I may add, what Le Loyer writes, in in his Hiftory of Spectres, viz. Damascius a Pagan Philosopher, relates, that the Familiar Spirits lying hid in round confectated Bowls. which he calls Betyles, answer'd those that confulted them, in a fmall and Inarticulate Voice, that it feem'd rather an hiffing, than a Speech, and had need of Interpreters. The name Betyles is Syriack, and was taken from the Hebrews, who call'd those Places Bethel, where the Patriarch Jacob plac'd Stones, for a Mark that he had there ador'd God ; the Syrians turn'd this to their Superstition, and call'd Betyles their animated Stones, or Stones in which a God or Dæmen was hid. Our Learned Selden, writes of those Betyles. L. de Diis Syris.

But to pass by other Relations in this kind, and to fpeak of my own Experience; fome Spirits that convers'd with me for fome Months together, had a Low-funk Voice, as many Perfons have in Colds, but it was without any Hoarfenefs, being very clearly difcernable; the Spirits I heard coming to me finging in the Evenings, had clear Voices; and that Spirit which came Nightly to me for fome time, with a Bell in my Ear, had a very clear and refonant Voice.

Br. s, and its ringing were also us'd by the Gentiles, on feveral other Accounts, and that for the same Reason, viz. It's purifying Na-L. 19. c.1. ture ; concerning, which Cal. Rhodig. writes thus : The Interpreter of Theocritus, in the Foer's Pharmaceutria writes, that Brass was thought by the Ancients to be of great Virtue in Sacred Rites, and Excantations, and therefore was wont to be us'd in Eclipses of the Moon, and at Mens Deaths, becaufe it was thought thought more pure than other things, and expiatory of Pollutions ; therefore they us'd it in all Purifications, as Apollodorus has writ, 1. de Diis. And Sophocles, in his Tragedy, which is call'd Rhizotomi, that is, the Cutters of Roots, writes of Medea cutting Herbs with a brafs Knife, and putting the Juice into brafs Veffels. And Macrobins writes, That brass Veffels were us'd chiefly in those Sacred Rites, with which they would compose the Minds of Persons, or confecrate them, or Cure Difeafes. And the Priefts of the Subines, were wont to have their Hair Cut with a Brafs Knife ; and it's manifest, that the most Ancient Greeks us'd in many things the found of Brafs, as a most Powerful thing. As for the Reafon of the Ancients in giving aid to the Moon, when in an Eclipse, by a confus'd noife of Brass, Alexander gives it us thus; Men rung Iron and Brafs, becaufe they thought Dæmons were driven away by it, at the time that the Planets cannot convey their Influence to the Earth, which is for the Benefit of Men.

Some tell us, That by the ringing Noife of Brafs, the force of Magick Charms was hindred from reaching to the Moon, the Charmers Voice being confounded by it, and that by this means relief was thought to be giv'n the Moon, when in a Eclipfe; for Brafs is the moft fonorous of all the Metals, it having a fhrill and penetrating found; whence Homer gave Juno the Epithet $\chi^{a \lambda x a o g \acute{a} v \odot}$, and Spomdanus, on Homer, thinks a moft refonant Voice was aptly giv'n her, becaufe a Voice is nothing but the Air ftruck, and by Juno is meant the Air.

Magius,

L. de Tintin. c. 11: Caufes, think by the Searchers into Natural Caufes, think by the found of Bells the violent injury of Tempests, Winds and Hailftorms is driven away, because fuch ringing greatly agitates, cuts and breaks the Air, which appears from hence; that when Bees rife in a Swarm, and begin to fly away, they are forc'd to pitch again by a gentle ringing of Brass, the Air being cut and fever'd, and scarce bearing their flight; though fome think Bees then pitch upon the Air's being moved, because they are delighted with the ringing; which I leave to the judgment of others.

Apollodorus fays, the Prieft of Proferpina was wont to ring a little Bell in her Sacred Ceremonies; and the Prieft of the Syrian Goddels, alfo was wont to ufe a little Bell, as Lucian writes. The Prieft, after he is come to the uppermoft part of the Temple, Prays for the whole Congregation; and in praying he alfo rings a certain little Bell. Robertellus, alfo in Octavian Augustus, gives testimony of this Custom, when he speaks of the Gates and tops of Temples. The top is compass'd about with Bells; the Bells were wont to hang for the most part over the Gates of Temples.

Fungerus, in his Etymologicum Trilinque, tells us, the Hebrew word for As, is Necuschob, or Nechofcheth, from the word Nachosob, that is, he made an Auguration, he has Divin'd, he has Ominated, he has had certain Conjectures. Some think the reason of the Name to be, that haply from the sound of a ringing Bell, fome Observation was made in Auguries, Divinations, and the like Conjectures; and Gronovius, in his learned Exercitations on Stephanus Byzantinus's Fragment, de Dodone, tells us, That because Oracles, and and Divinations are denoted by the word Nechofob , which fignifies also Brass and Lebetes, hence in the Dodon an Oracle Brass Bells, Lebetes and Tripods, were excogitated, when only Oracles and Divinations were to be underftood. Mr. Rolle in his View of the Religions of Alia, will have it, that the Bells hanging at the Pallium of the High Priest of the Jews, denoted Chrift's Prophetick Office, though I know other Significations are afcrib'd to it by other Writers. And Plutarch, In Symposi. introduces Metagenes, an Athenian, who, as well for other Reasons there given, as for the Jews High Priests wearing the said Bells, which make a noife, as he walks, will have the God of the Jews to be the fame with Bacchus, becaufe in their Country, in the Nocturnal Sacrifices of Bacchus, call'd Ny Etelia, they made a great noife, and the Nurses of Bacchus, were call'd Chalcodrifta, as much as to fay, Scrapers of Bras. The ftrong Impreffion made on me by the noife of Bells in my Spiritual Visitations led me to draw these things together from the Anci-ents, which I leave to the Readers Consideration.

CHAP. VII.

What perception Men have had of Spirits, and their Operations by all their Senfes.

THO' the Senfes of Seeing and Hearing, are the chief Senfes concern'd in a Perception of Spirits, and their Operations, yet the other Senfes fometimes are fome way affected by them. For, as St. Auftin, fays, The Evil work of the Devil creeps through all the Paffages of the Senfes; he prefents himfelf in Figures, applies himfelf to Colours, adheres to Sounds, introduces Odours, infufes himfelf in Savours, and fills all the Paffages of Intelligence; fometimes cruelly tormenting with Grief and Fear, fometimes fportingly diverting Man, or taunting with Mocks.

According to this Paffage of St. Auftin, Mr. John Pordage, in his Book writ in vindication of himfelf from Necromancy, &c. publish'd in London, An. 1655. After having fet forth, that his Maid-Servant, Elizabeth Benwel, had depos'd before the Commissioners, that she had heard Musick in his House, when the knew not that any Instruments or Musicians were in the House; and that the had heard it in the Kitchen, and in her Mistreffes Closet, and thought the fame to be near her, but faw none playing: Which Fact Mr. Pordage does not oppose. And he there confession, that in August August 1649, there appear'd in his Bed-Chamber, about the middle of the Night, a Spirit in the shape of one Everard (whom he fuspe-Ated to be a Conjurer, and to be inftrumental in raifing up those Apparitions which himfelf and others law) with his wearing Apparel, Bands, Cuffs, Hat, &c. who, after his fudden drawing of the Bed-Curtains, feem'd to walk once through the Chamber very eafily, and fo difappear'd : And that the fame Night there appear'd to him a great Dragon, which feem'd to take up most of a large Room, having great Teeth and open Jaws; whence he often ejected Fire against him, which came with fuch a Magical Influence, that it almost struck the Breath out of his Body; and this Apparition continued 'till the Day began to dawn, and then difappear'd. I fay, having fet forth this, he proceeds to declare fome extraordinary things, which few had been made acquainted with, and which at that time were feen and experimented by himfelf, and others with him. He writing as follows:

Our inward fpiritual Eyes being open'd in an extraordinary way, two invifible internal Principles were laid open and difcover'd to us, which may be call'd Mundi Ideales, being two fpiritual Worlds, which feem'd very much differing the one from the other, as having contrary Qualities and Operations, by which they work upon this vifible Creation. He fays, One of thofe internal Worlds may be call'd Mundus tenebrofus, the dark World, whofe Objects, by their correspondent inward Faculties or Senfes were then difcover'd and made known to them. The other World, he fays, may be call'd, Mundus' uminofus, or, the the light World, which, with its various Objects, was then likewife open'd to their inward Senfes; for befide their internal Sight, they had their other internal fpiritual Faculties of fpiritual Senfation, open'd to difcern their various Objects within thefe Worlds.

1. As to the Objects of the internal Sight, when the dark Principle or World was open'd, they beheld innumerable multitudes of evil Spirits or Angels, prefenting themfelves in appearing diffinctions of Order and Dignity. The Princes of this dark World, and their Subjects, prefented themfelves, as passing before their Eyes, in Pomp and State; all the mighty ones appearing to be drawn in dark aiery Clouds, Chariots with Six, or at least Four Beafts to each one; befide, every figure or fimilitude of a Coach was attended with many inferior Spirits, as Servants to the Princes: The Animals that drew the cloudy Coaches, appear'd in the shapes of Lyons, Dragons, Elephants, Tygers, Bears, and fuch like terrible Beafts. Besides, the Princes and those that attended them, tho' all in the fhapes of Men, yet represented themselves monstrously mishapen, and with Ears like those of Cats, cloven Feet, ugly Legs and Bodies, Eyes fiery, fharp, and piercing. Befide these appearances within, the Spirits made fome wonderful Impressions on Bodies without; as, Figures of Men and Beafts upon the Glass-Windows and the Ceilings of the Houfe; fome of which yet remain. But what was most remarkable was, the whole visible World represented by the Spirits upon the Bricks of the Chimney, in the form of two half Globes, as in Maps. After which, upon other Bricks of the fame Chimney was figur'd 2 a Coach and four Horfes, with Perfons in it, and a Footman attending, all feeming to be in motion; with many other fuch Images, which feem'd to be wonderful, exactly done. Now, fearing left there might be any danger in thefe Images, through unknown Conjuration, and falfe Magick, we endeavour'd to wafh them out with wet Cloaths, but could not, finding them engraven in the fubftance of the Bricks, which indeed might have continued 'till this Day, had not fear and fufpicion of Witchcraft, and fome evil defign of the Devil againft us in it, caus'd us to deface and obliterate them with Hammers.

He adds beneath. But to fhut up this relation of the Objects we faw in this dark World, I muft add this, that were but the Eyes of Men open to fee the Kingdom of the Dragon in this World, with the multitudes of evil Angels, which are every where tempting and enfnaring Men, they would be amaz'd, and not dare to be by themfelves, without good Confciences, and a great affurance of the Love and Favour of God, in protecting them, by the Miniftration of the Holy Angels.

2. As to the Objects of the inward and outward Smell, he fays, That within three Weeks fpace, in which thefe Wonders appear'd, at feveral times, the evil Angels, or Spirits raifed up fuch noifome poyfonous Smells, that both the inward and outward parts of thofe that were exercifed with them, became much difturbed and offended, for through the Sympathy betwixt the Body and the Soul, the fulphurous hellifh Smells much exercifed both by Magical Tincturation.

3. In reference to the Objects of the Tafte, he fays, That fometimes both Night and Day they were exercis'd with the loathfome Hellifh Taftes of Sulphur, Brimftone, Soot and Salt mingled together; which were fo loathfome to them, that they were like to caufe great Diftempers, and Naufeoufnefs in their Bodies, had they not been fupported by God, beyond their own ftrength.

4. In Relation to their outward and inward Touch, they were much exercifed both in Body and Soul; as to their Souls they fometimes felt fuch ftrange and Magical Wounds, and piercings by the fiery Darts of the Devil, that none can Express them, but those that have been exercis'd in fome Measure, as Job was. As to their Bodies they felt Material Impressions from the Powers of Darkness, very noxious, in themselves, as to their Natural Spirits, and Life, but born by them, by quiet Submission to the Will of God.

As to the Internal Light World. 1. There appear'd then to their inward Sight, multitudes almost innumerable of pure Angelical Spirits, in Figurative Bodies, which were clear as the Morning Star, and transparent as Crystal, sparkling like Diamonds, and fending forth Beams like the Sun, powerfully refreshing their Souls, and enlivening their Bodies.

2. In Relation to the inward Senfe of Hearing, there were many Mufical Sounds and Voices, like those that St. John heard in Mount Sion, the Sweetness, Harmony and Pleasantness of which cannot be express'd; nor that Spiritual Joy and Delight, which by them was infus'd into their Souls, be utter'd by the Tongue, it ravishing their Spirits into the high Praises of Jebovah. 3. In

3. In Relation to the faculty of Smelling, the Tongue can hardly express those Heavenly Odours, and Perfumes which then were finelt, piercing into the very Spirit, beside the quickning Vertue, which by them was Communicated and Insinuated into the Spirits of their outward Bodies, which like a Cordial had been able to have renew'd the strength of their Languishing Nature.

4. Their Senfe or Faculty of Tafting was very Pleafantly entertain'd with those invisible Dews, which were fweeter than Honey; with which, instead of Food, they were many times wonderfully refresh'd.

5. In Relation to the Senfe of Spiritual Contact, that was alfo delighted with its Heavenly Objects: for he fays, none can utter those pleasing Impressions, which the burning Tincture of the Light World afforded them, coming like an hot Cordial into the Center of their Spirits, being fensibly felt in the inner Parts, fo as to cause much Joy and Heavenly Pleasures, which penetrated through their Souls, and gave them occasion to Praise and Magnify God.

Thus, he fays, for the space of three Weeks, or a Month, they were exercised inwardly and outwardly, through that great Combat that was betwixt those two Worlds, and their Inhabitants; the Dark World fometimes Afflicting them with dreadful Shapes, abominable Smells, loathfome Tafts, with other Operations of the evil Angels; the light World, at other times opening, and relieving them with Odoriferous Perfumes, most fweet Dews, Glorious Visions, and Angelical Harmony. He adds, That now for the space of 4 Years, ever fince the time of these great Manifestations, they P have enjoy'd the exercise of their Spiritual Senses, which were never fince shut, nor would be, unless through Transgression and Disobedience, they ran back into the earthly Nature.

I have fet down this Relation, in fhort, from Mr. Pordage. And as for the Truth of it, it muft rely upon him, and the orher Perfons then concerned with him; but for my felf, I have no Reafon to Queftion the Truth of it: it being ufual with those that are train'd up to a contemplative Life; to have Visitations in that kind, both Internal and External.

L. I. Part I. c. 10. The learned Walter Hilton (a great Master of a contemplative Life) in his Scale of Perfection, fets forth, that Appearances, or Representations to the Corporeal Senses may be both Good and Evil. Writing as follows.

By what I have faid you may fomewhat underftand, that Visions, or Revelations, or any manner of Spirit in Bodily appearing, or in imagining, fleeping, or waking, or any other feeling in the Bodily Senfe, made as it were Spiritually, either by founding in the Ear, or favouring in the Mouth, or fmelling at the Nofe, or elfe any fenfible Heat, as it were Fire glowing, and warming the Breaft, or any other part of the Body, or any other thing that may be felt by Bodily fense, though it be never fo comfortable and liking, yet are they not contemplation it felf, but fimple and fecondary (though they are good) in refpect of the Spiritual Vertues, and of this Spiritual knowing and loving of God, accompanying true contemplation; but all fuch manner of feeling may be good, wrought by a good Angel, and they may be deceivable wrought by a wicked wicked Angel, when he transfigures himfelf into an Angel of Light; for the Devil may Counterfeit in Bodily feeling the likeneds of the fame things, which a good Angel may Work; for as a good Angel comes with Light, fo can the Devil; and as he can do this in Matters of Seeing, fo can he do it in Matters of the other Senfes; he that has felt both, can well tell which were good, and which were evil; but he that has never felt either, or elfe but one of them, may eafily be deceived.

These two are alike in the manner of feeling outwardly, but they are very differing within, and therefore they are not to be greatly defired, nor to be entertain'd lightly, unless a Soul can by the Spirit of Discretion, know the good from the evil; that it be not beguil'd, as St. John fays, Trust not every Spirit, but try 1 Joh. 14. first whether it be of God, or no. And to know 1. whether the Representation to the Bodily fenses, be good or evil, Hilton gives the fol- Chap. 11. lowing Rule.

If you fee, any manner of Light, or brightness with your Bodily Eye, or in Imaginati-on, other than every Man sees; or if you hear any wonderful pleafant founding with your Ear, or have in your Mouth any Iweet fudden Savour, other than what you know to be Natural, or any heat in your Breast like Fire, or any manner of Delight in any part of your Body, or if a Spirit appear Bodily to you, as it were an Angel to Comfort you, or teach you; or if any fuch feeling, which you know well comes not from your felf, nor from any Bodily Creature, bewareat that time, or prefently upon it, and wifely confider the flirrings of your Heart; for if by Occasion of the plea-P 2 fure fure and liking you take, in the faid Feeling, or Vision, you see your Heart drawn from the minding and beholding of Jefus Chrift, and from Spiritual Exercifes ; as from Prayer, and thinking of your felf, and your defects, or from the inward defire of Vertues, and of Spiritual knowing and feeling of God, to fet the fight of your Heart, and your Affection, your Delight and your reft Principally on the faid Feelings or Visions, supposing that to be a part of Heavenly Joy, or Angels Blifs, and thereupon come to think that you fhould neither Pray, nor think of any thing elfe, but wholly attend thereto, for to keep it, and delight your felf therein, then is this Feeling very fufpifcious to come from the Enemy; and therefore though it be never fo liking and wonderful, refuse it, and affent not thereto; for this is a flight of the Enemy to let, and beguile the Soul by fuch bodily Savours, or Sweetnefs in the Senfes, to bring it into Spiritual Pride, and into a Falle fecurity of it felf, flattering it felf that it had thereby a Feeling of Heavenly Joy, and that it is half in Paradife, by reafon of the Delight it feels about it, when indeed it's near to Hell Gates, and fo by Pride and Prefumption it might fall into Errors, or Herefies, or Phantafins, or other Bodily or Spiritual Mischiefs.

But if it be fo, that this manner of Feeling lcts not your Heart from Spiritual Exercises, but makes you more devout, and more fervent to Pray, more wife to think Spiritual Thoughts; and tho' it be fo, that it aftonishes you in the beginning, nevertheles, afterwards, it turns and quickens your Heart to more defire of Vertues, and encreases your Love more to God, and

and to your Neighbour; alfo it makes you more humble in your own Eyes. By thefe Tokens you may know it is of God, wrought by the prefence and working of a good Angel, and comes from the goodnefs of God, either for the comfort of fimple devout Souls, to increafe their truft and defire towards God, to feek thereby the knowing and loving of God more perfectly, by means of fuch Comforts : or elfe if they be Perfect that feel fuch delight, it feems to them to be an earneft, and as it were a fhadow of the glorifying of the Body, which it fhall have in the Blifs of Heaven; but I know not whether there be any fuch Men on the Earth.

He goes on. Of this way of difcerning the working of Spirits, speaks (St. John in his Epistle) thus, I John 4. 3. Omnis Spiritus qui solvit Jesum, hic non est ex Deo; Every Spirit that loofes, or unknits Jesus, he is not of God. This knitting and fastning of Jesus to a Man's Soul, is wrought by a good Will, and a great defire to him, only to have him, and fee him in his Blifs fpiritually. The greater this defire is, the faster is Fesus knit to the Soul; and the lefs this defire is, the loofer is he knit. Whatfoever Spirit therefore, or feeling it is, which leffens this Defire, and would draw it down from the ftedfast minding of Fefus Chrift, and from the kindly breathing and afpiring up to him, this Spirit will unknit Jesus from the Soul; and therefore it is not of God, but is the working of the Enemy. But if a Spirit, or a Feeling, or a Revelation make this defire more, knitting the knots of Love and Devotion faster to Fefus, opening the Eyes of the Soul into fpiritual knowing P 2 more more clearly, and makes it more humble in it felf, this Spirit is of God.

And hereby you may learn, that you are not to fuffer your Heart willingly to reft, nor to delight wholly in any fuch bodily Feelings, of fuch manner of Comforts, or Sweetnefs, tho' they were good; but rather hold them in your fight nought, or little in comparison of Spirital Defire, and ftedfaft thinking of \mathcal{Fefss} : nor fhall you faft'n the thought of your Heart over-much on them.

He goes on. But you fhall feek with great diligence in Prayer, that you may come to a fpiritual Feeling or Sight of God; that is, that you may know the Wifdom of God, the endlefs Might of him, his great Goodnefs in Himfelf, and in his Creatures; for this is Contemplation, and that other mentioned is none. Thus, fays St. Paul, being rooted and grounded in Charity, we may be able to comprehend. with all the Saints, what is the breadth, and length, and height, and depth. That you may know, he fays, not by found of the Ear, nor fweet favour in the Mouth, nor by any fuch bodily thing, but that you may know and feel with all Saints, what is the length of the endlefs Being of God ; the breadth of the wonderful Charity and Goodness of God; the height of His Almighty Majefty, and the bot-tomlefs depth of His Wifdom. In Knowing and spiritual Feeling of these, should be the exercife of a Contemplative Man; for in thefe may be underftood the full knowing of all fpiritual things, Oc.

I have fet down thefe things fomewhat at large from this Author, becaufe I conceive they may be ufeful to fome Men, who lie under der spiritual Visitations of this kind. We see he fuppofes it no uncommon thing, for Men to have their Spiritual and Corporal Senfes wronght on in this extraordinary way, and teaches how they may difcern Good from Bad in fuch cafes. I know the Contempt many Men have for Studies of this nature; but its not to those I here write : Nor is it every Man's Talent to be Master of a Contemplative Life. This Person, by a deep Inspection into the disposition of Mens Minds, in all the gradations of a Contemplative Life, had a clear view of the Figmentum of Man in every posture of it, and that difcretion of Spirits which the Scriptures mention.

Somewhat being occasionally faid before concerning the inward Senfes, I shall here give you a fhort account of the internal Senfes, according to the Platonick Philosophy, by the benefit of which one Man perceives what another does not.

Calius Rhodig. tells us, That the vivifying Ant. Lett. Act of the Soul on the Vehicle, that is, on 1.17. c. 16 the athereal Body, is call'd the Idol of the Soul : But you must know this, that the Ancients thought there was in this Idol a confus'd energy of the Fancy without Reafon; and fuch Senfes, that the Sight is generally propagated throughout this whole Vehicle, as likewife the Hearing; but that many do not enjoy these Senses, nor is it often, but there is in them a power of an admirable nature; fo that the harmony of the Spheres is perceiv'd by them, being otherwife filent; and there is heard alfo a Demonical Voice, and Bodies prefent themfelves to the Sight, if the Soul withdraws it felf in the ætherial corpufcle, being, after a manner fever'd from the Clog of P 4 Tatius

the terrestrial and gross Body. So its faid that Tatius, the Son of Mercury, being duly expiated by Sacred Rites, prefently cry'd out, that he liv'd now in an Immortal Body, and being carry'd aloft, he faw and heard wonderful things; which Mercurius approving, faid the fame was usual with himself. There are some that write, and among others the Platonick Olympiodorus, that Apollonius Tyanaus, by the power of these Senses, when he was in the City, being rais'd, as it were, on a Watch-Tower, faw and told what things were done in Egypt. Plotinus thought that the first Intellect was the first Effence, from which, and in which other Intellects are; not only by Idea's, but by their proper Intellectual Exiftences (as I may fay) of the Soul, according to an Intellectual Faculty proper to themfelves, even while they are in the Body, just as Lines drawn from a Center to a Circumference, do not depart from the Center while they touch the Circumference. Hence he will have it, that the Intellect of a Prophet and of an abstracted Man, tho' it feems to be only in the East, may have a profpect also of what things are done in the Weft, becaufe all Intellects are every where, and in each other; fince always they are all in the fingle Divine Mind, which is always wholly prefent every where. So far Rhodig.

Now, as the Pyth goreans and Platonicks, who, many of them had a fensible perception of what they call'd the Harmony of the Spheres, Divine Vcices, $\mathcal{O}c$. fet up these Hypotheses for explaining things of this kind; fo it's no wonder, that the other Philosophers, who had not fuch abstracted Minds, and had no fense of fuch things, did not fet up any hypotheses for ex-explaining things they had no fense of, and rejected or ridicul'd any bypothefis of this nature.

I doubt what I have here deliver'd may be too fpeculative to pleafe all Readers; and therefore I shall not dwell upon things of this nature, but only fay in general, that in all Ages, and in all Religions there have been Contemplative Perfons, or fuch as have much fpiritualiz'd themselves in the study of Divine things, for detaching Souls from the Creatures, by bringing them to an opening of their Inward Senfes, to fix them on the being infinitely Perfect : As the Effeens among the Jews, and the Platonicks among the Pagans, who detach'd Minds, as much as poffibly they could from Matter, to fix them on Metaphysical Meditations; and this is what is chiefly driven at by Mystical Divines among Christians: And it must be granted, that humane Reafon stands much indebted to this Philofophy; for having driven the knowledge of GOD, and of a Being infinitely Perfect, and of the fole Creator of the World, much farther than other Philosophers have done; as Monsieur Dureux, afferts in the beginning of his Book, Intituled, Traitee bistorique sur la Theologie mystique.

To add fome farther explanation of the way that fome Perfons fee Spirits, when others do not, Cardan tells us, that Averrhoes, in his Col- L. de lectanea, feems fairly to have accounted for it, Mirab. faying, When the Spirit which attends the Imagination, has, by Imagining, receiv'd forms of a Sound, or of any quality for difcerning by the Smell or Tafte, or of a dead Man, or of a IDaemon; and being imbued with it, is convey'd to the Senfe which corresponds to that that Action, as in Odours, to the proper Inftrument of Smelling; in Hearing, to the Ears; in Spectres, to the Eyes, it will neceffarily Smell, Hear, and See, without any Object; for if Seeing be nought but a Perception of a Species in the Christalloides, whether that Species comes from the Object or not, its manifest, as often as this happens it truly fees; and fo it happens that Perfons fee Damons, or dead Perfons, being awake; and alfo hear Voices of Perfons they know, and fmell Smells, and touch, as in the Incubi or Succubi: But thefe things are more feldom feen than they are heard or touch'd; because in the rest of the Senfes it fuffices to obferve one difference, and one only Spirit, convey'd to the Senfe with that Image may reprefent this: But as in the Eyes there are more differences necessary, Magnitude, Form, Colour, of neceffity more Spirits must be convey'd; and for this reason Nature has made those Nerves hollow, which pafs to the Eyes, and only those fo, because those in their operations stand in need of far more Spirits, than any of the other Senfes in discerning. Hence arises a folution of many Problems, which tho' carrying a certain truth, yet have brought many to fuch ftreights, that fome have been fain to fly to Miracle, others to Dæmons, others have flatly denied the Facts. As in Island and Norway, &c. they think they fee fome of their Family who are dead, and think they embrace them; and fay, they vanish in their Embraces : Now, Island is full of Bitumen, and the Inhabitants live on Fruits, Roots, Bread made of Fish and Water, and it lying in the frozen Sea, by reason of its great Cold, it cannot bear ftanding Corn, and much lefs lefs Wine : Whence the Spirits, by reafon of the Food; the Air, by reason of the Soil, are very grofs; therefore, by reafon of the thicknefs of the Air, and the Vapours concerted through Cold, Images wander about, as in the Clouds, which being conceiv'd, through Error, Fear, and Thought, the denfe and earthy Spirit fo long retains, till it be convey'd to the Instrument of Sense; therefore they perfwade themfelves they fee and talk with them: They think they fee Perfons of their Acquaintance, and fuch as are dead, becaufe they know they are not there living, and becaufe they vanish in their Embraces; but no Man has feign'd to himself an unknown Figure in the Clouds, as of a Chimæra, or an Hippocentaure ; for we are all carry'd to known things. So far Cardan.

But after all this Philosophizing, for fhewing that all our Senfes may be imposid on by Phantoms, I do not find how this any way accounts' for those Apparitions which have reveal'd future or hidden things, and the like, which were not possibly discoverable by any affistance of our Sense or Reason.

CHAP.

CHAP. IX.

What perception Men have had of Genii, or Spirits, and their Operations by Dreams.

TO fay abfolutely, that all Dreams, with-out any diffinction, are vain Visions, and fports of Nature, the Images of things at random coming into our Minds, and posseffing them while we Sleep; and to banish all Divination from the Life of Man, as Epicurus, Meterodorus, and Xenophanes did, is contrary to Experience, and the common Confent and Agreement of Mankind. So that we may argue with Averrhoes, in his Paraphrale, there is no Man but has had Dreams, which have foretold him fomething, and therefore they are not only the Sports of Nature, and vain L. 25. Appearances. Pliny, a Man little credulous in matters of Faith, writes, That the cures of many Difeafes, unknown before, had been discover'd in Dreams. Porphyrius, to explain Divine Dreams, fays, That God has given to each Man two Damons to attend him, a good and a bad; and that the good and propitious Dæmons, foreshew us, in our Dreams, Evils to come, prepar'd for us by evil Damons ; adding, that if any Man could rightly difcern those things that are intimated to us in our Sleep, he would be freed from all Evils, and become an egregious Prophet. Psellus l. de Damon:

Damon: fays, That Damons come to those that are worthy of their Society, and give them the knowledge of future things. And the Platonicks deride the Peripateticks for referring the Works of Dæmons, as Divinations, a manifestation of occult things, and the speaking of various Tongues to Humours, and the Steams of the Earth.

Dion Caffins, writes thus, The caufe which moved me to write this Hiftory was this: 1.72. When I had writ a Book of those Dreams and Prodigies, which had given Severus hopes of the Principality, and had fent it to Severus, and he had read it, and had writ me back many kind things; after receiving his Letter in the Evening, I went to Bed, and in my Sleep it was Divinely Commanded me, to write an Hiftory ; wherefore I writ the things I now treat of; which proving very pleafing to Severus and others, I prefently refolved to go through writing the whole Roman History. And tho' I took upon me the Composing of this Hiftory with reluctancy, and, at first, wholly rejected it, my Goddefs encouraged me in my Sleep, and gave me good hopes that this Hiftory should never Perish; which Goddels I take to be the Guardianess of my Life.

The fame Author concludes the laft Book of his History thus, At length being taken ill in my Feet, I was difmift of all Employs, to pass all the remainder of my Life in my Country, as my Genius had plainly fignified to me in Bythinia: who also once feem'd to command me, in my Dream, to add thefe Verfes to the end of my Hiftory.

From

From Arms and cruel Slaughters, Dust and Pain Sustained in Wars, Jove Hector bas withdraws.

Cardan, tho' he had writ ten Books of Dreams, yet in his Book De Mirabilibus, tells us how, he was often admonish'd in his Dreams to write his One and Twenty Books De Subtilition, of which the foremention'd Book is one; and he fays these did not seem Dreams to him. but fomewhat greater, and that his Bocks De Rerum varietate were fo likewife thewn him, and that it was a property belonging to his Family, which he had both by his Fathers and Mothers fide, to Dream of what would happen to him; and this he has fer forth, that Men may know there is fomewhat in us befides our felves. There is, he fays, in all Men, but it incites fome to Vertue, becaufe they will have it fo, others to Murther, Poifonings, &c. what, fays he, do they think the Mind of a Wicked Man to be? is Man there alone? or are there Fears, Hatreds, Suspiscions, Angers and Torments of Mind, fo that when a Man has given himfelf over to their power, he cannot be mafter of himfelf? In all of us there are buried Seeds and Sprouts of a contrary Faction; wherefore no Man can be excited to Vertue, nor have an experience of Truth in Dreams, who overwhelms and buries that which is in him befide himfelf; for there are three Factions within us, Evil Dæmons, a clear Light, and Pleasure; wherefore true Dreams, a forefight of Futurities, and wonderful things happen even to wicked Men. I know what may be objected against me, that, forfooth, I would feem a Divine Man: Do they think me of fo little Senfe, that I know nor not Men will rather impute this as a Vanity to me, than turn it to my Praife? but the things I have feen and know, I cannot conceal, tho' it be to my extream prejudice. It's no fmall comfort to me, that when the fame things happened to Galen, the fame Fear, the fame Sufpicion, which he confett he was not Ignorant of, yet he chose rather to obey his Impulfe, and not to conceal the things he knew, to the hazard of his Fame, than to mind the Glory of Men. If any Man may haply fufpect me for feeking from this, an opinion of Sanctity, let him know, that no Man among the Ancients more conftantly afferted the Mortality of the Soul, than Galen, and that I am a Sinner. Wherefore the reason of these things must be deduct elsewhere; for they belong to the Books De Arcanis Aternitatis & de Fato, not to the present dispute, nor are they proper for it. So far Cardan. And I defire this may ferve for an Answer to what fome Men haply may be inclined to object to my felf, in reference to what I have delivered in this Book, as to any experience of my own, in this, or the like kind; for I as freely own my felf guilty of many Failings, as Cardan did, or any other Man may.

To come nearer to our Times, Gaffendus, in the Life of Peireskius, writ by himfelf, relates fo firange a Dream which happened to him, that Peireskius upon telling it him more than once, faid that if another Man had related it, he fhould not have believed him.

In his return, Anno 1610, in the beginning of May, from Montpelier to Nifmes, he had in his Company one James Rainer, a Citizen of Aix, who was wont to Lodge in the fame Chamber with with him, and now, did fo in an Inn on the Road: as Peireskins Slept, Rainer obferved he muttered fomewhat to himfelf, after an unusual manner; whereupon Rainer Awakened him, and ask'd him what was the matter? Oh! faid he, from what a pleafant and grateful Dream have you roufed me! Rainer asking him, what it was? I was Dreaming, faid he, that I was at Nismes, and that a Goldsmith offered me a Golden Medal of Julius Casar, for four Crowns, and I was upon paying him his Mony for it; when upon your unfeafonable Awaking me, both Goldsmith and Medal Vanished. They went on to Nismes, and being there, Peireskius took a turn in the City, till Dinner was ready, and, by a wonderful chance, he happened on a Gold miths Shop, and asked the Gold(mith, whether he had any Rarity to fhew him? he told him he had a Julius Cafar of Gold; he asked him the Price; and was answered four Crowns, which he prefently paid him, and taking the Medal; by an admirable hit of Fortune he fulfilled his Dream. It may be faid admirable, for he might eafily have thought of Nilmes, where he was to be the next Morning; he might have thought of that Coin of Julius Cæsar, which he had often wished for, being awake; he might have thought it found in that City, in which there were fo many Footsteps of Roman Antiquities; he might have thought, at a Gold(miths, to which fort of Perfons, fuch things found, are commonly carried; he might have thought of a finall Price, at which Goldsmiths rather value those things, than Antiquaries; he might have thought of four Crowns, with which moderate Price a Gold-Imith Smith might be content. In fhort, a Gold (mith, and that at N(ms might have a Med 1 of that Price; but its altogether wonderful, that all those things should have concurr'd, and the Event answer the Dream. And nevertheles, Perieskins was not the Man, who, for all this, thought the caufe of this Dream preternatural, as haply he might have done, if the like Dream had often happen'd ; but as he knew the fports of Chance, he only accounted this among those which by their rareness are wont to create a flupor in the vulgar. So far Gaffindus.

Anyraldus writ a Discourse in French, concerning Divine Dreams, which Difcourfe was Translated and Printed in English, An. 1678. In it this Dream of Peireskius is inferted, and plac'd among Angelical Dreams. I shall here give you fome account of that Difcourse, as follows.

The First Chapter treats of Natural Dresms, which he concludes thus : It's true, fometimes it happens, that fome of these Dreams come to pass, which makes us think, there is some refemblance or agreement betwixt the Dream and the Event; and by confequence that fome Ang. 1 or Spirit is concerned therein; but, as Arifoile has observed, This happens by meer chance, as he that without any aim should fhoot a thousand Arrows, may at last by chance hit the Mark. So in our Dreams, fuch an infinite number of Visions pass in our Imagination, that it's not only no Wonder, if one fhould fometimes chance to be true, but it would be much more strange, if once or twice, in our Life, it did not fo happen; but if any of our Dreams do not only come to pass, but there alfo is a remarkable Agreement betwixt it it and the Event, and fuch as we ought neceffarily to fuppofe the Operation of an Intelligent Agent to Intervene, we ought not then to reckon this among Natural Dreams, but to refer it either to God, or to fome Action of Angels.

His Second Chapter treats of Angelical Dreams in general, with fome Reflections on particular Dreams; he fays, There are two forts of Dreams, which we may impute to created Intelligences; one where the things fignify'd are contain'd in fymbolical and mysterious Reprefentations, the other where they are propos'd naked, without any fuch refemblances. The common Rule of interpreting the former, he fays, is to obferve the Agreements which are betwixt the Dreams, and their Events; and fome of these Dreams regard present, others future things; of both which he gives Inftances. Those other Dreams which propose things nakedly, as they are in themfelves, have no need of an Interpreter to understand them, but when the Event confirms them they are not the lefs wonderful, as the Dreams of Peireskins, and others which he mentions.

The Third Chapter treats of Divine Dreams, which are alfo of two forts, one contains Future things, under enigmatical and myfterious Reprefentations, the other are much more plain and naked; of both which he gives Inflances. Concerning Divine Dreams, in general he makes three Enquiries. 1. Why God has fometimes reveal'd himfelf in Dreams to his Servants. 2. How they could certainly know that those Dreams had God for their Author. 3. Whether this way of Revelation by Dreams be yet practifed, and whether God does ftill make make use of it, under the Dispensation of the Gofpel. The first of these Questions is treated of in this Third Chapter, where he fays, That as God made use of various means to reveal himfelt to the Prophets, and by them to others, fo there is no reafon why he fhould have excluded that of Dreams; and there is yet this farther reason, in particular, for them above the others, that though there be a great deal of Vanity in ordinary Dreams, and that those which proceed from Angels have very often much uncertainty, and ambiguity, and that fome Philosophers, as Aristotle, and others, suppos'd no regard to be had to that way of Divination, yet it has always been almost the univerfal Opinion of all Nations, that the Divine Being did principally communicate it felf to Men by Dreams; and generally this Opinion in the Eastern Nations had a very great Reputation; fo that it was Principally in those Nations, that they have reduc'd the Interpretation of Dreams into an Art, and have laid down Rules concerning it: and becaufe the People of Israel were also of the fame Opinion, God chofe to fend them fuch Dreams, as were truly Divine, thus to fix them to thefe; and fo divert them from that Vanity, to which other Nations fuffer'd themfelves to be carryed by those others. Beside, the Church being then in her Infant State, the People were more eafily inftructed by Dreams, than by other ways, in which there was need of more clearness and ftrength of Understanding.

The Second Queftion, concerning the Characters by which we may know Dreams truly Divine, from vain Delusion, is treated of in his Fourth Chapter, where he would have us O 2 first first note, That among these Dreams that proceed from the Operations of Angels, there may alfo be found Divine ones, inafmuch as God does not only permit, but may command the Impression of them; but those he properly calls Angelical Dreams, are meerly fuch as neither the Formation of the Images exceeds their Power, nor is the knowledge of the things which these Images represent above their Intelligence, nor above the quicknefs of their Conjectures and Divination. He calls fome Dreams, Divine, becaufe whether it were that God employ'd Angels to convey them, or whether they are immediately caus'd by himfelf, the things fignifyed by them far exceed the Natural capacity of an Angels understanding ; fo that it was absolutely impoffible they fhould ever attain to the Knowledge of them, but by a particular Revelation ; therefore those Dreams may be reputed to come from God, which by what Meffenger foever they are conveyed, yet contain fuch things as God only is able to know and reveal. As for the Marks of Divine Dreams, he fays, it's certain that Moses, and others had fome certain Marks which abfolutely determin'd them to fet upon fuch Actions as they did, though others might not know wherein those Marks did confist; he observes that God Rules in the Understanding of Wife and Vertuous Men; and powerfully inclines it to a Belief and Refolution, though it does not fee in the object reasons, altogether proportionate to the effect it feels in the Soul; fo that the extraordinarily determination of the Underflanding is an evident Proof of the Divinity of the Dream.

The

The Third Question, viz. Whether God makes use of this kind of Dreams, now under the Difpensation of the Gospel, is treated of in his Fifth Chapter, where he fays, That as for those Divine Dreams, which are defigned to foretel things to come, under the Emblem of an Allegorical Reprefentation, or to convey fome new commands to Men in order to fome great and extraordinary Defign, for which there is need of Divine Authority for the undertaking and executing of it, he conceives that time is wholly expir'd, and those who pretend to, and boast of any such, are either Impostors, who would abuse the World by their feign'd Visions, to ferve their own private Interest, or Fools, who have their Brains difturb'd by Hypochondriacal Vapours; and here he delivers his Thoughts concerning a certain kind of People of both Sexes, who both in Poland and Germany have pretended to Divine Visions in these latter Days; he does not accuse them of Imposture, they having given a sufficient Experience of their Piety, but affirms, That in their Actions they had fome transport of Understanding, which proceeded from fome other Caufe, than what was truly Divine. They were Perfons that gave themfelves extraordinarily to the reading of the Apocalyple, and the other Prophefies; and their Spirits were fo poffels'd with the Ideas of those things they there faw, where future Events were reprefented to them, that they perfwaded themfelves, their very Dreams, and the things they imagin'd they faw in those Extasies they fometimes fell into, were Real and Divine Visions; and what contributed to this belief, was, that they fuffer'd themfelves to be carryed away by

by the hopes of those, who expect in due time, a Prosperity of the Church of God on Earth, and a terrible Subversion of all those States and Powers which now oppose the Eftablishment of Chrift's Kingdom : And as they zealoufly defired this, they eafily imagin'd it to be certain and indubitable; divers Texts of Scripture alfo having fome feeming appearance of fome fuch Promises made to the Church of Christ: Befide the Melancholick Humour which was naturally predominant in them, the Afflictions, Hardships, and Anxieties they underwent, as well from the publick Affairs, as their own private Concerns made them very ready to receive all Imprefiions of Fancy, which might fhew them any hope of Deliverance, or any mitigation of their Troubles; be it then that either they Dreamt, or that waking, they were furpriz'd with fome transport of Fancy, in which their Soul was perfectly abstracted from the Body, and from all Commerce with their Senfes (as this fometimes happens in Hypochondriacal Diftempers) these Apocalyptical Images were thus put into a violent motion, and fram'd in their Imaginations those pretended Visions, which they have fince related to us; though we have feen, in great part, by Experience, that those Images which they faw in their pretended Enthulialms, either fignified nothing at all, or if they did, yet their vanity and falfeness have been confuted by the Events.

He fubjoyns here a Reflection on those are called Quakers, for boafting of Visions, Revelations, Divine Infpirations, extraordinary Gifts of the Spirit, of Extastes and strange Transportations; who by their tremblings and quakings quakings would reprefent the Motions of Enthufiafts and Prophets; and he tells us, the Spirit of Chrift is a Spirit of Underftanding and Prudence, and of a fober and well fettled Senfe, and not a Spirit which fills empty Brains with Dark and Phantaftical Imaginations, nor expofes the true Religion to the Laughter of its Enemies, and to the fcandal of Sober and Intelligent Men, by its indecent, and unnatural Motions.

As for those Dreams which may proceed meerly from the Impreffion and Operation of Angels, both good and bad, he fays, he will not deny but there may be yet fome Examples of that kind to be feen; and though the Dispensation of the Law, under which good Angels were more efpecially Employed in things relating to Religion, be now pass'd, yet they continue still to be Ministers and Instruments of Divine Providence in what relates to civil Life and humane Society, and especially the Protection of the Faithful, and the Défence of the Church of Chrift. And as it is not impoffible, but they may fometimes appear to Men waking, fo it is not incredible but God may make use of them, from time to time, to convey to Men the notices of fome things by Dreams; he fays, there are many Examples of both kinds in the Books of those who have made Collections of them, to which Books he refers the Reader ; but gives us one Instance of Monsieur Calignan, Chancellor of Navarre, a Man of fingular Vertue ; who being at Bearne, one Night, as he lay affeep, heard a Voice which call'd him by his Name, Calignan; Hereupon awaking, and hearing no-more of it, he imagin'd he Dreamt, and fell afleep Q_4

afleep again; a little after he heard the fame Voice, calling him in the fame manner, which made a greater impression on him than before, fo that being awaken'd, he call'd his Wife, who was with him, and told her what had happen'd; fo that they both lay waking for fome time, expecting whether they might hear the Voice again, at last the Voice awaken'd him a third time, calling him by his Name, and advised him to retire prefently out of the Town, and to remove his Family, for that the Plague would rage horribly in that place within a few Days; he followed the direction, and within a few Days after the Plague began in the Town, and deftroyed a great number of People. Now, the Author fays, whether the Plague came by the Infection of the Air, or by fome Infectious Perfons, or whether fome Sorcerers and Witches, (as they fay they fometimes do) diffus'd their Infectious Poyfons in that place, neither exceeded the knowledge of the Angels that spake to him. He next relates a Dream as ftrange which happen'd to Lewis de Bourbon, Prince of Conde, and, in his Conclusion, he fays, there is need of great Circumspection to Judge of these No-Aurnal Visions; if any fuch Dream induce us to a good Action, and from whence there can follow no bad Event, fuch a Dream ought not to be fuspected by us; but if it prompts us to cvil, we ought absolutely to condemn, and reject it, as a Delusion of the Devil. So far Amyraldus.

Milanthon, 1. de Anima, writes concerning the Nature of Dreams, as follows. I shall not follow the Ambages of Natural Philosophers, who striving to refer Dreams of all kinds to Natural Natural Causes, act foolishly ; but I find four kinds of Dreams.

The First is of vulgar Dreams, which may be call d Natural, because, the Natural and immediate Causes of them are in view, as when Images are presented of those things, which we think on being awake; or when Dreams answer to certain Humours; a redundancy or agitation of which moves the Imagation, or Spirits.

The Second kind I call prefaging, which nevertheless is not Divine, but as by a Natural temperament, or peculiar property, or by a Natural Gift, one Perfon is more Mufical than another, or has a greater Activity of Body, &c. fo by a Natural Gift or property, many have prefaging Dreams, painting forth future Events, as it were by certain Allegories. So Pontanus tells us, That a certain Soldier at Genoa, Dreamt he was devoured by a Serpent, wherefore on a Day, when the other Soldi-ers were put on board Ships to Fight with the Enemy, he kept himfelf at home; but a tumult cafually arising in the City, he was kill'd by the Ball of a fort of Canon, which we call a Serpent. This kind of Dreams has not an apparent cause in the Motion, or Plenty of the Humonrs, or the first Qualities, as we faid of the first kind, but there are certain prefaging Natures, call'd by Aristotle, Loquaces Nature, çibes rais i is verse i isso vers i that have frequent fignifying Dreams; nor shall I be against it, if any Men shall contend, that the cause of this property is the excellency of the temperament, as Aftrologers will have it; but those are idle who deliver ways of explaining them, and feek Causes in the Motion of Humors.

The

The Third kind is Divine, which God fends into Minds, either by himfelf, or by Angels; fuch as the Scriptures tell us were divinely fent, and thefe only are to be rely'd on, as certain, the others being all fallacious.

The Fourth kind is Diabolical, as when Witches (as it feems to them) are prefent at Feafts and Sports, when it has been often known by experience, that they never went to them, but as they lay Sleeping, fignified by their Geftures and Cries, that they Dream'd of Feafting and Dancing. Of this kind have been many Superfitious Dreamers of Former Ages, and in thefe our Times we have heard of many Fanatical Dreams of Anabaptifts, Commanding Crimes, and Confirming Errors; which are eafily judged of by Pious and Prudent Perfons.

Sennertus, in Epit. Phys. l. 7. c. 9. writes thus. To Supernatural Dreams we refer all those which are fent us from Superiour Causes, and External to us, be they from God, Angels or Devils. Those that are fent from God and Good Angels, are efpecially called Divine, whereof there are some instances in the Scriptures: for God is wont either to prefent new Species to Men in Dreams, or, fo to order and conjoyn those that are in Men before, that they are figns of future things; and Angels are wont to ftir up and aptly difpose those Species, Spirits and Humours that are in the Body, that they admonish Men of good and neceffary things. And Diabolical Dreams are caufed the fame way, as by Angels, but for a different end, viz. the Destruction of Men.

From

From these things it appears, how even abfent and future things may be prefented to us by our Dreams. The Platonicks think many Dreams may be referr'd to their Genii and Damons, which they think attend all particular Perfons, and conclude, that they admonish them of many things; but our Divines much more rightly refer them to Angels, which attend each Man. To which we may add what Tertull. writes, viz. The gift of Divine L.de Anim. Dreams descends ev'n on Prophane Persons, God equally affording Rain and Sunshine on the Juft and Unjuft : Since ev'n Nebuchadnez.ar had a Dream fent him by God. And as the favour of God reaches even the Pagans, fo the temptation of the Devil does the Saints, from whom he is never absent, that he may steal upon them unawares, when a Sleep, if he cannot prevail with them when awake.

He there further Philosophizes concerning Dreams, as follows.

Becaufe in Dreaming Perfons the Fancy is employed, and fome Fantalm is prefented to it, and we do not Dream only of those things which we have done in the Day, or of those things which lye hid in the Body, but alfo of those things which are at a vast distance from us, and which we have neither feen, heard, nor perceived by any Senfe; nay, of those things which are not yet in being, but to come afterwards, its queried how the Images of things absent, and never perceived by the Senfes, and which are not yet in being, can be prefented to the Fancy? The Epicureans fuppose that Images, which fly to and fro, and wander in the Air, are the causes of this thing. Rhodig. Lect. Antiq. l. 27. c. 11. denies thole those Images, but contends there are certain Motions, which exercife us inftead of Images ; and that those Motions proceed from certain beginings of those things, which are shortly after to be faid, or done by us, the Air first chang'd, and then being conveyd through the passages of the Ears and Nostrils to the Heart, caufe, that we feem to foreknow the events of future things; and thefe motions cannot at any time, bring a more ample fense of themfelves, than in the Night. But how can there be motions of things that are not yet in being? or how can things absent Fifty, or an Hundred Miles presently affect the Air? or why do not those Motions affect all Perfons indifferenly asleep in their way, but only those whom it concerns to know that thing? We refer all those Dreams which we have concerning things, that we never perceived before by Senfe, or from caufes that do not lye hid in our Body, to a Divine operation.

Quercitan Philosophizes of Supernatual Dreams thus: Supernatural Dreams are in the middle betwixt Divine and Natural; in regard their caufes are neither referr'd immediately to God, nor to the malignity of evil Humours, on which the rife of Natural Dreams depends; but to our Soul, which is awake, the Body fleeping; and which being ftirr'd up by a certain Supernatural Rapt, especially the good Genius Inspiring, reprefents to us by Dreams and Visions, many Fantalms, which, for the most part, Prelage fomewhat certain, the certitude of which is commonly known by the event of things; many Inflances of those Dreams occur, where it has oftem feemed to Perfons in Dreams, that they fall into fome Difease, or recover of it, to which Visions the Event afterwards anfwer'd to all things, that they had feen before in their fleep; though they were not defir'd nor fought for, as Diabolical Dreams are wont to be fought for. Arnoldus de Villa Nova Dreamt, That he was bit in the Foot by a Black Cat, the next Day there broke out in that part of his Foot a Cancerous and Malignant Ulcer. So far Quercitan.

So Simlerus tells us, in the Life of Gefner, That Gefner on a Night Dreamt, that he was bit by a Serpent, and the next Morning faid, that he fhould be feiz'd with a Pestilential Carbuncle : a few Days after a Carbuncle appear'd in his left Pap, five Days before he dyed.

To proceed now to give fome farther Inftances of Dreams from other Authors. Fracastorius tells us, That Marcus Antonius Flaminius, being at Genoa, and fomewhat indifposed in his Health, borrow'd a Book of a Friend, to divert him; which having read fome Days, he chanc'd to leave it on a Couch, with fome other Books, and that when the Perfon that lent it, came for it, it could by no means be found. In the Night time he faw, in his Dream, a Maid Servant of the House, take the Book from the Couch, and as fhe was laying it on a Table, the Book chanc'd to fall on the Ground, and one fide of the Cover was broken, and the Maid hid it, for fear, in a fecret place. Flaminius rifing in the Morning, and remembring his Dream, fought for the Book and found it in that place, and charging the Maid Servant with what was done, fhe confess'd that all pass'd as he had faid.

Cellus

Cellus Mancinius of Ravenna, has writ an Ingenious Tract, intitl'd, De Somniis, & Synefi per Somnia, viz. of Dreams, and a fagacious perception of things by Dreams, in which he has inferted the Dream before fet down. In his Work he has fet forth the Opinions of the most Famous Philosophers concerning the Caufes of Dreams; and though he allows the Divine and Angelical Dreams recorded in the Scriptures, vet for all other wonderful Dreams, he thinks a reafon may be rendred of them according to the Doctrine of Aristotle, viz. as casually hapning. He gives Inftances of many ftrange Dreams, and among others of that of Flaminius, and explains them all according to Aristotle's Doctrine. In his 19th Chapter, he fays, Its known that those who apply themselves to Philofophy, and other Arts and Sciences, in their fleep, by the help of a Powerful Imagination, a recent exercise, and a strong Attention of Mind, Discourse, find out and do many things which they had not done, nor were able to find out, waking; and he fays, Flaminius faw those things in his Dream, becaufe being troubl'd about the Book he had borrowed, and much concern'd, that he could not reftore it, he began to think where the Book might be found ; he did not Judge it ftol'n, but feeing other Books remov'd from one place to another, viz. from the Couch to the Table, he began to confider who had done it; as he thought of this, no one could occurr to him more readily, nor more fuspeeted than the Maid Servant, that constantly That Servant was doubtlefs attended him. free from any Sufpicion of Theft; for the Book was not likely to yield her much Money, 10 or to be of any use to her; therefore he must conclude within himfelf, that in carrying the Books from the Couch to the Table, that Book cafually fell and broke its cover; and becaufe People are wont to hide their Faults, or at least to lessen them by some excuse, that simple Maid fearing chiding, or beating, or left fome ill might follow, wifely to avoid all, hid the Book in the most fecret place the could, as behind a Cheft, or fome like place. Having discours'd these things by Night, in his sleep, and upon waking in the Morning, remembring his Dream, he try'd whether it were true, and found all things exactly to answer his Dream. He explains other strange Dreams after the fame manner, according to Aristotle's Opinion, as cafually hapning, by a lucky hit of the Mind, in its improv'd way of reasoning in our Sleep.

But I doubt this way of explaining will not do in all Cafes, but we must often have recourfe to the Direction of fome Superior Intelligences.

Mr. Cotton Mather, in his Ecclefiaftical Hi-L. 6. c. 9. ftory of New England, writes thus, Within a Example Fortnight of my writing this, a Phyfician, 12. who fojourned within a Furlong of my Houfe, for three Nights together, was miferably diflurbed with Dreams of his being Drown'd; on the third of thefe Nights his Dreams were fo troublefome, that he was caft into extream Sweats, by ftrugling under the imaginary Waters: With the Sweats yet upon him, he came down from his Chamber, telling the People of the Family what it was that had fo difcomposed him. Immediately there came in two Friends, that asked him to go a little way with with them, in a Boat, upon the Water: he was, at first, afraid of gratifying them in it, but being very calm Weather, he recollected himfelf, why should I mind my Dreams, or distrust Divine Providence? he went with them, and before Night, by a Thunder Storm fuddenly coming up, they were all three Drown'd. Mr. Mather fays, he enquir'd into the truth of this Relation, just as he writ it, and could affert it.

So again, Camerarius tells us in the Life of Melandthon, that Gulielmus Neffenus, on a Day after Dinner, in a gentle Sleep hehad, Dreamt that he was paffing a River in a Fifher Boat, (as he ufually did for his Diversion) and that the Boat striking on the Trunk of a Tree, was overturned, and he was Drowned. This Dream he told to Philip Melantthon, who then cafually came to see him, deriding withal the Vanity of Dreams; but that fame Evening what he had Dreamt came to pass.

Mr. William Smythies, Curate of St. Giles's Criplegate, An. 1698, published an account of the Robbery and Murther of John Stockden, Victualler, in Grub-street, within the faid Parish, and of the Discovery of the Murtherers, by feveral Dreams of Elizabeth, the Wife of Thomas Greenwood, a Neighbour to the said Stockden: An Abstract of which Account, I give you as follows.

Mr. Smithies, first telling us, that none can doubt but great Discoveries have been made by Dreams, who read the Life of Sir Henry Wotton; and our English Chronicles (particularly the Murther of Waters, and the Discovery of it by a Dream, recorded by Sir Richard Baker, in his Chapter of Casualties, in the Reign Reign of James the First) and other Histo-ries; he fays, Mr. Stockden was Robb'd and Murthered by three Men, in his own Houfe, on the 23d day of December, 1695. about Midnight. A little after the Murther, there came a Woman into the Street, and faid, fhe believed one Maynard to be one of the Murtherers, because she was informed he was full of Mony, both Silver and Gold; upon which there was a Warrant against him; but he could not be found. Soon after this Stockden appear'd to Elizabeth Greenwood, in a Dream, and shew'd her an Houfe in Thames-street, near the George, and told her, that one of the Murtherers was there; fhe went the next Morning, and took one Mary Buggas, an Honeft Woman, who lived near her, to go with her to the Place to which her Dream directed, and asking for Maynard, was inform'd that he Lodg'd there, but was gone abroad. After that Stockden foon appeared again to Mrs. Greenwood, and then representing Maynard's Face, with a flat Mole on the fide of his Nofe (whom fhe had never seen) fignified to her, that a Wire-drazver must take him, and that he should be carried to Newgate in a Coach. Upon enquiry they found out one of that Trade, who was his great Intimate, and who, for a reward of Ten Pounds, promifed him on his Taking, undertook it, and effected it. He fent to Maymard to meet him, upon extraordinary Businels, at a Publick House, near Hockley in the Hole, where he Played with him till a Conftable came, who apprehended him, and carried him before a Magistrate, who Committed him to Newgate, and he was carried thither in a Coach.

Maynard being in Prifon, confest the horrid Fact, and discover'd his Accomplices; who were one Marsh, Bevel and Mercer, and said. that Marsh was the fetter on, being a near Neighbour to Stockden, who knew he was well furnished with Mony and Plate; and though Marsh were not present at the Robbery, yet he met to have a share of the Booty. Marsh knowing or fuspecting that Maynard had difcoverd him, left his Habitation. Stockden appcar'd foon after to Mrs. Greenwood, and feem'd by his Countenance to be difpleas'd: he carried her to an Houfe in Old-street, where she had never been, and fhew'd her a pair of Stairs, and told her that one of the Men Lodg'd there; the next Morning fhe took Mary Buggas with her to the Houfe, according to the direction of the Dream, where the asked a Woman, if one Marsh did not Lodge there? to which the Woman replyed that he often came thither. This Marsh was taken foon after in another place.

After this Mrs. Greenwood Dreamt that Stockden carried her over the Bridge, up the Burrough, and into a Yard, where fhe faw Bevil, the third Criminal (whom fhe had never feen before) and his Wife: upon her telling this Dream, it was believed that it was one of the Prifon Yards; and thereupon fhe went with Mrs. Footman (who was Stockden's Kinfwoman and Houfekeeper, and was Gagg'd in his Houfe when he was Murthered) to the Malfhalfea, where they enquired for Bevil, and were inform'd, that he was lately brought thither for Coining, and that he was taken near the Bankfide, according to a Dream which M.S. Greenwood had before of his being there; they defired to fee him, and when he came, he faid to Mrs. Footman, Do you know me? fhe replyed, I do not; whereupon he went from them: Mrs. Greenwood then told Mrs. Footman, that the was fure of his being the Man, whom the faw in her Sleep. They then went into the Cellar, where Mrs. Greenwood faw a lufty Woman, and privately faid to Mrs. Footman, that's Bevil's Wife whom I faw in my Sleep : they defired that Bevil might come to them, and first put on his Periwig, which was not on the time before; the lufty Woman faid, why should you speak with my Husband again, fince you faid you did not know him? he came the fecond time, and faid, Do your know ne now? Mrs. Footman replyed, No; but it proceeded from a fudden Fear, that fome Mischief might be done to her, who had very narrowly efcaped Death from him when she was Gagg'd; and as foon as the was out of the Cellar, fhe told Mrs. Greenwood, that fhe then remembred him to be the Man. They went foon after to the Clerk of the Peace, and procured his removal to Newgate, where he confest the Fact, and faid, To the Grief of my Heart, I Killed him.

Mrs. Greenwood did not Dream any thing concerning Mercer, who was a Party concern'd, but would not confent to the Murther of Steckden, and preferved Mrs. Footman's Life; nor has there been any difcovery of him fince, but he is Efcaped, and the three others were Hang'd.

After the Murtherers were taken Mrs. Greenwood Dreamt that Steekden came to her in the Street, and faid, Eliz beth, I Th nk thee, the God of Heaven Remard thee for what then baft dane. Since which fhe has been at quiet R 2 from 244 from those Frights, which had much Tormented her, and caused an alteration confiderable in her Countenance.

This Relation is Certified by the Lord Bifhop of Gloucefter, who, with the then Dean of York, the Master of the Charterbouse, and Dr. Alix, had the Particulars of the foregoing Narrative, from Mrs. Greenwood and Mrs. Buggas.

When Dr. Harvey (who was afterwards Fellow of the College of Phylicians in London) being a Young Man, went to Travel towards Padua, he went to Dover, with feveral others, and fhew'd his Pafs, as the reft did, to the Governour there. The Governour told him, that he must not go, but he must keep him Prisoner; the Doctor defired to know for what reason, how he had Transgress'd; he faid, it was his will to have it fo; the Pacquet Boat hoifted Sail in the Evening (which was very Clear) and the Doctor's Companions in it. There enfued a terrible Storm, and the Pacquet Boat, and all the Paffengers were Cast away. The next day the fad News was brought to Dover, the Doctor was unknown to the Governour, but by Name and Face; but the Night before the Governour had a perfect Vision, in a Dream, of Dr. Harvey, who came to pafs over to Calais; and that he had a warning to ftop him. This the Governour told the Doctor the next day, and the Doctor told this Story to feveral of his Acquaintance here in London. This Relation I took from Mr. Anbrey's Miscellanies : and I think it hard (I may fay impossible) to account for this Dream, and that of Monfieur Calignon, before fet down, by any occult way of improv'd Reafoning in our Sleep.

Clande

Claude de Tifferant, a Parifian, Printed an Hi-Story of Prodigies, An. 1575. where he writes, That the Wife of one of the Chief of the Parliament of Provence, Dreamt that her Husband was Executed, as he really was, in the City of Paris, and at her Awaking, found her Hand fo ftiff, that fhe could not ply it, and in it was the Image of her Husband reprefented, with his Head Cut off, the faid Image being all Bloody ; this Image having been feen by many Perfons yet alive, it not being above 20 Years fince the thing happen'd.

Alex. ab Alexand. tells us, That an Ingenious Gen. Dier. Young Man, who lived with him, he having l. 1. c. 14. the care of his Education, faw, in his Dream, his Mother carried in a Funeral, to be Interr'd; whereupon he fell into great Sighs and Lamentations, whom Alexander caused to be awaken'd, and then ask'd him why he fo Lamented ? he answered, his Mother was Dead, and in his Sleep, he faw her carrying to be Buried. Alexander observed the day and time that this Vision happen'd; a little while after, a Meffenger came to him with the News of his Mother's Death ; of whom asking the day, it happened he found she died the fame day that the Vision was feen. By which Example, he fays, with others of the like kind, we are prompted to believe that God has given us a Divinatory Spirit, and Prophetick Forefight of future things, in our Dreams.

Cardan writes thus, Joannes Maria Maurofe- Synef. mus, a Senator of Venice, my particular Friend, Somm. 1.4. while he was Prator in Dalmatia, faw in his ^{c. 20} Dream, one of his Brothers, whom he much lov'd, Embrace him, and bid him farewel, because he was going to the other World. Foan-

Joan. Maria having followed him a little way Weeping, awak'd all in Tears, and was in a great fear for his Brother at Venice. On the third day Letters were brought him from home, fignifying that his Brother Donatus (for that was his Name) died on that night and hour, after he had lain three days Sick of a Peftilential Fever. This he related to me more than once, with Tears in his Eyes.

The fame Author writes in the next Paragraph, That Ludovieus Madius his Countryman, had a Soldier Sleeping in a Chamber, who on a certain Night cry'd out in his Sleep, his Mafter ask'd him, What ayl'd him? he anfwered, That he Dreamt he had received a great Wound in the Head, and that he was upon Dying, and therefore he awak'd in a Fright; his Mafter, who Loved him, commanded him not to flir out of Doors: mean while,his Companions, the next day, had a mind to vifit the Enemy; he forgetting his Dream, goes forth with them; the Enemy appearing, his Companions Fled, and he was Slain, his Head being Cloven afunder.

He there tells us alfo, That M, *Anton.Taurel*las was admonifhed by a Dream, wherein he faw himfelf a Drowning, whereupon he refolved not to go a Swimming that day, but forgeting his Dream, and returning to his Swimming, he was Drown'd.

S. Auftin tells us, That one Prastantius defired a Solution of a Doubt of a Philosopher, which he refused to give him; the night following Prestantius being awake, faw this Philosopher stand by, and solve the Doubt, and presently to go away. Prastantius meeting him the next day, ask'd him, why having refused to

to folve the Queffion the day before, he came to him at midnight, of his own accord, and Solv'd it: to which the Philosopher reply'd, I came not truly, but in my Dream I jeem'd to do this to you.

Magnenus, in his Exercitations on Tobacco, fays, Exer. c. 6. fuch Dreams as thefe happen, for that the Perfon that Dreams reprefenting to himfelf fuch a Man, endeavours to produce a fenfe of things not beneath the authority of that Man, or the Idea he has of him; hence, fometmies, they have fuch Conceptions, which are owing, not to themfelves, but to the reputation of fo great a Man. Wife Epidetus very well knew this, who commands that our Mind be raifed by fome Man of great Repute, which we may propofe to our felves to be Imitated, and may hear and behold him as prefent: Propofe to your felf, fays he, what Socrates, or Zeno would do in fuch a Cafe. Enchri. c. 5.

He adds beneath; That Sagacious Vertue which exerts it felf in Man, freely difcovers it felf by an Inftinctual Impetus, and I have often perceived in my Sleep, what exactly fell out the next day: So when I have gong to Sleep with a fixed thought on a Perfon Sick, a meet Remedy has been reprefented to me in my Dream, which nicely weighing in my Judgment the next morning, I have thought it Excellent, and given it with great Succefs. I had read the fame had happen'd to Hippocrates and Galen, but doubted of its Truth; but I have found by my own experience that a Nature prone to a Bufinefs, finds most compendious ways for sit, which others fearce ever, attain, Invita Minerva; as Ptolomy fays Cent. 4.

Gallen

Galen tells us, That Women while they are with Child, often fee their Childrens Fortunes in their Sleep, and that Cypfalis, and Pericles began to be formidable to Greece, from the Womb. Here Cardan adds, The Soul feems then to be most pure, as it newly comes from Heaven, and to forefee and shew future things to Parents.

In the Life of the late Sir Henry Wotton, we find an account of a Dream of his Father Thomas Wotton, Efg; as follows. A little before his Death, he Dreamt, that the Univerfity of Oxford was Robb'd by Townsmen, and poor Scholars, and that the Number was Five; and being that day to write to his Son Henry at Oxford; he thought it worth fo much pains, as by a Postfcript to his Letter, to make a flight enquiry of it. The Letter was writ out of Kent, and came to his Sons hands the very morning after the night, in which the Robbery was committed; for the Dream was true, and the Circumftances, tho' not in the exact time; and when the City and University were both in a perplext Inquest of the Thieves; then did Sir Henry Wotton fhew his Fathers Letter; and by it, fuch light was given to this work of darknefs, that the Five Guilty Perfons were prefently Difcovered and apprehended, without putting the University to fo much trouble, as the Cafting of a Figuer.

We are alfo told in the next Paragraph, That the faid Thomas Wotton, Efq; and his Uncle Nicholas Wetton, who was Dean of Canterbury, both forefaw and foretold the days of their Deaths.

Selmec-

Selneccerus tells us in his Calendar, concerning Christian King of Denmark, That he foretold his Death, both to his Chaplain M. Paulus Noviomagus, and to D. Cornelius his Physician. Jacobus Scutellarias, a Famous Astronomer of Prague, Physician to the Emperour Rodolphus the Second, had a foreknowledge of his Death eight days before it happen'd, and affirm'd for certain, he should Die on the 10th of December, An. 1589. That Famous Astronomer Leonardus Thurnisfer certainly foreknew the day of his death, made his Will, and commanded his Landlord that he should Bury him by the fide of Albertus Magnus, which was done. He Died the 9th of July, An. 1596. There is at Rome this Monument.

To Scraphinus Oductius Strancionicus, Famous Physician, a most Ingenious Prophet, and a Man skilled in all manner of Learning; who being seized with a vehement Fever, foreknew, and most constantly foretold the day and Hour of his Death. Theophilus his Son crefted this Monument: he Died the 9th of the Calends of Sept. An. 1538. having Lived 54 Years, 9 Months and 22 Days.

This I take from Kormannus, L. de Mirac. Mort. Part 9. c. 102. who in the faid Book, and the fame part. c. 164. writes as follows, concerning Prefaging Dreams. That Dreams fometimes prefage Death, many examples teffify. That of King Pharaoh's Baker, Gen. c. 4. The Dream of Lucius Scylla the Roman. The Dream of Calphurnia, the Wife of Julius Caefar. The Dream of Cicero, in Valerius. The Dream of Alexander the Great, in the fame. The Dream of Simenides. The Dream of Creffus, King of Lydia. The Dream of the Arcadian in Megara, in the fame. The Dream of Flav. Valerius, of Marcian Marcian the Emperor. The Dream of Elizabeth de l'Arche, the Mother of the Pucelle of Orleance. The Dream of Polycarpe. The Dream of the Scholar of Pavia. All which M. Ancermus Julianus, has learnedly compiled in his Book of Dreams and notturnal Visions.

An ancient Gentleman, now living in London, has told me, That many Years fince he had occasion to make a Journey into the North, and that being a Bed in his Inn, the first Night of his Journey, a Friend of his, Dead not long before, appeared to him in his Dream, and told him, he had lodg'd 10001. in the hands of a Perfon, whom he named (and who was well known to the Gentleman I write of) for the use of his Daughter; and he defired him, That upon his return to London, he would put the Perfon in mind of it, and defire him to take care to pay the Mony. The Gentleman, after his return, took an oportunity to wait on the faid Perfon, and after common discourses were over, told him, That fuch a Friend of theirs (whom he nam'd) lately Dead, had communicated a Secret to him, viz. that he had lodg'd 1000 l. in his hands, for the use of his Daughter, and that, as fhe would grow Marriagable in a fhort time, he might do well to pay it : The Perfon freely own'd the thing, and pay'd the Mony accordingly; the Gentleman, from whom I had the Relation, having known nothing of it but in his Dream. And this is remarkable, that the Gentleman who paid the Mony, chanced to fail in about three Months after.

To give fome Account of what experience I have had my felf in Dreams. As Cardan tells us, that befide the Oracle and Prophecy, there are

are four kinds of Dreams, viz. Monitory, Per-Suafive, Deterring and Impelling; So I have had fome of all these four kinds, and have been guided by them in many material circumstances of my Life; many times the Genii which have attended me, as I have lain in my Bed, have bid me go to Sleep, faying, That they would fuggeft fomething to me in my Dream; which they have performed; and when the Dream was over, they having fuggested what they pleafed, they have fenfibly push'd my Shoulder, or taken me by the Arm-rift, or toucht some other parts of my Body, to awake me, and have bid me confider of what I had feen in my Sleep. And though I have then generally found the things enigmatically reprefented, yet the meaning was obvious enough, and I have guided my felf by it.

Dr. Bekker, who takes upon him to folve all Appearances in Dreams, 'or others, by Natural Reafon, without any Agency or Spirits; in the Third Volume of his Work, entitled, Lemonde Enchante, c. 22. writes thus. There is a certain way of Presage, or of Prognostick Signs, which relates to certain particular Perfons and their Concerns, when a Man by fome extraordinary Vision, by the hearing or some fenfible Perception of fomething, is advertis'd before hand of fomething which will happen to him, or of what is prefently to happen. This is what I agree in, and I fhall give the Reafon of it in my Fourth Part; and here I shall, only explain the thing after the way I conceive it : for Instance, some one Dreams, that himfelf, or one of his will die, or that he fees his own Figure, or that of another Person before him, or in a Coffin, or that he hears fome one one knocking on it to Nail him in, that he preceives fome one to take him by the Hand, or to ftrike him on the Shoulder, and all other things of this Nature ; but in the fame degree, as those beforemention'd, without going farther: that is to fay, in things that concern our felves, and those that belong to us, and in refpect of what is Natural, not with Perfons that have no Communication with us, or concerning things that are wholly contingent and cafual, and that depend on the Choice of Mens Wills. If beyond this fomewhat often happens, it is not against Nature, nor above it, nor out of its Power; for before fuch a Dream happens, a Man has thought, perhaps, more than once, with great Affliction of his Death ; fince a Dream comes from much thinking on a thing, and that the Affliction partly caufes the Diftemper, or having increas'd it, Death Naturally follows; but it's more difficult to comprehend how this may alfo happen in refpect of other Persons; for a Man has not fo ftrong a tye with another. Mean while, as I observe, that Naturalists assigns two Causes, that give Birth to Sympathy, or a mutual Inclination, which manifestly appears in Men, Beasts, Plants, Trees, and in many other Bodies, by which they naturally Unite themfelves together, or keep far afunder from each other and in their Operations', they find not Reason to reject as incredible evin these Apparitions, in a Dream, but we ought alfo to conclude from thence, that the Natural caufe being thus known, the Devil has nothing to do in it.

We explain more particularly Sympaphy, after the way following: We fay then, first, That each Body, ev'n though fo little it can fcarce be be perceiv'd, is compos'd of an Infinity of little Parts; and that these little Parts are interwoven the one with the other, after a very unequal manner; that it's for this that two Bodies whereof the least Parts or Atoms are woven after an equal manner, have alfo a tye one with the other ; for they are invefted with an object, which is the fame, or at least of the fame Nature, and of an equal manner; wherefore those which are of an equal Composition of Parts, will receive the one as well as the other, after fuch or fuch a manner, a like defire, or like food in eating and drinking, and as this texture has place particularly in the Naturnal mixture of Man's Body, we call this Equality of Humors, and according then as thefe Particles agree, and are woven and difpos'd well, or ill together, this is call'd Good or Ill Humor of a Man, but this is not yet all, the Particles thus Interlact for the Composition. of a Body, are withal little volatile Parts, which pass away in Vapours continually both outwardly, and inwardly, whereof we may fee, as far as the Eye can difcover, fome what a Proof in the Smoak, or Vapour of hot Blood, for this Vapour is nought but a quantity of those little Parts, mixt the one with the other, in a volatile and continual Motion; these Particles exhale from one Body into another: Now in all things this holds, that every where, like feeks its like, and joyns with its like; when in the commerce of Humane Life this does not happen fo exteriourly, it's because this coupling or joyning is not made by a neceffity of Nature, but by Deliberation : and nevertheless there will be still a feerer canfe in the Sympathy of these Natures, which does not appear fo outwardly. NC

We must add to what we have faid before. the force of the Imagination, whereof Expeperience teaches us amazing thinks : It is (to fpeak thus as openly as we may) as out of the Operation of the Exteriour Senfes, that Spirits, (that is to fay) the faid Exhalation, and Evaporation of the most fubtle Parts mounting from the Heart to the Brain, where they expose a like Representation, as that of the common Senfe of Man, by the means of the Senfes, but otherwife brought from without; according then as the Brain is tender or hard, moift, or dry; or that a Perfon is old or young; a Man, or a Woman; that the one or the other finds himfelf Sick or in Health : According to all this, I fay, fomething is imprinted, more eafily or more difficultly in the Brain ; the Spirits having more or lefs Communication with those of another Body, equal to this, by the means of the Exhalation, and Evaporation of the least Parts, outwardly and inwardly; this happens most commonly in a Sicknefs; and above all in a Mortality; thence comes the contagion of the Air, and of the Blood. This being fo, Men may alfo, in cafe of a Sicknefs, or Mortality, or of some Iminent danger, while the Blood and Spirits are particularly mov'd, have a lively fore-perceiving; that is to fay, the Woman in respect of her Husband, the Child in regard of his Mother, and the Mother in regard of her Child; Brothers and Sifters in regard the one of the other; and even a Friend, and a Comrade in refpect of those with whom they have contra-Aed a Friendship and Society; and though they are far diftant, they cease not to have this fore-perceiving, fince the volatile Particles disperse difperse themselves to many Leagues distance, and tend the one towards the other.

Experience wholly proves what I fay, the most fubtle Parts, and their Exteriour and Interriour attraction of one Body in another, caufes that the Loadstone draws the Iron; for what draws reciprocally touches; This touch fortifies the texture of the Particles the one with the others; and fo that what does not touch reciprocally does not draw. That thefe little Parts difperfe themfelves very far is what is taught us by the trace of a Dog; this Beaft in following it, will find by the fole means of the fmell, in which confifts the Motion of these subtle Parts, the Tract of any one that has travell'd, to Fifty, nay, even to an Hundred Leagues of way, by Land and Water, in fair Weather, and Tempestuous. As for the Imagination, its a thing manifest, by the wonderful Experience and Operation it has while Women are with Child, on the Fruit ; without fpeaking at prefent of other Examples which . may find their place in the Sequel.

I conclude therefore, at prefent, that this Communication, and this Motion of the volatile Parts of the Bodies of Perfons, that have love the one for the others, or that are of a very equal Nature, be it far, or near, produces fuch a thing. This admirableParticipation makes an equal Impreffion on the Brain, as we find ill Weather caufes it felf to be fore-perceiv'd in a Man's Limbs, or chiefly in those of a Beast. I fay, fuch an Impreffion is made, when there is a Perfon fick, or that a ficknets Foments it felf in his Limbs, or that he dies, or is on the point of Death: its to this Perfon as a Dream, he understands, he fees, he perceives femething, thing, and this alfo troubles him. When there has happen'd to him after an extraordinary manner, fuch a Perception or Dream Waking, it's the fame thing as the Imaginations that never happen'd to him after the fame manner, or near it; or that he has been ufed all the times he has made this experience, to fee fomewhat like this to follow, he may take it for a fign not of a Devil, or of a Spirit, but as being wholly Natural. We may alfo freely believe, that by reafon of the unequal conflictution of the Brain, Blood and Spirits in fome Men, one alfo ought to be fubject more to thefe kinds of rencounters than another; this caufes that we may fay in fome manner with Reafon, that one Man may fee more Fantoms than another.

I fhall forbear to incert more here from Dr. Bekker, referring the Reader to his Works; and I shall conclude this Chapter with a Relation, or two, for Men to confider how Dr. Bekker's Philosophy before laid down, may ferve to explain them, tho' in truth these Relations might have been somewhat more properly inferted in some precedent Chapter, than this of Dreams.

The first is concerning that Duke of Buckingham, who was Stabbed by Felton, Aug. 23. 1628.

Mr. Lilly the Aftrologer, in his Book, Entituled, Monarchy, or no Monarchy in England, Printed in 40. 1651. Having mentioned the Death of the Duke of Buckingham, writes as follows. Since I am upon the Death of Buckingham, I fhall relate a true Story of his being admonifhed often of the Death he fhould Die, in this manner.

An

An Aged Gentleman, one Parker, as I now remember, having formerly belonged unto the Duke, or of great acquaintance with the Duke's Father, and now retired, had a Damon appeared feveral times to him, in the fhape of Sir George Villier's, the Dukes Father; this Damon walk'd many times in Parker's Bed-Chamber, without any action of terrour, noife, hurt, or speech; but at last one Night broke out in these Words; Mr. Parker, I know you loved me formerly, and my Son George at this time very well; I would have you go from me (you know me very well to be his Father, Old Sir George Villiers of Leicestershire) and to acquaint him with these, and these particulars, &c. and that he above all refrain the Council and Company of such and such, whom he then nominated, or elle he will come to destruction, and that suddenly. Parker though a very difcreet Man, partly imagined himfelf in a Dream all this time, and being unwilling to proceed upon no better grounds, forbore addreffing himfelf to the Duke, for he conceived if he fhould acquaint the Duke with the words of his Father, and the manner of his appearance to him (fuch Apparitions being not usual) he should be Laugh'd at, and thought to dote, in regard he was Aged. Some few Nights paft, without farther Trouble to the Old Man, but not very many nights after, Old Sir George Villiers appeard again, walk'd quick and furioufly in the Room, seem'd Angry with Parker, and at last faid, Mr. Parker, I thought you had been my Friend fo much, and loved my Son George fo well, that you would have acquainted him with what I defired, but I know you have not done it; by all the Filend hip that ever was betwixt you and me, and she

the great respect you bear my Scu, I defire you to deliver what I formerly commanded you, to my Son. The Old Man feeing himfelf thus follicited, promifed the Dæmon he would, but first argued it thus, that the Duke was not eafy to be fpoken withal, and that he would account him a Vain Man to come with fuch a Meffage from the Dead ; nor did he conceive the Duke would give any credit to him: to which the Deemon thus answered; If he will not believe you have this Discourse from me, tell him of such a Secret (and named it) which he knows none in the World ever knew but my (elf and him. Mr. Parker being now well fatisfied that he was not afleep, and that the Apparition was not a vain Delusion, took a fit oportunity, and ferioufly acquainted the Duke with his Father's words, and the manner of his Apparition. The Duke heartily Laught at the Relation, which put old Parker to a stand, but at last he affumed Courage, and told the Duke, that he acquainted his Fathers Ghoft, with what he found now to be true, viz Scorn and Derision; but my Lord, fays he, your Father bid me acquaint you by this token, and he faid it was fuch as none in the World but your two felves did yet know; hereat the Duke was amazed, and much aftonished, but took no warning, or notice thereof, keeping the fame. Company still, advising with fuch Counsellors, and performing fuch Actions, as his Father by Parker countermanded. Shortly after, Old Sir George Villiers, in a very quiet, but forrowful Posture, appears again to Parker, and faid, Mr. Parker, I know you deliver'd my words to George my Son, I thank you for so doing, but be slighted them, and now I only request this more ct at your bands, that once again you repair to my Son, and sell bin, shas if he will not amend, and follow the Counfel I bave giv n him, the Knife or D.gger (and with that Le pull'd a Knife or Dagger from under his Gown) Shall end bim; and do you Mr. Parker set your House in order, for you shall die at such a time. Mr. Parker once more engaged, though very unwillingly, to acquaint the Duke with this last Message, and so did, but the Duke defir'd him to trouble him no farther with fuch Meffages and Dreams, and told him he perceived he was now an Old Man and Doted; and within a Month after meeting Mr. Parker on Lambeth-Bridge; faid, Now Mr. Parker what fiy you of your Dream? who only return'd, Sir I wish it may never have Succefs, &c. but within fix Weeks after, he was Stab'd with a Knife, according to his Fathers Admonition beforehand, and Mr. Parker Died foon after he had feen the Dream or Vision perform'd.

This Relation is Inferted also in the Lord Clarendon's History, and in Sir Richard Baker's Chronicle. The Lord Clarendon, in his Hiftory, Vol. I. L. I. having given fome Relations, fays, That amongst others there was one (meaning this of Paker) which was upon a better foundation of Credit, than ufually fuch Difcourfes are founded upon. And he tells us, that Parker was an Officer in the Kings Wardrobe in Windfor Caftle, of a good reputation for honefty and difcretion, and then about the Age of Fifty Years, or more. This Man had in his Youth been bred in a School, in the Parish where Sir George Villiers, the Father of the Duke liv'd; and had been much cherished and obliged in that Seafon of his Age, by the faid 2 Sic

Sir George, whom afterwards he never faw. About Six Months before the miferable end of the Duke of Buckingham, the Apparition was feen; after the third appearance he made a Journey to London, where the Court then was; he was very well known to Sir Ralph Freeman, one of the Masters of Requests, who had Married a Lady, that was near allied to the Duke, and was himfelf well received by him. He Informed the Duke with the Reputation and Honefty of the Man, and Sir Ralph Freeman carry'd the Man, the next Morning, by Five a Clock to Lambeth, according to the Duke's appointment, and there prefented him to the Duke, who received him Courteoufly at his Landing, and walked in conference near an Hour with him and Sir Ralph's, and the Duke's Servants at fuch a diftance, that they heard not a word; but Sir Ralph always fixt his Eyes on the Duke, who fometimes fpoke with great commotion and diforder; and that the Man told Sir Ralph in their return over the Water, that when he mentioned those particulars that were to gain him credit, the Duke's colour changed, and he Swore he could come to that Knowledge only by the Devil; for that those particulars were known only to himfelf, and to one Person more, who he was sure would never speak of them. So far the Lord Clarendon. And I think Dr. Bekker's Hypothefis will hardly clear this matter.

I thall only add here a finall relation of a thing that happened to my felf; About Six Years fince, a Gentleman, whom I had never feen, nor heard of before, came to my Lodgirg (which was then in Fetter-lane) about Six of the Clock in the Morning, it being Summer

Summer time, he found a Servant of the House, and asked him whether I were flirring, and finding not, he defired the Servant to go to me, and acquaint me of his being there, and that he defired, if it might not be troublesome, he might be admitted to my Bed-fide ; I admitted it; and upon his coming to me, he told me he was directed to me by a Lady, a Relation of mine, whom he had met at Hamstead, he having a defire to difcourse with me concerning an Affair in which he underftood I had fome knowledge : After some discourse was over I asked him his Name, which he told me; then I asked him where he Lived, he replyed, in Cane-Wood; whereupon I was fomewhat furprized; for that very Morning, at Three of the Clock, I was awaked out of my Sleep by a loud Voice, faying, Cane, Cane, Cane; now whether the intentness of the Gentlemans Thought of coming to me, wrought this upon my Mind, or how elfe it came to pafs, may require confideration.

CHAP. X.

What perception Men have had of Genii, or Spirits, and their Operations by Magical Practices.

HE Learned Ludovicus Capellus writ a Fook, Entituled, The Hinge of Faith and Religion, which was Published in English, An. 1660. In the Tenth Chapter of that Book, he draws a reason to prove a Deity from Wizards, Magicians, Inchanters, and from all the Heathen Idolatry, and Superstition; where he writes thus:

It's a certain thing, which the experience of our days, and that of all Ages does averr, which the monuments of Histories, both Ancient and Modern confirm, and which the Writings, as well of Heathens, as of Chriftians certifie; that there are and have been at all times in the World, Witches, Magicians, Diviners, Inchanters, and fuch like notorious wicked People, that have a familiar Communication, and a frequent Commerce with Devils; by whofe help and power they do many ftrange and prodigious things, above and beyond all humane Wifdom; all which confequently infers, that these things proceed from a supernatural and immaterial cause, such as Damons are.

The

The Laws made and promulgated in all well governed States and Commonwealths, as well that of the Jews by Moles, as that of the Christians, and of the Heathens themfelves, do evidence this to us. The Executions and Supplices which Juffice frequently inflicts on fuch Perfons; the Proceffes, the Relations and Informations that are made about them, do affure us of this, and leave no doubt of it. The damnable curiofity of many Persons, which every day have recourfe to fuch as they, to know, fee, and do all those things that cannot be done by any other means, does alfo confirm this. The Writings of the Heathens, as well Greeks as Romans, are full of Instances of fuch Perfons, and of their effects, which are flupendious and wonderful: fo that a Man must wholly renounce his Reason, and believe nothing of those things that are done, if he will not alfo believe that there are fuch Perfons; which is true and manifest by all those kinds of Testimonies, and Monuments, which may induce us to believe any thing.

Now, if there are any Witches, Inchanters, &c. it neceffarily follows that there are Damons, by whole help and power, they caule these prodigious effects to come to pals, which Men wonder at, and look upon with horrour and amazement; it being not possible that the chings fhould be done by any humane Power. The Hiftories therefore and Writings of all Nations, and even of the Heathens themselves, are full of examples of the Devils Apparitions, and of their strange effects. Now, he fays, if there ware any Dæmons (as it cannot be denied) it follows that there is a Deity above them, which fo reftrains them, that they S 4 shall fhall not overthrow all things by their might; for they have ftrength and malice enough to do it.

He adds beneath. The publick profession of Magical Arts, which has been fometime tolerated in fome of the most famous Universities of Christendom; the common diffinction of black and white Magick, which has been invented by fome excellent Philosophers of the Sects of Plato and Pythagoras, who would have found a way by which they might have fubjected the good Dæmons to them, and reconcile them to themfelves, and which has from them past to the Jewish Cabalists, and from them to the Christians, are an invincible Argument, that there are Magicians and Dæmons: The certain and averred Relations of the Northern Countries, and of both the Indies, do teftify, that all those do swarm with them, and that there is fcarce one which has not his Damon, and Familiar Spirit. So far Capellus.

To give fome account now of the Magick and communion with Spirits, practifed in the Northern Countries. Shefferus, Profeffor of Law at Upfal in Sweden, has writ an Hiftory of Lapland, which was Printed in English at Oxford, An. 1674. and in his Eleventh Chapter, which is concerning the Magical Ceremonies of the Laplanders, he writes as follows.

It has been the received Opinion among all that have known the Name of the Laplanders, that they are a People addicted to Magick. This Judgment of Historians concerning the Laplanders, is no lefs verified of the Biarmi, their Predeceffors, fo that we may justly fuppofe both of them to have defcended from the fame original; for the Biarmi were fo expert in these Arts, that they could either by their Looks, Words, or fome other wicked Artifice, fo enfnare and bewitch Men, as to deprive them of the use of Limbs and Reason, and very often to bring them into extream danger of their Lives: but though in thefe latter times they do not fo frequently practice this, and dare not profess it fo publickly as before, yet there are ftill many that give themselves wholly to this Study: for every one thinks it the fureft way to defend himfelf from the injuries and malicious defigns of others. And they commonly profess that their knowledge of thefe things is abfolutely neceffary for their own Security; upon which account they have Teachers and Profeffors in this Science; and Parents in their laft Wills bequeath to their Children, as the greatest part of their Estate, those Spirits and Devils, that have been any way ferviceable to them, in their life time. And Sturlfonius gives an account of the most Famous Laplanders of that Profession: and though some arrive at a greater knowledge in this Profession, and are more able Masters to teach it than others, yet it's very feldom but the Parents themselves are fo learned, as to perform the duty, and fave the expences of a Tutor. According to an aptness of difpolition in Learning, fome arrive at a greater perfection in this Art, than others, who may be excellently qualified for other Imployments.

As to their bequeathing their Familiars to their Children, they suppose it the only means to raise their Family: So that they excel one another in this Art, according to the largeness of the Legacies they receive. Thus each House has its peculiar culiar Spirits, and of different and quite contrary natures from those of others. And not only each diftinct Family, but fingle Perfons in them alfo have their peculiar Spirits, fometimes one, two, or more, according as they intend to ftand on the defensive part, or are maliciously inclined, and defign to be upon the offensive : but there is a fet number of obfequious Spirits, beyond which no one has; and fome of these will not engage themselves, without great follicitation and earnest entreaties, when others readily proffer themfelves to little Children, when they find them fit for their turn; So that divers of the Inhabitants are almost naturally Magicians: for when the Devil takes a liking to any Perfon in his Infancy, as a fit Inftrument for his defigns, he prefently feizes on him with a Difeafe, in which he haunts him with feveral Apparitions: from whence, according to the capacity of his Years and Understanding, he learns what belongs to the Art. Those which are taken thus a second time, see more Visions, and gain greater knowledge. If they are feized a third time, which is feldom without great torment, or utmost danger of their Life, the Devil appears to them in all his fhapes, by which they arrive to the very perfection of this Art; and become fo knowing, that without the Drum, they can fee things at great diftances, and are fo poffeft by the Devil, that they fee them even against their will: For instance, not long fince a certain Lap, who is yet alive, upon my complaining against him for his Drum, brought it to me, and confest with Tears, that though he fhould part with it, and not make him another, he fhould have the he fame Visions he had formerly: and he inflanced in my felf, giving me a true and varticular relation of whatever had happened o me in my Journey to Lapland; and he farher comp ained, that he knew not how to nake use of his Eyes, fince things altogether liftant were prefent to him.

As for their Al gick Art, it's according to the diversity of Instruments they make use of n it, divided into two Parts; one comprehends all that to which their Drum belongs, the other those things to which Knots, Darts, Spells, Conjurations, and the like, refer. Concerning their Drum, it's made of an hollow Piece of Wood, and must be either of Pine, Firre, or Birch-tree. which grows in fuch a particular place, and turns directly according to the Suns Courfe; which is, when the grain of the Wood, turning from the bottom to the top of the Tree, winds it felf from the right hand to the left ; from this perhaps they believe the Tree very acceptable to the Sun, which under the Image of Thor they Worship, with all imaginable A-doration. The Piece of Wood they make it of is the Root cleft afunder, and made hollow on one fide, upon which they ftretch a Skin; the other fide being convex, is the lower Part, in which they make two Holes, where they put their Fingers to hold it. The fhape of the upper fide is Oval, and in Diameter about half an Ell. It's like a Kettle-drum, but not altogether fo round, nor fo hollow, and the Skin is fasten'd with Wooden Pegs; fome are fewed with the Sinews of Rain Dear. They Paint upon the Skin feveral Pictures in red, stain'd with the Bark of an Alder-tree. As for the particular Pictures of these Drums, I refer you you to the Author. They put a Bunch of Brass Rings on the Drum, when they beat them. Several of the Drums have not the fame Pictures upon them. They have the Pictures of feveral Animals on their Drums, to fignifie when, and in what place they may find them. If a Rain Dear be loft, how they may get him again ? whether the Rain Dears Young ones will live ? whether their Fishing will be fuccefsful? if Sick Men will recover, or not? whether Women great with Child, fhall have a fafe delivery? or fuch, or fuch a Man shall die of fuch a Diftemper, or of what other and other things of the like Nature, which they are defirous to know. He fays he can give no Account of the Reafon for the Diffe rence in their Drums, unless it be that fome of them, are made for more malicious Defigns others again for each Man's private Purpofe: On this Account he believes, according to the Nature of the Business they intend, they add. and blot out, and fometimes wholly change the Figures.

There are two things requir'd to fit a Drum for ufe, an Index, and an Hammer. The first fhews, among the Pictures that thing they enquire after, with the Hammer they beat the Drum. The Index is the bunch of Brass Rings before mention'd. They first place one great Ring upon the Drum, then they hang feveral finall ones upon that; the fhape of the Index, is very different, he had one of Copper, of the bignefs of a Dollar, with a fquare hole in the middle, and feveral finall Chains hanging about it instead of Rings. Another has an Alchimyring, on which a finall round plate of Copper is hung by little Chains; he had feen another of Bone.

one; in thape of the Greek \triangle , with rings above , and others of a quite different make. As e has giv'n here Cutts of feveral Drums, fo he as of the Indexes, and Rings; fome Writers call nofe Rings Serpents, or Brazen Frogs and Toads, ot that they refemble them, but because by nem they fignifie these Creatures, whose Piures they often make use of in their Conjung, as supposing them very grateful and aceptable to the Devil. They make the Index differently of any fort of Metal. The lammer they use in raising their Famiars, as for the Head of it, it's made of Rainlears Horn; the other part ferves for the Handle: nd he has given us two Cuts of the Hammers, vith this Hammer they beat the Drum, not fo such to make a noife, as by drumming to nove the ring, lying on the Skin, fo as to als over the Pictures, and shew what they cek after. This is the Description of the orum with all its Necessaries, as it's us'd by the planders, that are Subject to Sweden. The inlaps allo, that are under the Crown of Dennark, make use of Drums, though somewhat ifferent in their make from the former; owever, he conceives them not of a different ind, but made for fome particular uses. The aplanders use their Drums for divers Designs. nd are of Opinion, that what ever they do, s done by the help of it; and therefore they eep it very choicly with the Index and Hamr.er.

There are three very strange things which hey believe they can effect by their Drum, and hele belonging either to their Hunting, their acred Affairs, or lastly, their enquiring into hings far distant; he finds four things chiefly mention'd mention'd by another Writer; the first is the knowing the State of Affairs in Foreign Countries; the fecond what fuccefs their Defigns in Hand will meet with; the third, how to Cure Difeafes; the fourth, what Sacrifices their Gods will be pleas'd to accept, and what Beaft each God defires, or diflikes most. The Artifts that beat the Drums, beat not altogether in the fame place, but round about the Ind. x : they beat foftly at first, prefently quicker, and continue this till they have effected their intent. The Drummer first lifts up the Drnm by degrees, then beats foftly about the Index till it begins to ftir, and when it's remov'd fome diftance from its first place to either fide, he ftrikes harder till the Index Point at fomething from whence he may Collect what he look'd for, both the Drummer, and those present are upon their Knees. Those who defire to know the Condition of their Friends, or Affairs abroad, whether 500 or 1000 Miles diftant, go to some Laplander, or Finlander Skilful in this Art, and prefent him with a Linnen Garment, or Piece of Silver, as his reward. An example of this Nature is to be feen upon Record at Bergen, in Norway, where the effects of the German Masters are registred.

In this place one fohn Delling, a Factor to a German, enquired of a Finlapper of Norway, about his Mafter in Germany: the Finlapper readily affented to tell him; like a Drunken Man, he prefently made a bawling, then reeling and dancing about feveral times in a Circle, fell at laft upon the Ground, lying there for fome time, as if he were Dead, then ftarting up on a fudden, related to him all things concerning his Mafter; which were after-

Terminds found to agree to what he reported. A Laplander alfo, as Schefferus writes, gave Termeus an Account of the journey he first made to Lapland, though he never had seen him before that time; which though it were true, Termeus diffembled to him, less the might glory too much in his devilish Practices. Schefferus fays, the Authority of this Man is so considerable, that it may give Credit enough to the Story.

As to the Method taken in making these Dif- Hift. Goth. coveries, its very different, Olaus Magnus 1. 3. c. 26. describes it thus; the Drummer goes into some private Room, accompanyed by one fingle Perfon, befide his Wife, and beating the Drum, moves the Index about, muttering at the fame time feveral Charms; then prefently he falls into an Extafy, and lies, for a short time, as Dead ; mean while his Company takes great Care that no Gnat, Fly, or other Animal touch him; for his Soul is carryed by fome evil Genius into a Foreign Country, from which it is brought back with some fign, as a Knife, or Ring, as a token of his Knowledge of what is done in those Parts ; after this, rifing up, he relates all the Circumstances belonging to the Bufiness that was enquired after. Petrus Claudius makes no mention either of the Drum, Charms, Company, or those things he brings with him; but he fays, he cafts himfelf on the Ground, grows Black in his Face, lying as if Dead for an Hour, or two, according as the Distance of the place is, of which he makes enquiry; when he awakes, he gives a full Account of all Affairs there. Samuel Rheen, in his Hiftory, fays, The Drummer fings a Song, call'd by them Joiike, and the Men and Women that are prefent, fent, fing likewife, fome in higher, fome in lower Notes, this they call Duura. As for their cafting themselves on the Ground in a Trance; and what is faid by fome of their Souls parting from their Bodies, Schefferus believes, the Devil only then stifles the Faculties of the Soul for a time, and hinders their Operations. As the Drummer falls down, he lays the Drum, as near as possible on his Head. Those in the mean time, that are present leave not off finging all the while he lies fweating in his Agony; which they do not only to put him in Mind, when he awakes of the Bufinefs he was to know; but alfo that he might recover out of his Trance, which he would never do. as they imagine, if they either ceas'd finging, or any one ftirr'd with their Hand or Foot : And this perhaps, is the reason, why they fuffer no Fly, nor any living Creature to touch him, and watch him fo diligently. It's uncertain how long they may lie in their Trance. but it's commonly according as the place where they make their difcovery is nearer, or farther of; but the time never exceeds 24. Hours, let the place be at never fo far a Distance. As for their farther Practice with the Drum, I refer you to the Book it felf.

Concerning their other Parts of Magick, the first is a Cord tyed with Knots for raising of Wind. Schefferus fays, he thinks it not at all probable, that the Laplanders should be concerned in this Practice, fince they live in an Inland Country, Bordering no where upon the Sea, wherefore this properly belongs to the Finlappers of Norway; and those that are skilled in this Art have command chiefly over the Winds that blew at their Birth; now, he fays, as this belongs longs chiefly to the Finlappers, and Finlanders of Norway, fo does the ftopping of the Course of Ships, which is altogether of the fame Nature.

Somewhat relating to this I find in Nicolaus Hemmingius, who in his Tract de Superstitionibus Magicis, printed at Copenbaguen, An. 1575. tells us, That Petrus Palladius, fometime Bishop of Seelandt, and Profession of Divinity at C p.nbaguen, could from a Part of his Body affected, foretelfrom what Part of the Heavens Tempests would come, and was feldom deceiv'd.

Next, he comes to their Magical Darts, which they make of Lead, in length about a Finger ; by these they Execute their Revenge on their Enemies, and Wound them with Cancerous Swellings, either in the Arms or Legs, which by the extremity of its Pain, kills them in three Days time; they shoot these Darts to what diftance they pleafe, and foldom mifs their Aim. Schefferus thinks, that both Olaus Magnus, who writes this, and Zeigler from whom he transcrib'd it, as he has many other things, are mistaken, in setting down Leaden Darts, fince he finds no Perfon now that knows any fuch thing, nor is there any mention made of fuch in any other Writers : he thinks the mistake may be, by misunderstanding the word Skor, which is commonly us'd for explaining those Darts; for when Man, or Beast is fuddenly taken with a Difease, People call this that takes them fo, Skot, that is a Dart. Petrus Claudius calls it a Gan, which they fend abroad; he likens it to a Flye, but fays its fome little Devil, of which the Finlanders in Norway, that excel most in this Art, keep great Numbers in a Leather Bag, and dispatch daily some of them abroad ; but he feems to intimate no T more more by this word Gan, than that very thing which endangers Mens Health and Lives : for he fays, That these Finlanders cannot live peaceably, except they let out of their Ganeska, or Gan-kiid, which is the Satchel, every Day one of the Gans, that is a Fly or Devil; but if the Gan can find no Man to Deftroy, after they have fent him out, which they feldom do upon no Account at all, then he Roves about at a venture, and deftroys the first thing he meets with. Therefore this word Gan fignifies no more than what Zeigler meant by his Dart, for the term by which they express going out, is, de Skiuda devis Gan, that is , he , as it were, shoots out his Gan, like an Arrow, for Skiuda is only proper to the fhooting out of an Arrow.

This Magical Practice, they use as well against one another, as Strangers; nay, fometimes against those that they know are Equals in the Art. Some of the Conjurers are contented only with the power to expel the Gan out of Men, or Beasts, which others fend; this is remarkable among them, that they can hurt no Man with their Gan, except they first know his Parents Name.

Now, all that the Finlanders, and Finlappers of Norway effect by their Gan, the Laplanders do by a thing they call Tyre. This Tyre is a round Ball, about the bignefs of a Wall-Nut, or finall Apple, made of the fineft Hair of a Beaft, or elfe of Mofs, very finooth, and fo light, that it feems hollow; its Colour is a mixture of Yellow, Green, and Afh, but fo that the Yellow appears moft. This Tyre they fay is quicken'd, and moved by a particular Art. Its fold by the Laplanders, fo that he that that buys it may hurt whom he pleafes with it, they perfwade themfelves and others, that by the Tyre they can fend either Serpents, Toads, Mice, or what they pleafe into any Man, to make his Torment the greater. It goes like a Whirl-wind, and as fwift as an Arrow, and deftroys the firft Man, or Beaft, that it lights on, but fo that it often miltakes; of thefe we have two many Inflances at this time, which are too long to infert here. So far Schefferns.

There are two things I shall note in reference to this Account of Schefferus. 1. As for Parents bequeathing to their Children their Spirits at their Deaths, we find in the Tryals of Witches in England, that the fame has been pradis'd here, and that fome have had Spirits given them by their Parents, others by other Relations, and other Friends, beside those which Originally came to themselves.

2. As for Schefferus's particular Opinion, That the Laplanders did not really fend Darts to those they had a Mind to deftroy, I cannot eafily agree in Opinion with him; for you find before in Mr. Mather's Account of the Indians in Martha's Vineyard, in New-England, that the Indian Parvarus were wont to form a piece of Leather like an Arrow's Head, and then to tye an Hair to it, and over thefe to ufe fome Magical Ceremonies, whereupon the Damon prefently fnatch'd them away, and convey'd them into the Bodies of Perfons to be afflicted : and as the Laplanders fend their Gans, or Flies to deftroy Persons, so Mr. Mather says, fometimes the Damon pretends to the Pawaws, that he brings a Portion of the Spirit of a Perfon clofely imprifon'd in a Fly, and as they deal with the Fly, fo it fares with the Body of T 2 the the Person they intend to Afflict. The Drums also us'd by the Laplanders, are us'd by the West-Indians, fo that there is a strange Agreement in their Magical Practices, as I shall set forth beneath.

Chap. 10.

The Learned Olaus Rudbeck, in the Second Volume of his Atlantica, treats concerning the Lapland Drums, the Heads of which he fays, are divided into three Parts, the uppermost Region contains the Heavens, and all Celeftial things, and all Volatiles; the middle Region contains the Earth, with Men and all Animals; the lowermost Region contains all Infernals and Subteraneous Places: and then he gives a particular Explication of all the Figures, or Marks on the Tympana; and fays, if the Laplanders would know whether, when they go a hunting, they shall have fucces, they beat their Drum with Thors Hammer, and diligently observe a certain Ring leaping on the Drum, which if they fee to reft on the Image of a Ranger, they no way doubt but they shall kill a Ranger that Day, if it rests on the Figure of a Wolf, they conclude they shall have a Wolf for their Prey. He refers us for other things, relating to the use of the Lapland Drums, to Schefferus's Lapponia, Olaus Magnus, and others; however, I shall give you here what feems to be Olaus Rudbeck's Senfe, concerning what may be expected from the Superflitious use of the Lapland Drums, inferted by him in the Fifth Chapter of the faid Book, p. 283. it is as follows. Since the Doctrine of Chrift came to Lapland, Men could not but forget many things relating to Superstition, and cast off others, or at least, be at an uncertainty in them; whether therefore.

fore the Laplanders themselves are now Ignorant of the true make of the most Ancient Drums, or whether the very differing fitting of the Drums deprives them of the Knowledge of a thing fo extreamly vain, they now fuffer themfelves with extream difficulty to be drawn to make known their Superstition to others; perhaps also shame, or fear deters some. To pals by that, the chief Arcanum of Superstition will not be Revealed ; be it as it may, you fhall now hardly find any Man, who knows rightly how to manage this Drum, or to explain it to others; and those who think they know fomewhat of this kind, either fo obftinately conceal it, or fo diffemble their skill, that those Labour in a manner in vain, who with any Gifts, how great foever, or high drinking (which is wont to go a great way with them otherwife) endeavour to break or Conquer that filence ; but among Gifts (if any Man will purchase this Art of them) the Laplanders are carnest Lovers of Imperial Rix-Dollars.

In the Sixth Chapter of his faid Second Velume, he tells us of wonderful Performances, faid to have been wrought by the means of their Scipio Runicus, or Runstaffe (by us call'd the Runick Almanack, of which there are many in England) being anointed with a certain Magical Ointment, viz. of Mens flying in the Air on it, and the like; and fays a more conftant Fame of nothing has remain'd in their Country, from the remotest times of Paganism, than of fuch flights in the Air; and that nothing is more readily believed, than that the present Laplanders, who continue still in Paganism, use the same kind of flights now ; and that beside Runstaffo's Sticks, Pales, Calves, Horfes T

Herfes, Dogs, and other living Creatures anointed with the fame kind of Ointment, were thought to be able to carry their Riders to Places defign'd; and thefe things were wont to be afcrib'd to Dians, or Difa as the first Inventrefs of them.

He here tells us alfo, That the Tympanum of the Mother of the Gods, fo much celebrated by the Greeks and Latine Writers, though explain'd by none of them, as it ought, was nothing but a Copy of the Lapland Tympanum, convey'd to Foreign Parts by Difa, Ifis, Idaa, or Diana, whofe Ring and Hammer were fometime found in the left Hand of the Figure of Is at Rome, the Tympanum it felf being over the Head of the Goddels, and there being Marks under her Feet like to those that are feen in the Lapland Drums. The Egyptian Isis alfo, according to a Cut giv'n of her by Pignorins, holds this Ring and Hammer in her left Hand. And the Mother of the Gods (as Du Choul has fet forth) handles a Tympanum; and he fays, he will make out in his Chronology, that Is the Daughter of Inachus, going into Egypt, a little before the times of Moles, taught the Egyptians Incantations, and withal fhew'd them that Infamous use of the Hieroglyphical Marks, with which Art the Egyptian Magi afterwards contended with Moles before Pharoah. But he does not think that all the Goths were giv'n to those Arts, because the Testimonies of the Scalds, and of Snorro himfelf free the most Valiant of the Goths from that Infamy, those Arts being beneath their Valour and Dignity, and feem'd muchto prejudice theFame and Renown due to Valiant Men; and therefore great Funishments was never inflicted on Men giv'n to fuch Arts, by Magnanimous Kings. T

I muft here note, That notwithftanding all this Difcourfe, concerning Thor's Hammer, and its being convey'd from Sweden to foreign Parts, given us by the Learned Rudbeck, I muft wholly yield to what the Learned Kircher, in his Obelifcus Pamphilius, has delivered us concerning it; he has there writ a Paragraph, with this Title to it; Concerning the Tautick Character, or the Crofs with an Handle to it, (that is, a Ring annext to the top of it) the chief of all the Hierogliphicks, (this being the fame with what Rudbeck calls Thor's Hammer.)

Kircher there, among other curious things, tells us, that the Egyptians, in the Character T. Tau, as in a Looking-Glass, plac'd the Idea of the whole Pantomorphous Nature, by the Circle or Ring, which they commonly place on the top of it, they denoted the Celeftial Orbs, in which the Spirit of the World mixes it felf; first communicating its Virtue to them; by the Crofs, the virtue of the four Elements on the Sublanary World, through the mediation of the Celestial Bodies, from which the generation of all things arifes; for they obferved there were two motions chiefly appearing in Nature, viz. a Strait, and a Circular one; they reprefented this by a Circle, the other by Strait Lines; for the Elements being moved out of their natural places, they found by experience, they return'd to them but by Strait Lines, and beneath, he quotes the following Paffage from Ficinus's Third Book De vita Calestus Comparenda.

The Agyptians preferr'd the Figure of the Crofs before all others, becaufe Bodies act by the vertue diffufed to the Superficies; now the first Superficies is defcribed T 4 by 279

by the Crofs, for fo it has chiefly Longitude and Latitude; and this is the first Figure, and the straitest of all, and contains four Strait Angles; now the effects of the Celeftial Bodies chiefly refult from the Rectitude of the Rays and Angles; for then Stars are most powerful, when they hold the four Angles of Heaven, viz. the Points of the East and Weft, and of the mid Heaven on either fide; and being fo disposed, they fo cast their Rays against each other that they thence make a Crofs, the Ancients therefore faid the Crofs was a Figure made of the fortitude of the Stars, and the Suscepticle of their fortitude, and therefore it had a mighty power in Images, and received the Powers of the Spirits and Planets.

Tom. 2. part 2. p. 399. The fame Author in his Oedipus Ægypt. fays, The Crux Ansata, or Isiaca is feen carried almost in every Images Hand of the Ægyptians; which Character they had in so great Veneration, that they thought nothing could be rightly done without it, and it was the most powerful Amulet, and a Character made by a wonderful Subtlety of Wit, according to the pattern of Nature, the only guide and light to show the way to Happiness.

Ib. Tom. 3. p. 277.

Again, he tells us elfewhere, That by the Crux Anfata, which confifted of a Circle and a Crofs, they denoted the motion of Phtha, viz. the Soul of the World artificially difpofing all things that are in the World; and by the Circle, the circular motion of the Celeftial Bodies, whereby it in fome fort animates them, and renders them apt for influencing Inferiours: and by the Crofs, or the lines cutting each other, they fignify the motion which it performs performs in the Inferior World, for the Generation and Production of things, according to the nature of Elementary Bodies; for the motion of Sublunary things is according to ftrait Lines, as it appears in the motion of Light and Heavy things, and of fuch as are of a middle Nature; whereof those being carried, some upwards fome downwards, according to Strait Lines, these participating equally of Gravity and Levity, having got a middle Nature, and diffus'd, as it were, on the fides, appofitely express the cut Lines of a Crofs, and therefore, by this only Character, for the faid reasons, they do not unmeetly denote the whole process of Nature; wherefore also they reputed this Character, as the most Mysterious of all Hierogliphicks, and thought the fame had the greatest force of all, both to allure Good Genii, and facinate the Evil ones; hence calling it the Symbol of Health, the greatest Spell, the Monogram Phtha; and by other Names, they had it put in all Obelisks, Statues, Tables, &c.

Here we find a pretty fatisfactory Account of the Original Infitution of this Character, which I cannot find in the the Works of the Learned Rudbeck; and therefore as far as it appears to me hitherto, I must conclude it of an Agyptian Original.

To proceed now to some further account from Olaus Rudbeck, in reference to Magical Practices, in his 3d. Vol. c. 11. he tells us, when we find any strange Relation in that kind, we ought duly to weigh what is really perform'd by the Magick Art, and what contains some abstruse fense, and is proposed translatitiously, and by way of Anigma: he says it's a firm Argument with him for the practice

Etice of Witchcraft and Horrible Magick in the North, that Men came thither at the fame time from Greece, Agypt, and Phanicia, as to a famous Academy, and gave themfelves over wholly to the fludy of those Arts: and that Pythagoras was not the only Man that learnt to Fly of the Hyperborean Abaris, but others of the fame Age, as we find from Diogenes, in Photius, viz. Carmanus, Cylla, Dercyllis, &c. who thinking themselves in Thule, on a sudden awaking, as it were from a Dream, found themfelves in the Temple of Hercules at Tyre. And the Author fetting down fome of their chief Cuftoms, agreeing with what the Greeks and Latins write, tells us, that the Golden Apples, raising the Gods themselves from Death to Life, that is, which fet forth the Acts of their Anceftors, encouragements to Vertue, and determents from Vice, are interpreted by him Letters which were cut on Stones, or Wood, or writ on Parchment; and those Stones, Tables, Parchments and Lapland Tympana, from, their Oblong Figure, got the name of Pineapples, Apples and Eggs: and those Letters which were writ on Parchment or Magical Tampana, were done over with a Gold Colour, drawn from the Bark of an Alder; which Alder was much efteemed by their Ancestors, and is now by the Laplanders, becaufe from its inward Bark chew'd with the Teeth, they get that Gold Colour wherewith they Paint all kinds of Letters and Figures on their Tympana. And as for its being faid that fome defcended into Hell, being carried on Alder Sticks, it's on this account, that in their Divinations they used fuch Sticks, in the Barks of which, Letters and Circles were Cut, compassing about the Stick.

tick, like the various spires of Serpents. As or the God they call upon in their Divinations, he fays its Saturn, and his Worshippers ing the Drums, are called Saturnines. Thereore he that by the help of the Drum, would cek Counfel of the Gods, takes in one Hand Golden Apple, in the other an Hammer, made ike a Cross, of Alder or Horn, and has also Serpent made of Copper, and not much difering from Gold in Colour, which upon the peat of the Hammur, on the Head of the Drum, eaps in and out, till it fettles on fome Letter or Figure, shewing that to be it, from whence the Answer is given ; moreover, the Saturnine apon beating the Drum a while, fell into a Trance, as tho' he were Dead, and the Laplanders, by mistake, then thought the Soul went out of the Body, and after having learnt many things, return'd again; whereas their Anceftors, with Plutarch, thought the Soul did not go out of the Body, but yielded for some time, and gave a loofe to the Genius, which having rov'd about, told it inwardly many things, which it had feen and heard without. Now, the things they defire to fee are of various kinds, either the Soul of the Dead, or the Actions of Men at a great distance, or past, or future things; and he gives nstances of fome eminent Perfons, who came from other Countries to theirs, to fee the Ghofts of their Ancestors, raifed after this manner, and Plato owns that all the Tradition . concerning the Elisian Fields and Hell, owes its rife to their North, which being cut on a T. ble of Brass was carried by Ops from the Hyerbcreans to Delos, belonging to the Greeks.

In his Tenth Chapter of his faid Third Vol. speaking of their Cuma which lies beyond the Baltick, over-against Phlægra, he fays, it was known formerly for Horrible Magick, and the Imposture of Witches; where Ulyffes and Aneas were feduced, confulting the old Fate-telling Cumæan Sibyl, call'd the Prophetels of Hell, because she lived in the remotest part North, as it were in a Subteraneous place; this Sibyl being different from the Cumane Sibyl in Italy; nay, and he here tells us, it is to be noted, that whatfoever of the Magick Art and Natural Science, is ascribed to the Antediluvian Giants by Syncellus and others, all this, both the Greek Histories, and those of their Country, unanimoully afcribe to the North.

In his Twelfth Chapter of the fame Volume, he tells us, that Thor, amongft other Names given him, was called Fluge-Guden, the God of Flies, driving away Magical Flies with his Hammer, he being the fame with Belzebub, mentioned in the Scripture.

As for the Magical Flies, they were Dæmons in the fhape of Blue Flies, which the Finlanders kept in a Magical Pouch or Satchel, they being called by them Gan, that is, Spirits, which they daily fent forth for their Magical purpofes, viz. to bring them News from all parts of the Univerfe, and to do things deftructive to Men, \mathfrak{C} . and thefe Flies were driven away by Sacrifices to Thor, tho' the Victims offer'd by the Jews at the Temple of Hierufalem were freed from Flies, by reason of the Jews Faith in God.

I thought fit to subjoyn this account from Olaus Rudbeck, to that of Schefferus, they both relating to Magical Practices, and giving fome light to cach other. I may

I may here acquaint the Reader, that Olaus Rudbeck, Son to the Famous Olaus, before quoed, was deputed, Anno 1695. by the late King of Sweden, Charles XI. to Travel through the Northern Provinces of Sweden, viz. Lapland, Finland, &c. to Write a Natural Hiftory of them, giving an Account of things peculiar to those Countries, viz. the Plants and Flowers, Stones, Metals, Quadrupes, Birds, Fish, &c. and Anno 1701. he Printed a First Part of this intended Account, at Upfal, in Quarto, the General Title of the Work being, Lapponia Illufrata; and the particular Title of this First Part being Iter per Uplandiam. In his General Title Page, he fays, he shall set forth in his Work, the Scituation of each of the Countries he there Names, and the Genius of the Inhabitants. but chiefly both the Habit of Body, and Difpolition of Mind of the Laplanders, their Religion, Manners, Language, way of Converse, and their first Origin, beside the account of their Annimals, Minerals, Mountains, Woods, Lakes, Rivers, Cataracts, &c. fo that, as he defigns to divide this Work into feveral Parts, we may hope, in one of them, to have as accurate an Account, as may be of their Magical Practices and Superstitions.

Having intimated before the Magical use of Drums, with other Superstitious Practifes in the West-Indies, I shall give you here what Mr. Wafer, in his Description of the Isthmus of Darien, Printed Anno 1699, writes of it, which is thus: We enquir'd of the Indians when they expected any Ships, who said, they knew not, but would enquire concerning it; and thereupon sent for some of their Pawaws, or Conjurers, who came, and went into an Apartment ment by themfelves, ftay'd for fome time at their Exercife, and he and his Companions could hear them make most hideous Yellings, and Shrieks, imitating the Voices of all their Birds and Beafts : With their own Noife they join'd that of feveral Stones ftruck together, and of Conch-Shells, and of a fort of Drums, made of hollow Bamboes, which they beat upon, making alfo a jarring Noife with Strings fasten'd to the larger Bones of Beafts; and every now and then they would make a dreadful exclamation and clattering, all of a fudden, and as fuddenly make a paule, with a profound filence: But finding, that after a confiderable time, no Anfwer was made them, they concluded that't was becaufe we were in the Houfe, and fo turn'd us out, and went to work again; but still finding no return, after an Hour or two more, they made a fearch in our Apartment, and finding fome of our Cloaths hanging up in a Basket against the Wall, they threw them out of Doors in a great difdain; then they fell once more to their Pawawing, and after a little time they came out with their Anfwer, but all in a muck Sweat; fo they first went down to the River, and wash'd themfelves, and then came and deliver'd the Oracle to us; which was to this effect : That from the tenth Day, from that time, there would arrive two Ships; and that in the Morning of the tenth Day, we fhould hear, first one Gun, and some time after another; that one of us fhould die foon after; at that going aboard we should lose one of our Guns; all which things fell out exactly, according to the Prediction.

A Perfon who has fpent many Years in Voy-

Voyages, has alfo told me, that he has feen Drums us'd in America, particularly at Dominico, where the Indians use them to Pawaw with, or causing Rain or fair Weather; but those Drums have no Characters on them; they beat hem with Sticks, and have fome little piece of fron or Stone on the Head loofe, which plays while they are beating; they utter also many words all the while they are beating, and speak very loud. The fame Perfon acquainted me, hat he faw in Norway, near Yarpin, an Artist beat a Drum, like a Lapland Drum, with two Sticks, and he observ'd his Lips to move all the while; he beat thereon above a quarter of an Hour, till he was all in a Sweat, and then he ell into a Trance, in which he lay above half in Hour, or near three quarters; and upon nis coming to himself, he answer'd the Quetion had been propos'd to him.

Concerning these Diabolical Extasies, Mr. Pereaud, in the seventh Chapter of his Demonology, prefixt to his Antidamon of Mascon, printed in French at Geneva, An. 1656, writes thus: The Devil caufes Witches fometimes to fall into Extafies in the Day-time, caufing in heir Bodies a deftruction of their Spirits and Sense for some time; so that a Man would ay their Soul were out of their Body, and hen he puts lively Impressions of things into them; while they are in this Preternatual leep, their Souls being, as it were, rereated into themfelves, and fo fixt, by the Devil, to the Fancies and Illusions, wherewith he amuses them, that they firmly believe, by this Imagination thus lively im-prefs'd, that they have done themfelves, what he Devil reprefented to them by fuch Imaginations, ginations. There are many Hiftories of thefe Diabolical Extasies, but I shall content my felf in alledging one, and fo much the rather becaufe it happen'd in my time, in the Country of Vaux; about the Year 1594, as I have been affur'd by very Credible Perfons. There was at that time, and in that place, a Bailiff of Berne, who having, one Day, invited the Minister of the faid place to Dinner, and being at Table, they came to a Difcourfe of Witches, occafion'd by the then Confinement of one, as a Prisoner, in the Castle of Echalens where they were, and which Prifoner was already Condemn'd to Die, for the Crime of Witchcraft, and was in a fhort time to be Executed, as he really was. This Bailiff spake his Mind freely to the Minister, his Pastor, concerning many things which this Witch confess'd to have done, and which he had a difficulty to believe it poffible for him to do, and hereupon being rifen from Table, the Bailiff went to the Prifon, and brought the Prifoner, and having fpoken to him, among other things, concerning the Confessions he had made, and of his Condemnation following, thereupon he Courteoully told him, that he should confider well whether he had not done himfelf injury, in having confess'd things that he had not done, minding him of fome of those things in particular; hereupon the Prisoner, who was already dispos'd to die, serioufly told him, that what he had faid and confess'd, was really true, and that for Proof of this, if he pleas'd to permit him, he would kill the Cattle of a Neighbour, whom he nam'd, fo he had his Box, and his Stick, which were at his House, in a place which he nam'd :

nam'd ; hereupon the Bailiff, willing to fatisfie his Curiofity, refolv'd to fend for this Stick and Box, refolving alfo to pay for the Cattle to whom they belong'd. The Stick and Box being brought, were put into the Witch's Hands; who in the Presence of the Bailiff, the Minister, and some others perform'd all the Ceremonies that other Witches are wont to use with those Instruments of Satan, till he fell as Dead, at their Feet, without any Motion or Sense, till about an Hour, or three Quarters after, he came to himfelf, as from Death to Life, or as from a most profound Sleep; and then being ask'd by the Bailiff whence he came? He faid, he came from killing the Cattle, which he had mention'd to him, and according to the leave he had giv'n him; prefently the Bailiff fent to know whether this were true, and the Cattle were found really Dead, as he had faid.

Mr. Pereaud adds; The Question is, who then kill'd the Cattle, it could not be the Witch. his Body continued always in the Prefence of the Bailiff and others; to fay that he went in his Soul, separated from the Body, this cannot be, for Reasons which he gives. It follows then, it was the Devil himself that did it, having wrought, in the mean time, fo powerfully on the Imagination of the Witch, that he believ'd it was done by himfelf.

Paracelfus has another way of explaining these things; which I shall leave to the Readers Tom. 11.c. Confideration; it is as follows, The Conftel- 2. prob. in Scien. Divi lation of a Man may be fo great in its thought, paragr. 2. that in a Man's fleep, it may fend his Sydereal Spirit to another place, without the aid of the Elementary Body; that Aftral Body has a Power

Power of infecting with Poifon, weakning, difforting, blinding, beating, killing, and infpiring, and that in a Moment, and afterward of returning to its Elementary Body. And its a thing very well known, that the Ancients, through a ftrong Imagination, by the force of the Aftral Body, attempted and perform'd many things of this kind against their Enemies; fo that fome on a fudden, have been rendred Paralitical, no Natural Caufe concurring; fome depriv'd of their Sight, fome made Leprous, fome Strangl'd. Thefe and the like Evils have been inflicted, which could fcarce be cur'd again in a very long time. Therefore, let those Physicians, who meet with fuch Difeafes know, that neither the Elements, nor Nature it felf breeds them, but that they were the Works of the fole Sydereal Body of others; and these things are caus'd in Dreams, when this or that Man Dreams fuch a thing; therefore according to this Dream, judge of the Difease of others.

He adds beneath. Though the Body, Soul, and Spirit are not together at the fame time, yet the thought and Speculation, or Imagination remains still in the Spirit, wherefore they are often feen with fuch kinds of Thoughts. Since therefore the thought of a Man is of fuch a Nature, therefore by the Sydereal Spirit that thing is fo express'd, and fignified by a Dream, according as one Spirit is difpos'd to another before he be confumed: nor is this only fo, but alfo in Mountains and Woody Places, and in the Alps, a great Number of these Sydereal Spirits have been sometimes feen, which have hurt Cattle and other Creatures, because the Sydereal Spirits of fome maintain'd an hatred, and executed a Revenge

Revenge after Death, against those Neighbours whose Cattle they were.

The following Relation, concerning an admirable Performance of Perfons, who caft themfelves into a Trance, is no lefs ftranger.

Frommannus, in his Tract de Fascinatione M.gica part. 6. c. 3. quotes Maielus writing thus. No lefs admirable is that Judgment of feven Magicians, which I learnt at Nantes, An. 1549. when therefore they had took upon them to tell, within a little space, what was done ten Miles round, they prefently fell all down as Dead, and lay so for three Hours; and then arising, they told whatsoever they had seen done in the whole Town of Nantes, and in the Country round about it to a good Distance; the Places, Facts and Men being observ'd, all which things upon enquiry were found true; therefore all of them being accus'd and found Guilty of many Malefices, were condemn'd to the Fire.

Purchas, in his Extracts from Gonzalo Ferdi- P. 2. 1. 5. Mando Ovido, his Summary and General Hifto- c. 3. ry of the Indies, writes thus. Before the Inhabitants of Hilpaniol had receiv'd the Chriflian Faith, there was among them a Sect of Men, who liv'd folitarily in the Defarts, and led their Life in Silence and Abstinence, more frictly than the Pythegoreens, abstaining in like manner from all things that liv'd of Blood, contented only with Fruits, Herbs, and Roots, which the Defarts afforded them ; the Profeffors of this Sect being call'd Piaces ; they apply'd themfelves to the Knowledge of Natural things, and us'd certain Secret Magical Ope-rations and Superflitions, whereby they had a Familiarity with Spirits, which they allur'd into their Bodies at fuch time as they would take upon them to tell of things to come, U 2 which

which they did as follows. When any of the Kings fent for any of them out of the Defarts for this purpose, the Piaces comes with two of his Disciples waiting on him, of whom one brings with him a Veffel of a Secret Water, and the other a little Silver Bell; when he comes to the place, he fits down on a round Stool, made for him on purpose, one of his Disciples standing on one Hand of him, and the other, on the other, in the Presence of the King, and certain of his chief Retinue (for the common People are not admitted to thefe Mysteries) and turning his Face toward the Defart, he begins his Incantations, and calls the Spirit, with a loud Voice, by certain Names which no Man understands but himself and his Disciples. After he has done this a while, if the Spirit deferrs his coming, he drinks of the faid Water, and therewith grows Hot and Furious, and inverts, and turns his Inchantment, and lets himfelf Blood with a Thorn, ftrangely turmoiling himfelf, as we read of the furious Sibyls, not cealing till the Spirit comes, who prefently overturns him, as a Greyhound overturns a Squiril; then, for a while, he feems to lie as though he were in great Pain, or in a Rapture, wonderfully tormenting himfelf; during which Agony, one of his Difciples shakes the Silver Bell continually; when the Agony is over, and he lies quiet (though without any Senfe or Feeling) the King, or fome other in his flead, asks of him what he defires to know, and the Spirit Anfwers him by the Mouth of the rapt Piaces, with a direct and perfect Answer to all Points. On a time a certain Spaniard being prefent at those Mysteries with one of the Kings, and in

in the Spanish Tongue, asking the Piaces concerning certain Ships, which they look'd for out of Spain, the Spirit answer'd in the Indian Tongue, and told them what Day and Hour the Ship departed from Spain, how many they were, and what they brought, without failing in any Point. If he be ask'd concerning the Eclipfe of the Sun or Moon (which they greatly fear and abhor)he gives a perfect answer, and the like of Tempests, Famine, Plenty, War, or Peace, and fuch other things. When all Queftions are over, his Difciples call him aloud, ringing the Silver Bell at his Ear, and blowing a certain Powder into his Nostrils, whereby he is raifed as it were from a Dead fleep, being yet somewhat heavy headed, and faint for a good while after. Since the Christian Faith has been dispersed through this Island, those Diabolical Practices have ceas'd.

The fame Author from the Fifth Book of Part. 3. Josephus Acasta, speaking of the West-Indians of l. 5. c. 5. Mexico, writes as follows.

When the Priefts went to Sacrifice, and give Incense in the Mountains, or on the tops thereof, or in any dark and obscure Caves, where their Idols were, they us'd a certain Ointment, doing certain Ceremonies, to take away fear, and to give them Courage. This Unction was made with divers little Venemous Beafts, as Spiders, Scorpions, Palmers, Salamanders and Vipers. To make an Ointment of these Beasts, they took them altogether, and burnt them on the Hearth of the Temple, which was before the Altar, till they were confum'd to Ashes; then they put them in Mortars with much Tobacco (which Herb they much us'd to Benumb the Flesh, that they might not feel their 3 their Travail) with which they mingle the Afhes, making them to lofe their force; they likewife mingl'd with these Ashes. Scorpions, Spiders, and Palmers, alive, then they put to it a certain Seed being ground, which they call'd Ololuchqui, whereof the Indians make a Drink to fee Visions; the Vertue of this Herb being to deprive a Man of Senfe. They likewife ground, with thefe Afhes, Black, and Hairy Worms, whofe Hair only is Venemous; all which they mingled together with the Black, or the fume of Rofin, and put it in finall Pots, which they fet before their God, faying it was his Meat; and therefore they called it a Divine Meat, by means of this Ointment they became Witches, and faw, and fpake with the Devil. The Priefts being flubber'd with this Ointment loft all fear, putting on a Spirit of Cruelty; by reafon wherecf they very boldly kill'd Men in their Sacrifices, going all alone in the Night to the Mountains, and into obscure Caves, contemning all Wild Beafts, and holding it for certain, and approv'd that Lions, Tigers, Serpents, and other Furious Beafts, which bred in the Mountains and Forefts, fled from them by the Vertue of this Tobacco of their God.

Ibid.

The fame Author tells us, There is a kind of Screerers among the Indians allow'd by the Kings, or Ingua's, who take upon them what form and figure they pleafe, flying far through the Air in a fhort time, beholding all that is done; they talk with the Devil, who anfwers them in certain Stones, or other things which they Reverence much; they tell what has pafs'd in the fartheft Parts before any News can come; as it has chanc'd fince the Spaniards arrived

rived there, that in the Diftance of two or three Hundred Leagues, they have known the Mutinies, Battles, Rebellions and Deaths, both of Tyrants, and of those of the Kings Party. and of private Men, which have been known the fame Day they happen'd or the Day after, a thing impoffible by the Course of Nature. To work this Divination they fhut themselves into a Houfe, and became drunk till they loft their Senfes, a Day after they answer'd to what was demanded, some affirm they use certain Unctions. The Indi ns fay, their Old Women commonly use this Office of Witchcraft, and especially those of one Province, which they call Coaillo, and of another Town they call'd Manchey, and of the Province of Gutirochivi. They likewife fhew what is become of things ftoln and loft; there are of these kinds of Sorcerers in all Parts, they tell of the Success of things pass'd, or to come, whether Voyages shall be Prosperous, whether a Man shall be Sick, or shall Die, or return fafe, or shall obtain that he pretends to ; they give their An-Iwers, yea, or no, having first spoke with the Devil, in an obscure place ; so as the Enquirers hear the found of the Voice, but fee not to whom these Conjurers speak, neither do they understand what they fay, they make a thoufand of Ceremonies and Sacrifices to this effect, and grow exceeding Drunk, for doing whereof they particularly use an Herb call'd Villes, the Juice whereof they mingle with their Chica, or take it in fome other fort.

The fame Author, from the Journal of Wil- P. 3. 1. 1. liam de Rubruquis a French Minorite Friar, con- c. 1. cerning his Travels into the Eastern parts of the World, An. 1255. tells us, That when the U 4 Cham Cham of East-Tartary purposed to do any thing, he caufed Three Shoulder Bones of Ramms to be brought him; and holding them in his Hands, he thought of the thing whereof he would Confult, whether he might do it, or not, and then delivered the Bones to be Burnt; when they were burnt Black, they brought them to him; then he lookt upon them, whether the Bones, by the Heat of the Fire, were Cleft right length ways, if fo he might do it; but if the Bones were Crackt athwart, or round pieces were flown out of them, then he did not proceed; for that Bone is always Cleft in the Fire, or the thin Skin which overspreads it, and if one of the three were Cleft forth right, yet he did it. In Mr. Jenkinson's Voyage among the Tartars, we may read of fuch Divinations. So far Purchas.

Now in reference to this way of Divination, a Lady now in London, has told my felf, that fhe knew a Perfon in Ireland, who by looking on the Plate Bone of a Shoulder of Mutton, it being of a Sheep that belong'd to the Mafter of a Family, would predict the whole Fate of that Family, and that ufually with fuccefs, as to who fhould firft Die, and many other Accidents relating to them.

Mr. Bedford, Minister of Temple Parish in Briskol, writ a Friend of his the last Year, a strange Relation of an Acquaintance of his, who often conversed with Spirits, and the unhappy confequences of it. It is as follows. About Thirteen Years since, I was acquainted with one Thomas Jerps, a Man about 20 Years of Age, who lived with his Father, at Mangersfield, in the County Gloucester, by Trade Trade a Black-Smith, he was a very good Temper'd Man, extreamly well Skilled in the Mathematical Studies, which were his conftant Delight, viz. Arithmetick, Geometry, Gauging, Surveying and Algebra, and much addicted himfelf to Aftronomy; at length he applied himfelf to Aftrology, and would fometimes Calculate Nativities, and refolve Horary Queftions, &c. which he told me prov'd oftentimes very true; but he was not fatisfied with it, becaufe there was nothing in it, which tended to a Mathematical Demonstration.

Having not feen him for fome time, he came to me one Day, and we being in Private, ask'd me very ferioufly concerning the Lawfulnefs of conversing with Spirits; and after I had given my Thoughts in the Negative, and confirm'd them with the best Reafons I could, he told me he had confidered all those Arguments, and believed they all related only to Conjuration; but there was an Innocent Society with them, which a Man might ufe. if he made no contract with them, did no harm by their means, and was not curious to pry into hidden things; and that he himfelf had Difcourfed with them, and heard them Sing, &c. to his great Satisfaction, and once made an offer to my felf, and another time to Mr. Bayly, now Minister of St. James's in Briftol, that if we would go with him one Night to Kingswood Forest, we should fee them, and hear them both Speak and Sing, and talk with them on whatfoever Subject we had a mind to, and we should return very fafe; but neither of us had the Courage to venture. I told him of the Subtlety of the Devil to delude Mankind, and transform himfelf into an Angel

Angel of Light; but he could not believe that it was the Devil. I had feveral conferences with him on this Subject, but could never convince him: In all which I never obferv'd the leaft diforder of Mind, his Difcourfe being very rational.

I ask'd him feveral particulars concerning the method he used, and the discourse he had had with the Spirits; He told me he had a Book whofe directions he followed, and accordingly, in the dead time of the Night, he went to a crofs way, with a Lanthorn and Candle, which were Confectated for this purpofe. with feveral Incantations: He had a fo a Confeerated Chalk, having a mixture of feveral things within it; and with this he used to make a Circle at what diftance he thought fit, within which no Spirit had power to enter; after this he Invoked the Spirits, by using feveral forms of Words; fome of which he told me were taken out of the Scriptures, and therefore he thought them lawful. The Spirits appeared accordingly to him, in the fhapes of little Girls about a Foot and an half high, and play'd without the Circle : at first he was fomewhat affrighted, but after fome finall Acquaintance, he became pleafed with their Company: He told me they fpake with a very Shrill Voice like an Ancient Woman; he asked them if there were a God, an Heaven, and an Hell ? they Answered there were ; he asked them what economy they had among themfelves? they told him they were divided into Three Orders: that they had a Chief, whofe Refidence was in the Air, that he had feveral Counfellors, which were placed in the form of a Globe, and he in the Center, which was the chiefest Order: another Order

Order was imployed in going to and fro, from thence to the Earth, to carry Intelligence from the Lower Spirits, according to the Directions they received from those in the Air.

This Defcription being contrary to the account we have in Scripture, of the Hierarchy of Angels, made me conclude them Devils, but I could never convince him: He told me he bid them Sing, and they went to fome diftance, behind a Bufh, from whence he could hear a pleafant Confort, but of fuch Mufick, of which he never heard the like; and in the upper part he could hear fomething very harfh and fhrill like a Reed, but as it was managed, gave a particular Grace to all the reft.

About a Quarter of a Year after this, he came to me again, and told me he wished now he had taken my Advice, for he thought he had done that, which would cost him his Life, and his Eyes and Countenance shew'd a great alteration. I asked him what he had done? he told me that being Bewitch'd by his Acquaintance, he refolved to proceed farther in this Art, and to have fome Familiar Spirits at his Command, according to the directions of his Book, which were to get a Book made of Virgin Parchment, and Confecrated with feveral Incantations, as alfo particular Ink, Inkhorn, Pens, Sec. for this purpose; with these he was to go out as usual to a Crofs-way, call upon a Spirit, and ask him his Name, which he was to enter in the First Page of his Book, and this was to be his Chief Familiar. Thus he was to do by as many as he pleafed, Writing their Names in diftinct diftinct Pages, only one in a Leaf, and then, whenever he took the Book and opened it, the first whose Name prefented, should appear: his Chief Familiar he faid was called Malchi, after he had done this, they appear'd to him faster than he defired, and in most Difmal Shapes, as of Serpents, Lions, Bears, Oc. and hift at him, and attempted to throw Spears, and Balls of Fire; he was very much Affrighted, and the more because, he found it not in his power to Lay them, infomuch that his Hair stood an end, and he expected every moment to be Torn in Pieces. This was in December about Midnight, when he continued there in a Sweat till break of Day, at which time they left him, and from that time he was never well as long as he liv'd. He always faid he never made any Compacts with any of these Spirits, nor ever did any Harm by their means, nor pry'd into Future Concerns, relating to himfelf, or others, and exprest an hearty Repentance for his Sin.

A farther account of this Matter may, perhaps, be had from his Relations, or Neighbours in Mangerfield in Gloucester-shire, not above a Mile out of the Road, betwixt Bristol and Bath.

I formerly gave an Account of this Affair, to the late Bifhop of Hereford, in which probably there are fome things contain'd, which I do not now remember, and which, perhaps, may be procured from his Lady, now living near Gloucefter, which Account would be more Authentick. So far Mr Bedford.

Fanus Mattheus, an Italian Phyfician, Printed a Book of Problems, at Venice, Anno 1567. The First Problem there treated, is this: Whether ther there are D.emons, and whether they are the caufes of Difeafes, according to the Opinions of Divines, Philofophers and Phyficians. In the Third Book of this Problem, he gives us a Relation much like the foregoing Relation of Mr. Bedford, and fays, he had it from many Perfons worthy of Credit, and from the Author of the thing himfelf. It is as follows.

After the Death of Julius Albertus, a Lawyer, a certain Friend of mine, a Lawyer alfo, feized on a certain Necromantick Book, which had been kept in a Box of the faid Albert; having got it into his poffession, he prefently return'd into a Mountain, where his Wife was Born, before the discovery of the Theft; there he Lived a long time, and Died, never having tried the Power of the Book, he being wholly Ignorant of the Magick Art; but on a day unwarily whilper'd out fomething, concerning its Magical Power, to his only Son, named Arrivabenus, my familiar Acquaintance. his Father being Dead, and he having Married a Rich Wife, was drawn by fome faife Companions, into the Fallacious Practice of Chymiftry, and when, after a while, he had spent much of his Wives Fortune, and almost all of his Paternal Estate in Chymical Practices to no purpose, he lights on a day, on a certain German Traveller, who was Skilful in the Art of Chymistry, whom he carried to his Houfe, and they there try'd Chymical Experiments together a long time, but still in vain; whereupon at length he difcover'd to the German, that he had a Magical Book, and fhew'd it him, but with engagement of Secrefy; the German confidering the Book, faid to him, pray let us try whether this Book contains Truth Truth or Dreams, and on an appointed Day Arrivabenus took with him the Book, and a Sword (the German going with him unarm'd, (for fo it was agreed betwixt them;) and before Sun Rifing they went into a Valley, thro' which a Torrent ran, and fo went into a thick Wood, on the left fide of the Torrent, in the midft of which having cut fome Bufhes with the Sword, and made an Area, as it was neceffary; prefently fome Ceremonies being premitted by the German, wont to be used for fuch end, and a large Circle being made with a Rod, with certain Geometrical Figures, they both enter into it. Then Arrivabenus himfelf, who would not deliver the Book to the German, (they having fo agreed) held it firmly in his Left Hand, and the Sword in his Right, and at the Germans Command open'd it; which being done, the German in the German Tongue, called only two Damons to appear in Soldiers Habits; and prefently with a great Wind and Noife, two Damons came, one a Horfeman with an Head-piece and a Coat of Mail, and all other meet Arms, and Riding on a Black Horfe; the other a Foot Soldier, going before him, girt with a Sword, and having a Snapfack on his Shoulder, whofe Eyes fhined with certain movable Flames, that you would have judg'd them Colliers, and would fcarce have been able to look on them : prefently as these Damons appear'd to the Men, they faid, what do you Ask? to thefe the German made an Answer, and asked them many things in the German Tongue, and received their Anfwers to all things in particular. At length as he had commanded them to return to Hell, as they were

were going away, Arrivabenus faid, What think you will become of our Alchimy? to which as the Demon was going to Anfwer, begone fays the German, in the Ger-man Tongue, Speak no more; whereupon, they return'd to Hell, with the fame Wind and Noife as they came. After they were Vanished Arrivabenus began to Upbraid the German for having done Ill, in hindring the Devil from giving them an Anfwer, as to their Alchimy, and the next day difinist him. And by reason that for two Years afterwards Arrivabenus's Wives Uncles would not Pay him what remaind in their Hands of her Fortune, as he defired, becaufe he had managed. his Affairs III; being ftruck with a Rage, he takes his Damonical Book, and goes to the fame Wood and Area; and having performed all things but one, which the German had done there before; behold, prefently, with the fame Wind and Noife of the Trees, innumerable Damons, with Frightful Countenances, and carrying rugged Staves in their crocked Hands, appear (for through Rage Arrivabenus had forgot to command, both how many, and in what appearance they fhould come to him, as the German had done before) and flood about the Circle he had made, within which the Miserable Man flood; and they fcar'd him with Threats, and endeavoured to pull him out of the Circle, all of them earneftly Asking, what will you have? what will you have? whereupon being Frighted and befide himfelf, and running to and fro within the Gircle, in an horrid Fear, he fell at length out of the Circle unawares ; the Dæmons then fell a Beating him, pulling him here and there, and and ftrove to take the Book from him, but could not do it, he having hid it in his Bofom. Mean while Arrivabenus fometimes Running, fometimes Creeping, came at length to the Bridge, which is over the River, for he was not so far beside himself, that he had quite forgot his right way, but the Damons threw him from the Bridge into the River, fo that he was nigh Suffocated in the Mud and Water; now, a Country Man cafually driving an Afs to fetch Wood, paft over the Bridge, where his Afs being frighted, and flying back, he faw Arrivabenus tumbling in the Mud, half Dead, he called to him, and laying hold of his Hair, drew him out of the Mud, and by the help of his Afs, carried him, with much ado, to his Wife in the Town; who finding the Book in his Bofom, which fhe had heard him fpeak of before, the took it privately from him, and had it burnt. Arrivabenus lookt Pale and Ill ever after it, tho' he Lived a long time: And Anno 1591. upon my request, freely gave me this Relation, word for word, I having heard of it long before from fome others. Janus Mattheus adds for a close; Now what poffibly may our great Philosophers, the Perepateticks here Anfwer? Truly they will either deny Inftances of this kind, for that they confift of Particulars, which are neither known by Difcipline, nor by the Understanding: or fuch things being granted, they would fay that these are not Histories, but meer Dreams of fome Melancholly Relators, for certain Melancholly Perfons fo fixtly Dream in the Night (as it fometimes happens to Lovers and Jealous Persons) of those things which with a most vehement affect they Defire, Hope, hope, abhor or fear in the Day, that they feem most truly to fee the fame waking in the Day time ; according to that of Averrhoes. Its no L. de Som. ftrange thing that fome Man may fee when a- & Vig. wake, what fleeping he did in his Dream. Nay, perhaps he will fee the very form of the thing, and not its likeness, as its faid of Gaumar. So far Janus Matthaus.

Kircher, in his Oedip. Agyp. Tom. 2. p. 82. tells us, That in the midft of the Subterraneous Adyta of the Egyptians, there was an Altar or Table plac'd, and in it the whole Concatenated Series of the Genii, were represented by fuch hidden Symbols, that they did not only notifie the hidden Receffes of the greatest Mysteries, but they had alfo an infallible efficacy, to make one of them which the Priefts had a Mind, perfonally to appear, by horrible and execrable Adjurations, and Analogons Rites and Ceremonies.

There are many Relations of Houfes infefted with Dæmons by Magical Practices, caufing Noifes in them, throwing Stones, Gr. of which I shall give only this Instance. Joan. In Epit. Cluverius tells us, that An. 856, an evil Spirit Histor. infested the City of Mentz, and the Neighbouring Places : first throwing Stones, and making Noifes against the Walls of the Houfes, and then growing troublefome to Men, he began, in a while to fpeak, and to tell what things were stoln, and so to fow discord among Neighbours; at length he ftirr'd up the Minds of all against one Man, as though they fuffer'd all those things for his Sins; and into whatfoever House he went, it presently took on Fire : nor was he free in the Fields, for Fruits being there heap'd together, they were confum'd with Fire, and when the Neigh-X bours bours for this fell upon him, and were about to kill him, he prov'd his Innocency by carrying a burning hot Iron in his Hands. He continued acting thus for three Years, till he had confum'd all the Houfes with Fire.

There was an Inftance of this kind, the last Year in Somersetshire, at Butley, near Glastenbury, where lives one Mr. Pope, whole Son being about 13 or 14 Years of Age, fell often into Fits, and in his Fits faid, his Father's House would be Burnt by Spirits, whom he fometimes faw; and the House was Burnt down accordingly, and a Stall with three Oxen in it, and fome Wheat Mows in his backfide ; and Stones were feen to come in at the Windows in the Day time, no Man perceiving from what Hand they came ; as a Person of Glastenbury told my felf, the last Summer, at Wells, in the faid County; he, upon his being in the House, having feen many Stones fo come in at the Windows. This Vexation continued a long time, though now I hear it's ceas'd, and the Houfe is rebuilding : There are many more particulars to be brought concerning this Fact, and, if any Man can make out, that all thefe things were done by Trick, and Contrivance as fome fay they were) they may do well to fatisfie the World of it.

I know the late Dr. Bekker, in his Book entitled, Le monde Ench inté, laughs at all things of this Nature, as done by Humane Contrivance, and Mr. Scot, in his Difcovery of Witcher ft, writes thus: I could recite a great Number of Tales, how Men have ev'n forfaken their Houfes, becaufe of fuch Apparitions and Noifes; and all has been by meer and rank Knavery; and wherefoever you fhall hear that that there is in the Night Seafon fuch rumbling, and fearful Noifes, be you well affur'd, that it is flat Knavery, performed by fome that feem most to complain, and are least fulpected; and hereof there is a very Art, which for fome respects I will not discover. The Devil feeks daily, as well as nightly whom he may Devour, and can do his Feats as well by Day as by Night, or elfe he is a Young Devil, or a very Bungler.

I know not what may be offer'd to Men of fuch obstinate Prepossessions, who will have all things done by Imposture, which feem ftrange to them, and interfere with their Belief; I may indulge their Humour fo far, that if only one Person tells a very strange Story, a Man may be more apt to think it possible for that Perfon to lye, than that fo ftrange a Relation should be true; but if a confiderable number of Persons, of several Countries, several Religions, feveral Professions, feveral Ages, and those Perfons look'd upon to be of as great Sagacity, as any the Countries afford, agree in Relations of the fame kind, though very ftrange, and are ready to vouch the Truth of them upon Oath, after having well confider'd Circumstances, I think it a violation of the Law of Nature, to reject all these Relations as fabulous, meerly upon a felf prefuming Conceit, unlefs a Man can fairly fhew the things to be Impossible, or wherein those Perfons were impos'd on. Dr. Bekker rejects all the Facts alledg'd for proving the Operations of Damons, and among others the Facts of the Damons of Mascon and Tedworth, as being done by Combinations of Servants, or others; and would have the World acquiefe in his Ar-X 2 bitrary bitrary fay fo, without any manner of Proof, only alledging this frivolous Pretence, that there have been Impoftures in that kind, and therefore those must be for a notable confequence which should a School-Boy infer, he would deferve lashing, but I shall fay somewhat concerning Dr. Bekker's Work beneath (it being Inft. r Omnium in its kind) and therefore fhall fay no more of it here; leaving the Facts at Melcon and Tedworth to Men of unbyals'd Thoughts to judge of them as they fee caufe : These Relations seeming to me well attested, and as well examin'd as if the Critical Dr. Bekker had been a Party concern'd on that Account. Indeed it may not be eafy fometimes to difcover how a thing is done by Trick, tho' it be really fo ; as the Lord Howard, in his Defensative against suppos'd Prophecies, C. 17. where he treats of Mens Conference with damn'd Spirits and Familiars, tells us, That himfelf was prefent with divers Gentlemen and Noblemen, who undertook to defery the fineft Sights that Schotto, the Italian, was able to Play, by Leger du Main, before Queen Elizabeth, who notwithftanding were no lefs beguil'd than the reft, that prefum'd lefs on their Dexterity and Skill in those Matters. And nevertheless I think it may not be difficult to difcern that fome Facts, and among others, those that pass'd at Malcon and Tedworth, were above all Humane Performance. Mr. Scot, indeed tell us, There is a peculiar Art for doing these things, which for some respects he will not discover. I suppose by this Art he does not mean a common Combination of Servants (as Dr. Bekker feems to be of Opinion it is, though he prefently fubjoins, that the Devil can fhew Tricks

Tricks as well by Day, as by Night, intimating as though those Noises, &c. only happen in Houfes by Night (a time favouring Impoftures) which is a great miltake; for in the Relations of the Dæmons of Mascon and Tedworth, and that I have given before, and in many other Relations of the like kind, we find that many Facts pass'd in the Day time, as wellas by Night, and that Stones have been thrown at Perfons in open Fields, in the Day time, by an invifible Hand, when many have been present. And notwithstaning this pretence of an Art, unless Men have an Art to make themselves invisible, (as History tells us, I know not with what truth, fome have done) I fhall never believe that any Man shall be able fairly to folve the Facts we have recorded of Houses and other Places infefted, by any Performance of Man; allowing still that there have been many Impostures in this kind, and that many strange things may be performed, as to the Conveyance of Voices and Sounds by a deep infight in Acou-Aicks and Phonicks.

I shall not conceal here, that, in reference to what pass'd at Tedworth, a Person lately told me, Mr. Mompeffon own'd privately to the late King Charles the Second, that all that pass'd at his House at Tedworth was done by Contrivance: And another Person has told me.it was done by two Young Women in the House, with a defign to scare thence Mr. Monpellon's Mother ; this was told them by others, and I found them inclin'd to a Belief of it, but whoever related this, unless they were obstinate Oppofers of the Truth, either had not feen, or duly confider'd the Letter writ by Mr. Monpeffon to Mr. Glanvil, Nov. the 8th. 1672. X 3 nor nor that writ by him to Mr. Collins, one of the Bookfellers that undertook the Impression of his Book, it being dated Aug. the 8th. 1674. in the first mention'd of those Letters he writes thus: I have been very often of late ask'd, whether I have not confess'd to his Majefty, or any other, a Cheat difcover'd about that Affair. To which I gave, and fhall to my dying Day, give the fame Anfwer, that I must belye my felf, and perjure my felf alfo, to acknowledge a Cheat in a thing, where I am fure neither was, nor could be any, as my felf, the Minister of the Place, and two other honeft Gentlemen, depos'd at the Affizes, upon my impleading the Drummer; and tho' I am fure this damnable Lye does pass for current among one fort of Perfons in the World, yet I Question not but the thing obtains Credit among those, whom I principally defire should retain a more Charitable Opinion of me, than to be any way a Devifer of it, only to be talk'd of in the World, to my own Difadvantage and Reproach.

In his Letter to Mr. Collins, he informs him of what was depos'd upon Oath, and by whom at the Affizes at Sarum, concerning this Affair, where he writes thus; The Evidence upon Oath were my felf, one Mr. William Maton, and one Mr. Walter Dowfe, all yet living, and I think of as good Repute, as any this Country has in it; and one Mr. John Cragg, then Minifter of the Place, but fince dead: We all depos'd feveral things, that we conceiv'd impoffible to be done by any Natural Agents, as the Motion of Chairs, Stools, and Bedftaves, no Body being near them, the beating of Druns in the Air, over the Houfe, in clear Nights, Nights, with feveral other things of the like Nature. These Witnesses were Neighbours, and depos'd that they heard, and faw these things almost every Day or Night, for many Months together.

The preceeding Letters are Printed at the end of the Preface, to the Second Part of Mr. Glanvil's Saducifmus Triumphatus, Printed together with the First Part, Ann. 1681.

After the foregoing Declaration of Mr. Mompeffon, I must freely tell all Men, that fhall pretend a Cheat in the Translation at Tedworth, that till they fairly make appear to the World, by whom the Cheat was play'd, and how the Facts Sworn to were perform'd, the Imposture must lie at their Door.

If we may believe Luther, he tells us, in his chap. 35. Table Talk, That he departed from Worms, and not far from Eisenach, was taken Prisoner, and was lodged in the Caftle of Wartburg in Pathmo. in a Chamber far from People, where none could have accefs to him, but only two Boys that twice a Day brought him Meat and Drink, among other things they brought him Hazle Nuts, which he put into a Box, and fometimes us'd to eat of them. In the Night times the Devil came, and got the Nuts out of the Box, and crack'd them against one of the Beds Posts, making a very great Noife, and a rumbling about his Bed, but he regarded him not ; when afterward he began to flumber, he kept fuch a racket and rumbling upon the Chamber Stairs, as if many empty Hogheads and Barrels had been tumbled down; and tho' he knew the Stairs were ftrongly guarded with Iron Bars, fo that no Paffage was either up or down, yet he arofe and went towards the Stairs X_4

Stairs to fee what the matter was, but finding the Door fast flut, he faid, Art thou there? So be there still; and fo he committed himfelf to Chrift, and laid him down to rest again. So far Luther.

I went my felf once to fee a Gentleman near Bath, and came to his Houfe about Eleven of the Clock in the Morning, his Lady faid to me, fhe wish'd I had come fooner, for about an Hour before, as the was coming in at the fore-door of the House, she faw the Minister of the Parish come into the Entry, at the backdoor, and to go into the Hall, whom the prefently followed, but found him not there, whereupon she went up to her Chamber, where a Midwife was to attend her, fhe being near her time of being brought to Bed, and finding the Minister not there, as she expected, fhe was much furprifed, and fent to his Houfe to enquire for him, and it was found, he had not stirred out of his House that Day; but withal the Gentleman, I was to fee, told me, they had every Night Noifes in their Houfe, as though a Man should strike Hundreds of strokes with a Mallet on an empty Hogshead, which kept himfelf, and his whole Family waking; and faid, if I would ftay a Night with him I fhould hear the fame; but my occasions would not then permit me to ftay.

There are a World of well attefted Relations in this kind, but all must be Cheat and Imposture with some Men, because, forsooth, they will have it so.

To deliver fomewhat of my own Opinion concerning the Power of Magick; I muft own my felf to have been long guided by the Caution giv'n us by Corn Agrippa, to prevent being impos'd impos'd on by Pretenders to Magick, and other curious and abstrufe Arts, in an Epifile he sent to his Friend, the Abbot de Aqua Ep. 1. s. Pendente, where he writes as follows : Have a Ep. 14. care you are not deceived by those who have been deceived, for no reading of Books whatfoever can direct you in this, they being fill'd with meer Anigma's. O! How great things are written concerning the Power of the M:gick Art? Concerning the prodigious Images of Aftrologers ? of the powerful Metamorphofis of the Alchimists? and concerning that Bleffed Stone, with which bafer Metals being touch'd, they are prefently turned into Siver or Gold? all which things are found vain, when they are practis'd according to the Letter. And neverthelefs thefe things are delivered and written by great, and most grave Philfophers and holy Men, whole Traditions, who shall dare to Charge with Falfhood ? Nay, it would be impious to believe, that they purpofely writ Lyes. Therefore there is another Senfe in what they write, than is delivered by the Letter, and that covered with various Mysteries, but hitherto openly explained by none of the Mafters; and which I know not whether any Man can attain, by the fole reading of Books, without a skillful and faithful Mafter, unlefs he be divinely inlightned, which is granted to very few. Therefore many labour in vain, who purfue these most Secret Arcana of Nature, applying their Minds to the bare words as they lie; for by an unhappy Genius, being fall'n from a right understanding, and intangi'd in falfe Imaginations, by the craft of exteriour Spirits, they become dangerous Servants to those, oyer whom they might Rule, and not knowing ing themfelves, they go forth after the Footfteps of their Herds, feeking without themfelves, what they poffels within them. And this is what I would now have you know, that the Worker of all wonderful things is in our felves, who knows how to effect, and that without all Crime, Offence of God, or Injury of Religion, whatfoever the portentous Aftrologers, the prodigious Megici. ns, the envious Perfecutors of Nature, the Alchimists, and the wicked Necromancers, worfe than Devils, dare promife. I fay, that Worker of wonderful things is in us,

He lives in us, not in the Stars, nor Hell, That Spirit does it, which in us does dwell.

But these things are not to be committed to Paper, but to be delivered by Word of Mouth, which I may do when I fee you. As to the Philosophy you require, I let you know, that to know God, the Maker of all things, and to pass into him by a whole Image of likenefs, as by a certain Effenial contact, or tye, whereby you may be transformed and made a God, this is the true and folid Philosophy, as the Lord fpeaks of Moles, faying, Behold I have mide thee a God of Pharoab, this is the highest, and most occult Philosophy of wonderful Works. Its Clavis is the understanding, for the higher things we understand, the more fublime Vertues we put on, and the more wonderful things we Work with more eafe and efficacy, but our understanding being inclosed in corruptible Flesh, unless unlefs it rifes above the ways of the Flesh, and comes to its proper Nature, cannor be united to those Divine Powers / for they do not join but with their like', and is wholly impotent for perceiving those most hidden Secrets of God and Nature; fhall a Man fee God and Live ? What Fruit will a Grain of Corn bring forth, unless it first dies ? He must die, die to the World and the Flesh, and to all his Senfes, and the whole Animal Man, who would enter the receffes of Secrets; not that the Body is feparated from the Soul, but that the Soul leaves the Body; concerning which Death, Paul fays to the Colossins, You are dead, and your Life is hid with Christ; and elsewhere he fays, more clearly of himfelf, I know a Man, whether in the Body or out of the Body I know not, God knows, rapt to the third Heav'n. &c. I fay we must die this Death, which is precious in the fight of the Lord, which happens to very few, and haply not always; for, first those who are born, not of Flesh and Blood, but of God; next those who by a Privilege of Nature, or a Genethliacal Gift of the Heav'ns are Dignified for it; the rest build on Merits and Art, concerning which I shall certifie you by Word of Mouth. So far Agrippa, who has much more to the same purpose.

Dr. Flood, as well elfewhere in his Works, as in his Clavis to his Philosophy and Alchimy, towards the end of it, writes conformably to what what is delivered us by Agrippa, as follows. That the true Cabalifts, and true Alchimifts are employed about one and the fame thing, and fo the Magi, wife Men, and Philosophers, its what no Man of a found Mind can be Ignorant of, fince there is but one fummum bonum, and one true Stone, at which Mark all that are truly Wife, most attentively Aim; fome of whom are employed about the Cabala, others about Alchimy, others about the Theo-Philosophy, others about Natural Magick.

As to Agrippa, I have heard fome Learned Men fay, that in his Youth, when he writ his Books of Occult Philosophy, he had some esteem of Magick, but as he grew Elder, and when he writ his Vanity of Sciences, he shew'd his contempt of it; but I wonder Learned Men should talk thus; for in his Vanity of Sciences. he explodes Magick, no more than he does all other Arts and Sciences, and indeed he writes little there against it : And he fays elfewhere, that he writ that Book fportingly, only to try what Young Students could fay for the Arts and Sciences they were fo fond of, and fo valued themfelves by. And in his Epiftle to Epist. 1. 6. Erasmus, he fays, He writ that Book in a De-Ep. 35. clamatory way, in which all Liberty of Speech is used and allowed; this being as Scholars, that take a Theme, and declaim Pro, or Con, at Pleasure. If I look for Agrippa's true Sense of a matter, I seek for it in the Epistles he writ to his Learned Friends and Correspondents, and there he fufficiently expresses the efteem he had of the true Magick.

As to the Death of the Animal Man, mentioned by Agripps, as required for initiating us towards the Performance of great things, Dr.

Dr. Willis, as a skillful Phisologer, in his Book Exerc. 1. Of the Soul of Brutes, excellently fets forth the ". 7. Contest which happens betwixt the Corporeal Soul, and the Rational, in the Purgative Life, before the latter can settle the former in a due Subjection, and keep it felf to its due Purity. He writes thus: The Corporeal Soul does not fo readily obey the Rational in Defirables, as in Knowables, for that being nigher the Body, and fo having a more intimate Affinity towards the Flesh, its wholly bound to take care of the good and Perfervation of that; for the careful Performance of which Office, its very much drawn by the various Allurements continually prefented by the Objects of each Senfe; hence being employed about the care of the Body, and under that pretext being apt to indulge Feafting and Pleafures, fhe very often gives a Deaf Ear to Reafon, perfwading the contrary; moreover, the Inferiour Soul being weary of the others Yoak, on occasion being given, clears it felf of its Fetters, affecting Liberty, or Rule; and then you may clearly observe Twins striving in the fame Belly, or rather a Man wholly divided by two Armies fighting against each other within him.

Infeftis obvia signis Signa, pares Aquilas, & vota minantia votis.

This Inteffine conteft does not wholly ceafe, till one of the Combatants being become Superior, leads the other wholly Captive, though, in the mean time, to eftablish the Empire of the Rational Soul, and to vindicate its Right and Empire from the Usurpation of the fenfitive

fitive Soul, the Precepts of Philosophers, and Moral Inftitutions are put in ure, and when thefe will not do, Sacred Religion furnishes a far more powerful Aid, whose Laws and Precepts being duly observ'd, they are able to raise a Man not only above a Brute, but ev'n himfelf, that is, above his Natural State; in as much as they fubject the Sensitive Soul to the Rational, and both to God. Neverthelefs this Divine Policy is not, ev'n fo erected in Man, without a great Contention ; for while Reafon using its own strength, joyn'd with Moral and Sacred Precepts endeavours to draw the Faculties of the Corporeal Soul to its fide, this rifing on the contrary, obftinately adheres to the Flesh, and is hardly drawn from its Flatteries, nay, and which is to be lamented, fhe too often feduces the chief Soul in us, and carries it away with it, to wallow in the Dirt of fenfual Pleafures; fo that a Man becomes either like to, or worfe than a Brute, infomuch that Reason being become Brutal, leads to every excess; and notwithstanding the Minds Empire is not always, and wholly overthrown, but fometime or other, either returning to her felf, of her own accord, or being awaken'd by fome occafion given, and confcious of her Lapfe, fhe rifes up against the fensitive Soul, as an Enemy and Traitor, and throwning her from her Throne, commands her Obedience. Nay, fometimes she compels her, by reason of Crimes committed, to torture her felf, and her beloved Flesh, and so by inflicting Punishments on her felf, to Expiate, as fhe may her own Faults; which kind of Act and Affect of Confcience of a Man's torturing himfelf, being proper to Man, plainly thews thews him either to have two fubordinate Souls within him, or, at leaft that the Parts of his Soul are very differing; whereof, as the one oppofes the other, and contends for the Maftery, it happens that Man is carryed away to contrary purpofes, and is Exagitated little lefs than a Damoniack, obfefs'd by a Legion.

The fame Author, in the fame Book, writes Differt. 24 more of the faid Contest as follows. Super- c.d' Meflition, and Despair of Eternal Salvation are lane. wont to imprint on the fensitive Soul, the Blood and Body, in a manner the like affects of Melancholy, as Love and Jealousie, tho' fome way after a different manner of affecting; for in the former, the Object whole getting or lofs is in danger, is wholly Immateral, and its defign being first conceiv'd by the Rational Soul, is Imprinted on the Corporeal; in the profecution of which, if this readily obeys, then no Perturbation of a Man's Mind arifes; but if the Corporeal Soul withstanding, as it often happens, the Rational still infists with Admonitions and Threats, prefently the other growing hot, moves the Blood and Spirits after a diforderly manner, opposes Corporeal Goods and Pleafures; to the Spiritual prefented by the Understanding, and endeavours to draw the Man to her fide; and as thus there is a continual ftruggle betwixt the two Souls. and fometimes the Will is Superior, fometimes the fensitive Appetite prevails; at length a Court of Confcience is crected by the Mind, where all particular Acts are forupuloufly examined, by reason of these frequent Variances of the Souls, the Animal Spirits, as being too much, and in a manner perpetually exercifed, and being commanded here and there contrary trary ways, and almost distracted, fall fomewhat at length from their Vigour, and Natural Difposition, and at last being rendred fixt and melancholick, as they are detained from their wonted Expansion, they frame out of Course, and unufal traces in the Brain, and fo caufe a Delirium, with an excess of Fear and Sadnefs. In those kinds of affects, the Corporeal Soul being carryed away, as it were by Violence, both Divorces it felf from the Body, and being modified according to the Character of the Idea imprinted, is wont to take a New Species, either Angelical, or Diabolical; mean while the Understanding, inafmuch as the Imagination fuggefts to it only difcorderly and monftrous Notions, is wholly perverted from the use of the right Reason.

After the like way of affecting, it happens that fome melancholy Perfons fall into Imaginary Metamorphofes, either as to their Fortunes, or their Bodies, one imagining himfelf and Acting as a Prince, another as a Beggar, one thinks his Body to be made of Glafs, another thinks himfelf a Dog, a Wolf, or fome other Monfter; for after the Corporeal Soul, being affected with a lafting Melancholy, and blinded in Mind, has wholly departed from her felf and the Body, fhe affects a New Species, or Nature, and, as much as in her lies, really affumes it. So far Dr. Willis.

I hope this may not feem an overlong Digreffion, in regard it feems to me to contain a more clear Explication, than may eafily be found in other Authors, of the conteft which happens betwixt our two Souls within us, in order to the Spiritual Death of the Animal Man, and our affuming a Divine Nature, capable

But after all the reafoning of Agrippa, in which he has excellently fet forth what relates to Internal Operations of the Mind, and the way of bringing it to its highteft Perfection and Purity, I do not fee how he Accounts for the External Operations perform'd by Magicians of which there are a World of Inftances, unlefs he will have it with the Arabian Philofophers, that the Soul by the Power of the Imagination can perform what it pleafes; as penetrate the Heav'ns, force the Elements, demolifh Mountains, raife Vallies to Mountains, and do with all Material Forms as it pleafes.

Mr. Blunden, having fent a Letter from London to Paulus Felgenbalder, at Amfterdum, to defire his Opinion concerning M. gical Performances, he returned him an Anfwer, in Latin, An. 1655, which Anfwer a Gentleman having favour'd me with a fight and perufal of, I give you here the Subftance of it.

He divides Magick, and Magicians into three kinds, viz. Divine, Natural, and Diabolical. Now all Magick, he fays, confifs in the Spirit by Faith, for Faith is that Magnet of the Magicians, by which they draw Spirits to them, and by which Spirits they do great things; viz. either by the Spirit of God, or by Natural Spirits, or by the Spirit of Daemons: Therefore all Magick confifts in a Spirit, and every Magician Acts by a Spirit. Magicians that are of God Work by the Holy Ghoft, and the Holy Ghoft by Magicians, 1 Cor. 12. Natural Magicians Work all things by the Natural Spirits of the Elements, but Witches and Y Demo-

Demoniacal Magicians, as Fannes and Fambres in Agypt, Work their Magical Performances by the Spirit of Dæmons ; he concludes therefore, that all Operations and Works of efficacy are wrought by a Spirit. Now, he fays, it must be well observ'd, that the Magicians which are of God, and the Natural Magicians very much differ. Natural Magicians are fhewn us, Matth. 7. 22. and by Natural Magick Damons are alfo caft forth, but not all kinds of Dæmons, and fo many Works of efficacy are wrought by Natural Magick, alfo Natural Divinations and Prophecies, Att. 16. 16. fuch the Pythoniffa was that raifed Samuel, Sam. 28. who appeared in a Body of Wind and Air, as all the Bodies of the Dead, till the Refurrection, which produces a Spiritual Body, confifting of a Spirit, Light, and the Heav'ns, Spiritual Elements. The Spirits of the Elements attend this Natural Magick, and obey the Magician: but we must know, that in some Persons the Natural Magick and Dæmoniacal are mixt and promiscuous, as the Magick which is from God, and the Natural Magick; and alfo in fome part the Damoniacal were mixt in Balaam, who alfo fought Auguries, Numb. 24. being willing to make himfelf gracious to God, and alfo to Man, and fo to pleafe both; and therefore the Angel of God refifted him, c. 22. and for this Hypocrifie, he died by the Sword, c. 20.8.

Though therefore, he fays, Natural Magicians do many Works of efficacy by Spirits, yet they do not do thefe in the Name of God and Chrift, though they talk much of the Name Adonai, and call upon it, yet this Name may be taken in vain; and by the Permiffion of

of God Natural Spirits bring to pass Auguries. So alfo Natural Magick, and the Dxmoniacal are promiscuous in some Persons; but if a Perfon by Natural Magick should cast cut Dæmons, it does not follow, that this was alfo from Divine M gick; and if Dæmons are caft out by Natural Magick, by one that is in the fear of God, it does not follow, that he is a true Magician of God ; for Natural Magick truly cafts forth Spirits and Dæmens, if it be true Natural Magick, but if it exorbitates to Damoniacal, then it is condemn'd, and when Natural Magick keeps within its bounds, it is not condemn'd by Christ; read Luke the 9. 49. 50. wherefore the Name Adon. i, and of Chrift may be us'd both rightly, and in a finifter way; rightly, as in the place before quoted; in a Sinister way, Act. c.7. 13. 14. and fo the Magicians of Damons, relifted the Magicians of God, c. 13. 8. and 2 Tim. 2. 8.

He fubjoins, that ev'n Natural Magick is not to be practis'd by any Chriftian, becaufe all Magick is wrought by a Spirit, and we ought not to feek a Conversation with Spirits, and for that Satan mixes himfelf with the Natural Spirits. And whereas fome allow the practife of Magick with the Angels of God, he fays, That no Man ought to have to do with Angels without God's Command. As d with this Abstract of that Letter, I conclude this Chapter of Magick.

CHAP. XI.

What may be fuggested from Reason, concerning the Existence of Spirits, and their Operations.

Ircher, in Epist. Parcenet. prefixt to his Obeliscus Pamphilius, writes thus : We know a threefold Demonstration has been always us'd by the unanimous Confent of Philosophers in the Acquisition of Science; Mathematical, Physical, and Moral. Mathematical Demonstration, as it inquires into the affects and Properties of Quantity, by Principles known by the Light of Nature, of Eternal Truth, and void of all deceit, so it begets a certain, and properly called Science, all fcruple of doubt being remov'd. Physical Demonftration, as it comes by Experiments of things, to the Secret knowledge of Caufes, it begets indeed Science, but by reafon of the Experiment, which for the most part is exposed to the falfe Representations of the Senfes, it is not void of Deception, nor does arrive at the certitude of the former; yet according to Aristotle, it Triumphs with the Title of true Science. Moral Demonstration, as it depends on the Experience of Humane Actions, begets indeed Science, but fuch as the Nature of Moral things admits, and which is call'd Humane Faith, and for the most part, relies on the Authority of the Relater. For the like caufe the the Authority of the Revealer begets Divine Faith, more certain than all Science. Humane Authority is a certain imitation of this, on which we must relie, unless we will make void, and annihilate the Histories of all pass'd things; I speak not here of the Authority, and Histories of suspected Credit, but of those which have the clear Prescription of many Ages for their Authority. So far Kircher.

Now laying this before us, it is to be noted, That Chriftian Divines do not pretend to a Mathematical, or Phyfical Demonstration of the Existence of Spirits; for their Existence cannot be demonstrated from their Effence, or the effects afcrib'd to them, not from the first, because it's not from the Nature of Spirits, nor from that of any other Creature that they Exift; for God fo freely created all Beings, that he might have left them uncreated ; nor from their effects, because the concourse of God alone, or other Caufes might be conceived to fuffice for fuch effects; but Christian Divines build chiefly on Divine Revelation, which is fuperior to all Science, and on the conftant Tradition of all Christian Divines, from the first Ages of Christianity ; and all they pretend to, as Phyfiologers, in what they fay concerning Spirits, is, that there is nothing in it, which implies a Contradiction, or is inconfistent with Reason; and as there have been, and are many Phanomena in the World, which it has concern'd Philosophers to Account for, the Doctrine of the Existence of Spirits has been Hypothetically introduc'd into the World, and back'd by as great Men among the Gentiles, as the World has had; and tho' other Philosophers have set up other Hypothefis

fis for explaining those Phanomena; yet I think it would be a ftrange rashness in any Person owning the Law of Moles or Christ, to throw by an Hypothefis back'd by Divine Revelation, or rather introduc'd by the most Learned of the Gentiles, Confonant to it; and to adhere to any other Hypothesis, excogitated meerly by the Wit of Man; and which, in truth, does not fo fairly account for Phanomina as the other does; or fhamefully to deny Facts, which are to be accounted for; as I know not with what unbounded Confidence, fome ev'n among Christians have done; whereas Vanini, who died a Martyr to Atheifm, and Pomponatime, who has been look'd upon by fome to have been of the fame Opinion, and many others, freely own'd the Facts, which they found uncontestably manifested to them by Experience and Teftimonies, though they did not think fit to explain them by the Agency of Spirits, but as free Naturalists, fet up other Hypothefis as they thought good for explaining them. So Alchindus, in his Works, referred to Nature, all things that are ascribed to Angels and Devils, as fince him Petrus Aponus, and Pomponatius have done, imagining that all Sublunary things were wholly fubject to, and depending on Celeftials; and that they received all Vertues and Properties the one from the other, and each particular from the whole together, by the means of certain Corporeal Rays, which pass from the least even to the greateft, and which they fuppofed the caufe of all that is done in Nature. As Marcus Marci, of late referred all to Ideas; so Avicenna to Intelligences, Galen to the Temperament; and thefe, with many other Philosophers, have exerted erted all their force to take off the Admiration of many extraordinary Effects, by fetting forth the most likely Caufes of them they could imagine; but how far a Man may have Reason to acquiesce in any of those Hypothess, will ftill be the Question.

For the Rationality of the Hypothesis of L. de der Spirits, Plutarch introduces Cleombrotus, thus felt, Orac. delivering himfelf : As those fay very well, who hold that Plato having invented this Element, whence Qualities fpring and are ingendred, which is fometimes called the firft Matter, and fometimes Nature, has freed the Philosophers from many Difficulties; fo it feems to me, that those who have introduc'd the Nature of Damons, betwixt that of the Gods and Men, have refolv'd more Doubts and Difficulties, and greater; having found the tye, which conjoins and holds together as it were, our Society and Communication with them; be it that this Opinion came from the Ancient Magi and Zoroaster, or from Thracia and Orphens, or from Agypt, or from Phrygia, as we Conjecture, confidering the Sacrifices that are made in those Countries.

Father le Brun, in his Book quoted before by me, c. 3. after having fet forth many odd Difcoveries of hidden things, made by the Virgula divinatoria, in his fecond Part, c. 6. examines the Caufes of its turning in order to Difcoveries, and having (as I conceive) validly refuted all Natural Caufes which others have pretended to affign for it, he concludes it is done by the Agency of evil Spirits; the Existence of which he proves as follows.

If there are Effects that cannot be produc'd by Bodies, there must necessarily be in the World other Beings than Bodies; and if among these prodigious Effects, there are some that do not carry Men to God, and make them fall into Error and Illusion, it's a farther invincible Argument that we must acknowlegde other Beings than the Being absolutely perfect and Bodies. So those extraordinary Effects which can neither be called in doubt, nor be Attributed to God, or to Bodies, are an Incontestable proof that we must admit created Spirits capable of amufing Men, and feducing them by Deceits. Though therefore the Scriptures had not clearly taught us the Existence of Spirits feperated from Bodies, I dare fay, that extraordinary Effects, fuch as the discovery of many hidden things by the turning of the Virgula Divinatoria, would give a ftrong proof that there are wicked Spirits. But their Existence is clear enough in the Scriptures; and certainly its the beft eftablish'd of all the Articles of our Faith, the least contested, and the most universally disperse'd through the World. Maimonides, in his More Nevochan proves with much Learning and Judgment, that before Moles, the Sabeans, orgyptians and Chaldains, knew the good and evil Genii; all the Ancient Poets and Philosophers own'd this Dogma, and we find in the Hiftory of the Conversion of People, that it has been always found establish'd among the most remote Nations, nor can it be faid (as fome may pretend' that this is a proof of the flupidness of fome Nations ; for the most Polite People differ not in this, from those they call Barbarians; and we may fee, in the Works of Porphyrissa time, Jamblichus, and Clemens Alexandrinus, how much the Doctrine of the Greeks, was like to that of the syptimes, concerning the Existence of good and evil Spirits.

The new converted Christians of the Primitive Times, who, being difabus'd of the Follies of Paganism, were watchful on the pra-Aice of the Gentiles to discover their Impostures, own'd that fometimes Prodigies were wrought by the Damons. Minutius Falix, who liv'd in the fecond Century, has very well fet forth what the Senfe of the Christians of those Times was, concerning the Nature, and Operations of those Dæmons, whom the Gentiles Worship'd. Tertulian; and Origen, and almost all the Writers of the Three first Centuries have delivered the fame, with all the Affurance that Truth may give : And what thefe great Men have faid, is a very good Anfwer to what is fome imes Objected, that Chrift deftroyed the Kingdom of Satan, and that the Prince of this World is now judg'd, Joh. 16. 11. St. Peter, St. P. ul, and St. John, Men well in-ftructed in the Words of Chrift, and in the Senfe that ought to be giv'n them, tell us, that the Devil, as a roaring Lyon, goes about to deceive us, that we ought to have recourse to Prayer, and keep us firm in Faith, to preferve us from his Artifices, and the fnares he lays for us. The Devil therefore is not out of the World, fo that he Acts no longer, but is driven from a great many Places where he had Rule. It's a Truth of our Faith, that God has left fome Power to Devils, and he permits them, on many occasions, to put it in Execution. The frequent Poffeffions in the first Ages of the Church are authentick Teftimonies monies of it, and the beft averred Hiftories fince Chrift: And a thoufand Superfitious Pra-Aices, producing extraordinary Effects, furnish us with incontestable Proofs of the Operation of Damons; and is there any Ecclefiaftical Writer, who has not either prov'd or fuppos'd this Truth? The Learned Gerson tells us, what we ought to believe in this Cafe, and whence it is that this Trnth makes fo little Impreffion on the Spirits of many Perfons, faying, Certainly its an Impiety and an Error, directly contrary to the Scriptures, to deny, that Dæmons are Authors of many furprizing Facts; and those that look upon all that is faid of it, as a Fable, and make a Mock of Divines, for afcribing Effects to Damons, deferve a fevere Correction. Sometimes even the Learned fall into this Error, becaufe they let their Faith be weaken'd, and their Natural Light be darken'd. Their Souls being all poffefs'd with fenfible things, refer all to Bodies, and cannot raife themfelves to Spirits detached from Matter. It's what Plato has faid, that nothing fo much hinders the finding of Truth, as to refer all things to what the Senfes prefent us with. Cicero, St. Auftin, Albertus Magnus, Guliel. Parifiensis, and, above all, Experience have taught us the fame, we may fee a Proof of it in the Sadduces and Epicureans, who admitting nothing but what is Corporeal, find themfelves among those Sensless Persons, of whom Solomon speaks in Ecclesistes, and the Book of Wildom, who have push'd their Folly so far, that they cannot own they have a Soul, and effects that cannot be produc'd but by Spirits. I would there were no more Persons of that Mind; but we shall always find fome, who will tell us in cold Blood, that they cannot believe Prodigies, nor Miracles, becaufe they have feen nothing of extraordinary. Difpute not with fuch Perfons; when a Man will be incredulous, he will be fo in the midft of Prodigies and Miracles; there are always found People tempered like Celler and Lucian, who will have all things to be Fable, Illufion, and Impofture. Many Perfons measure all things by what they ordinarily fee, and hold all for falfe, that furpass the bounds of Nature. They believe Facts while they appear Natural; convince them that they cannot fo be, and you shall fee them prefently conclude them Impostors.

It's manifeft, that we conceive but two forts of Beings, Spirits and Bodies, and that fince we can reafon but according to our Ideas, we ought to afcribe to Spirits what cannot be produc'd by Bodies. So far the Abstract from Father Le Brun.

The Author of the Republick of Learning, in the Month of August, An. 1686, has given us a rough Draught for writing a good Tract of Witcherast, which he looks upon as a Desideratum; where, among other things, he writes thus: Since this Age is the true time of Systems, one should be contrived concerning the Commerce, that may be betwixt Daemons and Men.

On this Paffage Father Le Brun writes thus : 1b. part 3. Doubtlefs here the Author complies with the c. 14. Language of a great many Perfons, who, for want of Attention and Light, would have us put all Religion in Syftems. Whatever regard I ought to have for many of thefe Perfons, I must not be afraid to fay, that there is no Syftem to be made of those Truths, which we ought to learn diffinctly by Faith; becaufe we must must advance nothing here, but what we receive from the Oracle. We must make Softems to explain the effects of the Lord-stone, the ebbing and flowing of the Sea, the motion of the Planets; for that the Caufe of these Effects is not evidently fignified to us, and many may be conceiv'd by us; and to determine us, we have need of a great number of Observations, which, by an exact Induction, may lead us to a Caufe that may fatisfie all the Phanomena. It's not the fame in the Truths of Religion, we come not at them by groaping; and it were to be wish'd Men spake not of them but after a decisive and infallible Authority. It's thus we fhould fpeak of the Power of Damons, and of the Commerce they have with Men. It's of Faith that they have Power, and that they attack Men, and try to feduce them divers ways: We find it in Fob, in Tobit, and in a thousand other places of Scripture and Tradition. It's certain alfo, that the Power they have depends not of us, that they have it over the Juft, fince they may tempt them as they did Christ: Tho' they have it not ordinarily, but over those that want Faith, or fear not to partake of their Works; and that to thefe laft particularly the diforder'd Intelligences try to make exactly fucceed, what they wish; Infpiring them to have recourfe to certain Practifes, by which those feducing Spirits enter in Commerce with Men. All this is difcover'd without System. So far Le Brun.

Gregory fetting forth the Orthodox Opinion concerning Spirits, fays, That all things in this visible World are govern'd by an invisible Being; but Aristosle, tho' he affign'd spiritual Subftances

tances to the Celeftial Bodies, whole number be conceiv'd according to the number of the pheres mov'd; yet he tells us of none that prefide over Inferior Bodies, unlefs, haply, Human Souls: And this becaufe he thought of no Operations, in reference to inferior hings, but natural, for which the Motion of he Celeftial Bodies fuffic'd.

But the Affertors of Christian Truth, who offirm many things to be done here which exceed the Power of Nature, have thought it neceffary that Angels should preside immediately over us. Avicenna was of Opinion, that only one Immaterial Substance presided over all Inferior Bodies, which he call'd the Intellectus Agens : But the Holy Doctors not disagreeing with the Platonicks, have taught, that distinct Spiritual Substances presided over differing Corporeal Things. So far Greg.

Having fet forth the Opinion of Chriftians, concerning Spirits, eftablifh'd, as well by Reafon, as by Authority, both Divine and Humane, I fhall now confider the Opinions of the Perapateticks, Epicureans, and Sadduces, denying the exiftence of Spirits; and fhall here fet down the notorious Principles they generally go upon, leaving those that please to follow them, and to partake of the Confequents of them.

First, Aristotle held, That God is not the Creator of the World, but that it was from Eternity, and will fo continue, Phys. 8. & Met. 12. where Aquinas, lect. 2. fays, That he held this Opinion firmly, and not problematically, tho' in his Topicks he fays, it was a Problem among the ancient Philosophers.

2. That God does not take care of Inferior Things; nay, That he would become Vile if he minded them. Met. 12. Text. 2.

3. That God is a neceffary, and no free Agent, as being the Soul of the first Sphere, which he cannot but move; and, that he cannot move a Stone with us. Phy. 8. O Met. 12.

4. That Heaven and Hell are the Fables of Legislators. Met. 2. & in 12.

5. That the particular Souls of Men die with the Body; and, That there is only one Immortal Soul, which is not the Form of the Body, but affifting to all Bodies.

6. That there are no Dæmons nor Angels, but the Movers of the Spheres, who are in Blifs by that motion, and cannot but move them. Met. 12. & l. de Mundo.

7. That God does not fend Dreams, because he would fend them to the Wise, and not to Idiots, as it commonly happens. L. de Insomm.

8. That Prophets are not Infpir'd by a Divine Afflatus, but grow Mad through Melancholy, and Prophecy in their Madnefs. In Problem, Sect. 20.

These Dogma's, with others of his, were cenfur'd by the Councils and Fathers; and if admitted, all Religion and Government must fall: And Aristotle, for holding them, was forc'd to fly from Athens, otherwise he had been question'd by the Court of the Areopagites.

Secondly, The Epicurean Philosophy contains these Errata in Physicks.

334

2. It

2. It feigns all things to arife from a cafual concourse of Atoms.

3. It feigns the Sun and Stars to be Vapours kindled and burning.

4. It affirms the Souls of Men to die with the Body.

Thirdly, The Sadduces, 1. Deny the Refurrection.

2. They reject all Tradition of the Fathers; and fome of them, all the Prophets, but Mofes. 3. They believe the Souls of Men to be Mortal, and to die with the Body. The Arabian Herefy, which was trump'd up, about 231 Years after Chritt, (as it's obferv'd by the Learned Wigandus, in his Tr & de Homine) having fome Alliance with this Opinion of the Sadduces, it afferting the Souls of Men to die with the Body, tho' it allows it to be reftor'd with the Body at the Refurrection. Which Dogma has been new vampt of late by fome of our Authors. Whereas Christ plainly fays, Matth. 10. 28. They cannot kill the Soul.

4. They deny God's Providence, and afcribe all things to Man's Free-Will.

5. They deny Angels and Spirits.

Now, the Sadduces being a Sect among the Jews, and owning, at leaft, the Books of Moses, and finding mention there made of Angels and Spirits, they fay that by the word Spirit in the Scriptures we are not to undertand any substantial Being, but either certain Qualities, Motions, or Inspirations in Men, or elfe certain Divine Phantasms, or Appearunces created by God to serve some present becassions, which ceass to be as soon as they listappear.

And

And indeed, as Mr. Lawrence observes, in his Discourse of Angels, c. 1. set. 2. the word Spirit is fometimes us'd in these Senses in the Scriptures; because Spirits being very active Natures, working, tho' powerfully, yet infenfibly, therefore such Impressions, Qualities and Affections in Men, as powerfully and fecretly move them, are call'd Spirits. Again, Because Spirits are such pure Substances as cannot be perceiv'd by our Senses, therefore meer Phantas and Appearances are fometimes call'd Spirits. But when it's faid, John 4. 24. that God is a Spirit, &c. Is God only a Quality or meer Phantas ? Is He not a proper Spirit, or a spiritual Substance?

The Sodduces Notion of Spirits, feems to refemble that which Monfieur Charas has of the Venom of Vipers: He thinks no Man can affign any part in a Viper where there is real Venom; and fays, the Venom has nothing material in it, that it's a pure effect of the Imagination of the Viper, which forms to it felf an Idea of Vengeance, which he produces but in the Inftant of his Anger; and that its annihilated as foon as he ceafes to be irritated: For confirming which he gives us this Experiment, that upon fwallowing the Blood of a Viper, or pouring it on a Wound, no ill accident follows, which a Man would think it would, if Venom were really included in it.

Having laid down the general Principles of thefe Philosophers, I shall now particularly confider their Ground for rejecting Spirits, and their Operations.

These Philosophers, especially the two later, who have many adherents even to this Day, chiefly chiefly reject Spirits, because they fay, they can have no Notion of fuch a thing as a Spiritual Substance. Now, as to this, I think our late Mr. Lock, in his Elaborate Effay an Humane Understanding, has fairly made our, that L. 2. c. 29. Men have as clear a Notion of a Spiritual Substance, as they have of any Corporeal Subftance, Matter, or Body; and that there is as much Reafon for admitting the Existence of the one, as of the other; fo that if they admit the latter, it is but Humour in them to deny the former.He reasons thus: If a Man will examine himfelf, concerning his Notion of pure Subftance, in general, he will find he has no other Idea of it, but only a supposition of he knows not what support of fuch Qualities, which are capable of producing fimple Ideas in us, which Qualities are commonly called Accidents; thus, if we talk, or think of any particular fort of Corporeal Substance, as Horfe, Stone, &c. though the Idea we have of either of them, be but the Complication, or Collection of those several simple Ideas, or fenfible Qualities, which we use to find united in the thing call'd Horfe, or Stone; yet because we cannot conceive how they should fubfift alone, nor one in another, we suppose them to Exift in, and fupported by some common fubject; which support we denote by the name of Substance, though it be certain we have no clear, or diffinct Idea of that thing we suppose a support.

The fame happens concerning the Operations of our Mind, viz. thinking, reafoning, fearing, &c. which we concluding not to fubfift of themfelves, and not apprehending how they can belong to Body, we are apt to Z think think these the Actions of some Substance, which we call Spirit : Whereby its evident, that having no other Notion of Matter, but fomething wherein those many fensible Qualities, which affect our Senfes do fubfift ; by fuppoling a Substance wherein thinking, knowing, doubting, and a Power of moving, Oc. do fubfift, we have as clear a Notion of the Nature, or Substance of Spirit, as we have of Body; the one being fuppos'd to be (without knowing what is the Substratum to those simple Ideas, which we have from without ; and the other fuppos'd (with a like ignorance of what it is) to be the Substratum, of those Operations which we Experiment in our felves within; 'tis plain then, that the Idea of Corporeal Substance in Matter, is as remote from our Conceptions and Apprehenfions as that of Spiritual Substance; and therefore from our not having any Notion of the Substance of Spirit, we can no more conclude its Nonexistence, than we can for the fame reason deny the Existence of Body ; it being as Rational to affirm, there is no Body, because we cannot know its Effence, as its called, or have the Idea of the Substance of Matter, as to fay, there is no Spirit, becaufe we know not its Effence, or have no Idea of a Spiritual Substance.

Mr. Lock alfo comparing our Idea of Spirit with our Idea of Body, thinks there may feem rather lefs Obfcurity in the former, than in the latter. Our Idea of Body he takes to be an extended folid Subftance, capable of communicating Motion by Impulfe; and our Idea of Soul is a Subftance that thinks, and has a Power of exciting Motion in Body, by Will, or Thought. Now fome, perhaps will fay, they they cannot comprehend a thinking thing, which perhaps is true; but he fays, if they confider it well, they can no more comprehend an extended thing; and if they fay, they know not what its thinks in them, they mean, they know not what the Subflance is of that thinking thing; no more, fays he, do they know what the Subflance is of that folid thing; and if they fay, they know not how they think, he fays, neither do they know how they are extended, how the folid Parts of Body are United, or Cohere to make Extension, \mathcal{T}_c .

The Learned Monfieur Le Clerc, who generally confiders how far Humane Reafon can bear, in judging of Points laid before it, argues confonantly to what is before deliver'd by Mr. Lock, in his Coronis, added at the end of the Fourth Volume of his Philosophical Works, in the Third Edition of them. Where he writes as follows.

When we contemplate the Corporeal Nature, we can fee nothing in it but Extension, Divisibility, Solidity, Mobility, and various Determinations of Quantity, or Figures; which being fo, it were a rash thing, and contrary to the Laws of right reasoning, to affirm other things of Bodies; and confequently from meer Body, nothing can be deduc'd by us, which is not joyn'd in a neceffary connection with the faid Properties : Therefore those who have thought the Properties of perceiving by Senfe, of Understanding, Willing, Imagining, Remembring, and others the like, which have no Affimity with Corporeal things, to have rifen from the Body, have greatly tranfgrefs'd in the Method of right Reafoning, and Philosophizing, which has been done by Za Epicurus, Epicurus, and those who have thought as he did, having affirm'd our Minds to be compos'd of Corporeal Atoms; but whence shall we say, they have had their rife? Truly, they do not owe their rife to Matter, which is wholly deftitute of Sense and Thought; nor are they spontaneously forung up of nothing, it being an Ontological Maxim of most evident Truth, that nothing forings from nothing.

Chap. 1.

Therefore the most Ancient Physiologers, as the very Learned Dr. Cudworth has fhewn in his Intellectual System of the World, when they faw nothing in Matter, befide what we have faid, and had confider'd the Maxim alledged ; they pass'd from the Confideration of Bodies, to the Contemplation of a much more excellent Nature, by which they gathered Humane Minds were created, and all other Intelligent Natures, therefore the Confideration of the Corporeal Nature, joyned with the knowledge of the Properties of our Mind, lead Men the strait way to two Tenents of the greatest Moment, viz. the Existence of a Supream Deity. and the Creation of Man's Soul, by God, whence alfo is deduced its Immortality, to which we may add, that though the Authority of Divine Revelation be worthy of Credit by it felf, yet it is not a little confirm'd in our Minds, when we fee the Lights of Revelation and right Reafon friendly confpire betwixt themfelves, for they are two Sifters fall'n from Heav'n together, wherefore their Agree-ment must necessarily be very great, as being Sprung from one Father, but we do not apprehend their Agreement, at first fight, nor can understand it without an intent Meditation. If right Reafon deny'd what right Revelation velation affirms, and we thought they difagreed we fhould ftand doubtful betwixt them, nor fhould we well fatisfie our felves which we ought to believe; but they agreeing, who can with-hold his Faith from them, but he that would be accounted not only to have little Religion, but likewife wholly defitute of Reafon? Wherefore there is no caufe for those that give not Credit to Revelation to flatter themfelves, as though they were Wifer than the vulgar, when at the fame time they naturally exclude themfelves from the Number of Men that use Reafon. See there also what be further smartly argues for the Immortality of the Soul.

The fame Monfieur le Clerc, in his Pneumatologia, has delivered feveral things concerning Spirits and their Operations, of which I have extracted the few following Heads, as thinking them of use for directing our Judgments in Confiderations of that Nature.

1. Those who affirm, or deny that Spirits can be without any Corporeal property, go farther than they ought; for we cannot gather from the Nature of Spirits, which is unknown to us, whether they are without all Corporeal proprety, or have a fubtle Body. Self. 2. c. 1.

2. As for Apparitions of Spirits, he fays, we cannot by any Reafon, fhew from the Nature of the thing it felf, that it is not poffible for Spirits to be joyn'd with a fubtle Body; nor is it likely that fo many Nations, and fo remote in Places and Opinions agreed in a Lye, as to all they have faid concerning Apparitions of Spirits. Its much more likely, that the ground of the Lyes invented about this Matter, was fome true Apparition, to Z_{2} which which, as it's ufual, a World of other Relations of the like kind have been feign'd. Ibid.

3. We are fo far from determining what is the Nature of an Angels Intellection, that we do not comprehend ev'n the Nature of our own Intellection. Sett. 2. c. 2.

4. In what the Gentiles fay of Dæmons, and the Hebrews of Angels, there is nothing contrary to any certain Knowledge we have; therefore it may be they fay true, if the thing be confider'd in it felf. Sect. 2. c. 3.

5. As it cannot be doubted, but there are many Lyes in what is related concerning ftrange Performances by Witches, upon a contract with Dæmons, fo it would be rashness to Charge them all of Falfhood, efpecially, fince the Scriptures relate fome things like them ; and truly the thing it felf is not fo known to us, that we may gather from the Nature of Damons, which may not confift at leaft with many things that are related of them; if any Man, becaufe both good and evil Angels are believed to be thinking Substances, should contend that they have no Power on Bodies, because naked thought has no Power on Bodies, before this were granted him, he ought to fhew, and that evidently, First, That there is nothing in Angels befide Thought ; Secondly, That there is no tye inftituted by God betwixt their Wills, and some Changes of Bodies; for if either of these may be admitted without abfurdity, they may also be thought able to Act on Bodies without absurdity. Sect. 2. c. 4.

6. Some fay no true Miracles, but Cheats are perform'd by Dæmons; but to Understand what this means, we must define the Words that are here us'd; a Portent, a Miracle, or a Prodigy are here the fame things, and they denote an Effect. First, Above Humane Power. Secondly, Beside the constant Course of Nature. Thirdly, That it's done at Mans Pleasure, or at the Moment he will. Now, who can make out by certain Arguments, that nothing can be done by evil Demons above Humane Power, beside the usual Course of Nature, at the Moment the Magician pleases, fince the bounds of Angelical Power are unknown, we can here affert nothing but from Experience. Thid.

7. Those that deny some wonderful Facts, for the most part contend they are Præstigia; but befide that, they affirm what they know not; this word may be taken in a twofold Sense; Prastigia by some are so understood, as tho' Damons prefent to the Senfes, a thing that is not, as if it were; as that an Houfe, for Inftance, may feem to be there where there is . none; but to do this, either they move the Brain of Spectators, as its wont to be moved when an Houfe is before them; or they prefent a certain fort of an Appearance of an Houfe in the Air, which ftrikes the Eyes of Spectators; but choose either of these, it must be shewn how this is no Miracle, for both are done above Humane Power, and befide the Order of Nature, and at the time the Magician pleases. Ibid.

8. Those Opinions, or Diseases of the Brain which Witches have, who think they go to Feasts and Dancings, upon their talking of it to others that are of a timorous Disposition, and weak Brains, bring others into the fame Fits of Fury, and like a contagion spread far and near, infecting many Heads. Though 44

it's obfervable that those Difeases are more frequent among Inhabitants of Mountains and Solitary places, than among those that live in Cities, or among a Concourse of People. Whence also it appears, that the Terror of vast Solitudes, which is apt to move the Brain, contributes much to this Madness; we must add to this, that Persons abounding with Melancholy, are more capable of this Madness; and on the contrary, those are freest from it, who are of a merry Disposition; which raises my Suspicion, that all these Visions are nought but the Sports of a timerous and melancholy Brain.

If it shall seem strange, that so many Men should be impos'd on by their fear and temper of Body, all Admiration may be taken away by Instances of a greater fury; many Difeafes fo trouble the Brain, that those that labour under them, feem to themfelves to fee things that are no where ; that kind of Difease if it be join'd with a vehement Motion of the Blood. and lasts long, it at length confumes the Difeas'd; and if the Motion of the Blood abates, the Difease is leffen'd, and the Difeas'd returns to a found Mind; but if the Difeafe does not fo vehemently affect the Blood, but that it may continue a long time, without deftroying the Difeas'd, or a leffening of his ftrength, ftrange things are prefented to his Mind for many Years, as it's manifest in many Inftances. Nor are there only those who think they fee without themfelves things that are no where; but alfo fuch as obstinately affert themfelves to be Wolves, or I know not what Wild Beafts. Whoever weighs thefe things will not wonder if Opinions of Witches are accounted melancholy Difeafes. Yet

Yet tho' these things may be so, I will not affirm that those things which Witches relate, have never happen'd; but for one thing that has truly happen'd, I believe there have been a thousand Dreams of a deluded Mind. So far Monsheur le Clerc. Sect. 2. c. 5.

But, to return a little to the Epicureans and Sadduces, perhaps they may defire of me a clear Definition of a Spirit, or fuch an one as they would like. Now, I think, Monfieur le Clerc, has well anfwered this, in his Preface to his Pneumatologia, writing thus: We call all things endow'd with an Underftanding and a Will, Spirits; but as we confider them as Spiritual Subftances, he fays, he has fhewn in Pare 1, his Logick, that the inward Nature of any c. 3 Subftances whatfoever, as well as that of Spirits is unknown to us, wherefore Men ought not to expect from us an abfolutely compleat Defeription of Spirits.

But fince thefe Gentlemen are for having all things made out very plainly to them, let us examine their Phyfical Principles, Democritus and Epicurus would have all Natural Effects whatfoever, to proceed from a Conflux of Attoms varioufly Figur'd, fo that in every Body there are Particles that are round, acuminated, fquare, cylindrical, ftriated, and of other Configurations, and that according to the various locking together of them, a fubject is of this, or another Figure, Operation, or Efficacy.

Now, as our Learned Dr. Willis has obfer-L.de Ferme ved, this Epicurean Opinion, rather fuppofes c. 1. than demonstrates their Principles, and teaches of what fort of Figure those Elements of Bodies are, not what they are, and also induces induces Motions very fubrle, and remote from our Senfes, and which do not fatisfie the Phanomena of Nature, when we descend to Particulars; and thinks it concerns them to fhew that those Conceptions of theirs are Real; he being too fhort fighted to difcern them fo.

Again, As for Aristotle's reasoning against the Existence of Spirits, in his Book De Mundo (if it be his) viz. that fince God can do all things of himfelf, he does not ftand in need of Ministring Angels and Damons, a multitude of Servants shewing the weakness of a Prince. But if this Argument would hold good, Aristotle should not suppose Intelligences moving the Celeftial Spheres, for God fuffices to move all without ministring Spirits, nor would there be need of a Sun in the World, for God can enlighten all things by himfelf, and fo all Second Caufes were to be taken away. Therefore there are Angels in the World for the Majesty of God, not for that he wants them; and for Order, not for his Omnipotency: and who told Aristotle there were Intelligences that moved the Celeftial Spheres ? Is not this Hypothesis as precarious, as any Man may pretend that of Spirits to be? And I believe there are few Philosophers at present, who agree with Aristotle in that Opinion. And indeed, I think Kircher in the right, where he tells us, it's certain, Aristotle took his Intelligences from the Hebrews, who beholding the Multiform face of the World, and Pag. 292, the difcording concord of things, believed it to be govern'd by certain prefiding Angels; and hence also the Fiction of the Nine Mules took its rife.

Qbel. Pamph.

Møreover,

Moreover, when Aristotle lays down his Principles of Natural Things, he tells us, they are Matter, Form, and Privation, unintelligible Terms; and when he comes to define his Matter, he tells us, it is what is neither quid, nor quantum, nor quale, nor aliquid eorum quibus ens determinatur, a notable clear Notion of Matter, obscurum per obscurius, and I think no Man will pretend the notion we have of Spirits, to be more obscure than this.

In fhort, those that will take upon them to rectify our notions of things, ought to bring us notions of things more clear than what we have, especially where Religion is concern'd; as in this case it is, and Young Wits, who are well opinioned of their Parts, may do well to try here, what they can fuggess to us beyond what is here argued, and I am apt to think whatever conceit they may have of themselves, they will not be found so overdoing in Argument, but they will still find a valid reply ready for them.

CHAP. XII.

Confiderations on Dr. Bekker's Books against Spirits, with a Conclusion to this Book.

FRommannus in his Tract of Fascination, tells L. 3. part us, that Voetims, above all others, has made 1. c. 2. out by firm Reasons, that there is such a thing as Diabolical and Magical Fascination, and this he undertook, as he fays, because upon reading ing Mr. Scor's Book (in which he has openly deny'd, and profeffedly oppugn'd the Crime of Magick, and afcribes all its wonderful effects, either to Melancholy, or other natural Difeafes, or to the Art, Industry and Agility of Men, imposing on us by their Præstigia, or to the foolish Imaginations of the faid Magicians, or to their vain Fables and Fictions) after it was Translated into Low Dutch, not a few, from that time, both Learned and Unlearned began to Scepticize and turn Libertines concerning Magick.

From this Source, I conceive, among other Works, the Four Volumes of the late Dr. Bekker, Entituled, Le monde enchanté, that is, the World Bewitched (of which the First Volume is Translated into English) have flown: he generally therein agreeing with Mr. Scot, and rejecting all Magical Incantations.

Indeed the great Principle Dr. Bekker goes upon, is, That there were Devils once in the World, who corrupted Humane Nature, but fince that time, God Almighty put them in Chains, fo that they have never made any Figure in the World fince, by acting any way againft Mankind, or otherwife.

As I perused Dr. Bekker's faid Volumes in French, I found fome Persons had writ against him, and thereupon I sent to Holland for all that was Writ against him, and any Reply's he had made; but could get only one small Volume writ by Monsseur Binet, in French, Entit'led, A general Idea of the Pagan Divinity, Serving for a resultation of Monsseur Bekkers System, concerning the Existence and Operations of Damons. Printed at Amsterdam, An. 1698. This Book is composed of Six Letters, writ by Mr.

STAR DE

Mr. Binet to a Friend, and I fhall here give you an Abstract, of what I find most material in them, in reference to Dr. Bekker's System. In his first Letter he tells us, He finds in Mr. Bekker's Works, much Zeal and Confidence in advancing Novelties, but no proofs to Maintain them, and unless you fuffer your felf to be furprized with a certain Air of Triumph, wherewith he animates his Expressions, you will run a risque of remaining still Inchanted, especially if you deny certain Principles, which he has laid down without proof, all the Work will fall of it felf.

He observes, that where Mr, Bekker speaks of Spirits, all things seem to him perplext with difficulties, you shall scarce find a passage in the Scripture that speaks of them, all is Myfterious, Allegorical. The proper Names of Angels, Devils, Dæmons, &c. are but Men fent, Calumniators, Evil Thoughts, or, at most mere Symbols to give us some Metaphorical Idea of the Majesty of God.

He next cites the Paffage following from Mr. Bekker's Preface to his first Vollume.

It's now look'd on as a piece of Piety for a Man truly to Fear God, and alfo the Devil: if we do not this, a Man paffes for an Atheift, that is, for a Man who believes no God; becaufe he cannot believe there are two, one Good, and another Evil; but I believe, fays he, we may with reafon call those Men *Di*theifts; or fuch as believe two Gods. On this Paffage Mr. Binet writes as follows.

This Paffage extreamly reflecting on our Belief, I have rendered it word for word from the Text, becaufe the Translator has corrupted it, by his usual foftnings. This Accufation Acculation which Mr. Bekker charges us with. of making the Devil a God Almighty, ftrikes an Horror; mean while it's the foundation on which he builds his whole Work, it's the Idol he will pull down, it's in which the force of his Proofs confifts, and you shall scarce read a Chapter in him, but you will find this Imputation. But whoever believ'd amongst us. that the Devil, properly speaking, is the abfolute Author of all the Works, they fay, we ascribe to him? What Divine has ever confider'd him as a First and Independent Cause ? If we afcribe much Power to the Devil, it's manifest we speak with the Scriptures, and if there be any thing which does not agree with the Author's Conceptions, we use but the Expreffions which the Holy Ghost has Confecrated; and thus all Mr. Bekker's Objections Addrefs themfelves to God himfelf, who has prefcribed us a way of expressing our felves in this respect.

Again, he writes beneath. You pretend to be well grounded in maintaining that we unjuftly afcribe to the Devil, the Works that are afcribed to him, becaufe he is but an Infrument, who borrows from God all his Actions, and I think we have as much reafon to fay that we deceive our felves, in afcribing to Man all his operations, fince of himfelf he can do nothing; therefore it will no longer be Man that Moves himfelf, Speaks, Eats, Drinks, but God himfelf, for the Devil and Man are in this cafe, in reference to God, one and the fame thing, in an equal Impotence, and an entire Dependency.

You may object that this comparison of the Devil with Man is not Juft : the business is to know know, if the one be the Author of those high and fublime Operations that are afcribed to him; whereas, we confider in the other but actions proper and natural to him; but this difference tho' real betwixt the two Creatures, is but a meer Illusion, in reference to God, in which properly confifts the ftate of the Queftion. We confider the Devil always as an Instrument in the hand of God, as a Rod of Fury, which strikes but when God lets it fall on those he will Visit. To explain this farther, I ask what vertue had Moles or Aaron and his Rod to do fo many Miracles? to Inflict fo many Plagues on Pharoah and his People? the simple Rod in the hand of a Man could not produce fo many Miracles of it felf, but one was the Minister, the other the Visible Sign which God accompanied with a Divine Efficacy. And what would you fay of a Man that would impute it to us to believe, that Moses, Aaron and his Rod were the fole cause of all these Miracles; if he inlarged himself in writing great Volumes, and making large Reflections, for giving colour to this Abfurdity ? and in the mean time the Scripture fays, Ex. 8. 5. That Aaron having ftretcht forth his Hand with his Rod, on the Rivers, Brooks, and Ponds, caufed Frogs to Iffue from them to cover the Land of Agypt. Therefore when we conceive the Devil as a Rod of Fury, without any Vertue of his own, it is but by relation to God, the first cause who precedes, determines, accompanies, bends the Creature, how excellent soever it may be. But it's manifest if you compare the Devil with Man, you will find more excellency in his Nature, light in his Knowledge, penetration in his Sight, faci-

facility and power in his Operations, his natural Knowledge is more extended, not only becaufe he beholds things with a more fimple view, but alfo by reafon of the experience of all Ages, which difcovers to him the connections, which makes him penetrate the bottom of Nature; whole Springs, Caufes and Effects he knows after a more perfect manner than the greatest Philosopher: and it's this great Knowledge the Devil has of Nature. which teaches him how to move the various parts; whence it is that we, who know not thefe Springs, and the manner to make them act, are ftrangely ftruck at the fight of his operations, and that we look on as a Miracle. what is often but the operation of a Dæmon. produced by Caufes otherwife apply'd and moved, than according to the ordinary courfe of Nature; and thus as the Devil has much more Light, Penetration and Activity than Man, we must not doubt but his Power is much fuperiour to his. You fee therefore that the Author's odious Imputations vanish of themselves, and that our Doctrine is neither repugnant to Reason, nor Revelation, nor to the Idea of the Divine Perfections.

And I cannot comprehend how thefe Perfons will find opposition betwixt the Almighty Power of God, and the Ministry of the Devil, for by this Objection the Author fo often makes, he wholly overthrows his own Hypothes: He will have it, that the clear and diftinct Idea of the Divine Perfections exclude the operations of Daemons, that there is a contradiction in believing, that those Spirits oppose themselves to the Will of God: Now this Devil, this Satan, these Daemons, according to

you; are fome Calumniating Men, fome Adverfary, Humane Paffions, Irregular Motions of the Spirits, what you pleafe; but you cannot deny at leaft but thefe Men thus Characterized, are as many Enemics of God, and of his Golpel, Seducers, Perfecutors; give me leave to ask you then, whether it be not a thing much more Inconfiftent with the Idea of God's Perfections, to oppofe to himfelf weak Creatures, thefe Mortal Men, rather than the Devil, who is a Spirit difengaged from Matter, of a confummate experience.

And beneath. It's in vain Mr. Bekker imputes to us the fear of the Devil, no he is an Enemy overcome, the Seed of the Woman has bruifed his head; if he has any Power remaining, he derives it from God alone, he is in his Hand as a Rod of Fury to Chastife Men, and I fear him but as the Chastifements that God difplays by his Ministry are to be fear'd. You fee then that the Author Condemns himfelf, while having effablished for Principle that according to us, this abominable and Curs'd Creature does things more Miraculous than God himfelf has ever done. He adds, That fuppofing what is ufually afcrib'd every where to the Devil and his Angels, there cannot be convincing Proofs that Jefus is the Chrift, or that there is but one God : And I confefs, fays he, that if I do not poffefs the Reader with a clear Conception of this, in what I have Writ, it's in vain that I have Composed it. Now fupposing that the Devil acts but Minifterially, and dependently of God, suppofing that we attribute nothing to the Devil, properly speaking, of Miraculous, that can be put in opposition to, or parallel with the Aa Works Works of God, our Proof that $\mathcal{J}e/\mathcal{I}s$ is the Christ, and that there is but one God, are exclusive to all other, in regard that it being very far from there being any prerogative in this Curs'd Spirit, that can be confounded with those which God possibles in the highest degree of Eminency; he has deprived himself, by his revolt, of his most pure advantages, and has precipitated himself into an Aby's of Miseries, where the Idea of a fevere God makes him tremble.

In his Fifth Letter he writes thus."

Becaufe a truth has been corrupted by divers Fictions, must it prefently be rejected? there is no Principle, no natural Notion that can undergoe this examen, without being condemned : there is none but has been ill conseived and abused, then there will be none that can lawfully be admitted. Let us conclude therefore in general, that tho' Men have err'd infinite ways, concerning the Doctrine of Damons, that they have been conceived as Substances either Material, or Spiritual, or mixt, tho' fome have placed them in the Stars, others on the Earth, others in Hell; tho' there have been as many Sentiments, as Heads concerning their Offices; tho' they have been call'd Sylphes, Gnomes, Salamanders, all this will but prove at most that Men have ill conceived the nature and operations of Damons, but no way that we must entirely reject the ground of this Doctrine, by reason of the Fables Superflition has mixt with it.

And beneath. Were it true, as it's gathered from the expositions of Mr. Bekker, always opposite to himfelf, that there were in the Old Testament no Term which fignified properly, or or that could according to the Genius of the Hebrew Language and the use then, fignifie those Spirits which we call Satan, Devils, &c. the Fews would have taken these Terms in their proper fignification; fo that by this name Satanin, they had not understood Satans, Angels of Destruction, or of Death, but only Adverfaries, Men Enemies to God and his Truth; the Sadduces, for example, had had grounds to accuse St. Paul of Ignorance, for following the fentiments of the Pharifees, who took the affirmative, fince the Pharifees would have ill underftood all the Terms of the Old Testament, which had fignified Originally, and according to the then use, not Angels and Satans, but only Men either Good or Evil. If then the Jews were Imbibed in Substance with the common Doctrine of Devils; it's becaufe they took thefe Expressions either for these pure and favourable Intelligences, or for these impure and adversary Spirits; and if they understood them in this Senfe. being the fame which the Holy Ghoft has us'd in the Books of the Old Testament, they will have the fame Signification, and if they have the fame Signification ; they will confequently be these fame Spirits which operate here below; for there is not one Paffage where these Terms are found, but formally teaches us their Operations; fo that it's an uncontestable Principle, which Mr. Bekker did not foresee, that if the Old Testament teaches us the Existence of Devils, we ought necessarily to infer their Operations, because they there appear every where operating.

Again,

Again, If those Terms of the Old Teftament, which fome pretend we abufe, to eftablifh the Operations of Damons, fignifie properly but Men, Adverfaries, and if the Holy Tongue had never employ'd them to express these wicked Spirits, it's not to be doubted but the Fews would have thrown it in our Difh; you fhould have feen them exagerate the eafiness of the Christians to admit this Fable of the Operations of Dæmons, as being purely Pagan, and reproach them their groß Ignorance in Understanding the Hebrew Tongue. If they forbear it, and concur with us in defending the Opinion of the Operations of Demons, tho' they have added to them fome Fables, it's because, that befide they know the true Signification of thefe Terms, and that we do not make use of them to contend against them, there would be too much abfurdity to conteft the Senfe of them.

We find, according to Mr. Bekker, that what we believe of Dæmons, is in fubftance, but what the Babylonians taught the Jews. It's what this Gradation from the Babylonians to the Jews, from the Jews to the first Christians, from the first Christians to the Papists, from the Papists to the Protestants, evidently makes out; but I wonder God has fuffer'd his Church alway to be infected with this Error, and that neither the Prophets that were at Babylon, nor those that Instructed the Israelites, after their re-establishment, who thundred with so much vehemency against Errors, did not oppose themfelves to a Superstition fo gross and Impious.

Christ came into the World to Destroy the Works of the Devil; his Prophetick Office oblig'd oblig'd him to inftruct the Ignorant, and oppole Superfition; you fee him every where reprehending Vices, and thundering againft Errors without any bearing of them : But as for the Operations of Angels and Devils, we find not the leaft Cenfure, nor the leaft Correction; would he have fuffer'd thele wanderings of Mans Mind, without recalling it to its Duty? Thele Errors, fays Mr. Bekker, have undermined the Foundation of the Chriftian Religion; and would Jelus Chrift have left them in their full vigour; in using the fame Terms the Jews had corrupted, the Pagans had abus'd, and giving then the fame Ideas?

If the Jews had corrupted the Terms of Angels and Dæmons, in giving them a falle Signi-fication, would Jefus Christ instead of diffipating these Prejudices of the Fews, have confirm'd them in their Error, in expressing himfelf in the fame Terms, without having reftor'd them to their true Sense, and in fomenting Superstition, by fabulous Examples of Men, obsess'd and deliver'd from Damons? Would the Apoliles have Authoriz'd Error, inafcribing every where Operations to Devils; which neither the fews, nor Pagans could have took in another Senfe, than that which was then in use; compare this Objection with the 28th Chapter of the Author's Second Book; for I pretend, that the way Mr. Bekker there Anfwers, renders my Objection wholly unanfwerable.

In his Sixth Letter, he writes thus: Mr. Bekker owns, that all the Pagans Ancient and Modern, Europeans, Afians, Africans, Americans, both North and South, agree in these three chief Points, which are of an incontestable Truth. 1. That there is only one first Being, or one fupream Deiry. 2. That there are Spirits that have had a Beginning, and that are diffined from Humane Souls. 3. That those Spirits are either Good or Evil; and that fome of them are Friends to Men, and others Enemies.

See here then all the World imbib'd with an Opinion of Demons; whence I infer, that what they know, how erroneous foever it may be, must be known to them by the way of Operation; and to fet this Truth in a clear Light, obferve: It's impossible, that one felf fame Belief univerfally difpers, and constantly receiv'd, can be entirely false in the Bottom; I fay in the Bottom, not to confound with the Substance of this Doctrine, the erroneous Ideas under which it has been conceiv'd, and which have been divers, according to the diversity of the Imaginion.

And beneath. We cannot find by any certain Hiftory, that the Americans had any Communication with the reft of the World till of late Years, yet this Imagination of Dæmons has been preferv'd among them for a great number of Ages, notwithstanding their Ignorance, Brutifhnefs and Extravagances.

You may fay, you cannot maintain that the knowledge of Damons carries the Characters proper to natural Truths. God has not imprinted them in the Imagination; and Reafon, how clear foever it may be, cannot raife it felf fo far without the aid of Revelation; but I fay, if Damons have been univerfally and conftantly receiv'd by all the People of the World, this Knowledge muft flow from fome folid Caufe. It comes neither from the

the Scripture, nor from Realon, nor from the Imagination, it's deriv'd therefore only from the Operations of Damons.

Again, As for the furprizing Operations of Damons on the Idolaters. Mr. Bekker fays, Thofe who know not God as Chtiftians, know not alfo the Devil; but a Clown would have reafon to Laugh at Mr. Bekker, if he would perfwade him, that becaufe he knows not the Nature of the Soul, and of the Body, and the Laws of Motion, he fhould not pretend to feel a found Box on the Ear given him; and it's ridiculous to deny the Operations of Diemons on People, becaufe they are not fo good Divines, as to raife themfelves to the Knowledge of God, and the Myfteries which his Word has revealed to us, or becaufe they are Ignorant of the true Doctrine of Diemons. So far Mr. Binet.

This Author having made the foregoing Reflections on Dr. Bekker's Four Volumes, I fhall have the lefs to fay to them. However, as I think it proper for me to add fome Confiderations of my own, I fhall firft fet down, as briefly as I may, what I find moft Material in Dr. Bekker's Volumes, deferving an Anfwer, and then offer what I have to reply.

In his Firft Volume, he fets forth the various Opinions of People in the World, concerning evil Spirits and their Operations; and having there giv'n an account of many Chriftian Authors, as well as others, who have countenanc'd their Operations in feveral refpects, in his 22d Chapter, he writes thus: But I find no Author, who in time pafs'd, has afcrib'd fo little Understanding, and Vertue to the Devil, as for what relates to all those A 2 4 Know-

Knowledges and Effects fet forth by me, as Reginald Scot. We have at prefent Antony Van Dale, who afcribes no more to him in his Book of Oracles. These two Authors hold, that there is no other efficient Caufe of all those things that are practis'd or wrought, but the Impoftures of Men, the Devil having nothing to do in them. I hear alfo every Day while I am employ'd in this Work, that the Men of the best Senfe among us, afcribe but very little Power and Knowledge to the Devil, and that there are many more than I thought, who, as to Perfons poffefs'd and bewitch'd, are of the fame Opinion with Monfieur Daillon, who, in what he has writ in French concerning Damons, maintains, that all that is contained in the Scriptures concerning evil and impure Spirits, ought not to be underftood otherwise, than of certain Diseases, to which the Fews were wont to give fuch Names; he believing, neverthelefs, that it might be that evil Spirits came at the fame time to concern themfelves in it. And beneath, he adds, My fcope here is to relate what is faid of the Devil and his Power, and to examine whether it be true or not, and I hold the Negative; becaufe it's much contrary to me to maintain an Opinion which afcribes fo much Power and Vertue to Spirits, efpecially evil Spirits; wherefore I must rank my felf with Scot, Van Dale, and many others, who are opposite to the belief Men have of this Power.

In his 24th Chapter, §. 10. 11. he tells us, We have all the Reafon of the World to hold for Pegan Legends, all the Pegans have published concerning Miracles, Oracles of their Gods, aereal Spectres, Dreams, and fo many other Prodigies,

Prodigies, as well as all the Papifts obtrude upon us in that kind. And he thinks it's clearly enough prov'd by all the Citations he has made in this Book, that there are no Miracles, Oracles, Purgatories, Apparitions of Spirits or Souls, of Diabolical Arts and Illufions, or Sorceries, by Letters and Characters, or of Choice of Days, neither in Judaifm, nor Papifm, but draws its Origine from Paganifm. We mult reject all at once, or leave all to fubfift together, of what kind foever it be; we ought to difcharge our felves of all thefe Prejudices, and joyn Reafon with the Scriptures to ground our felves on them, and look upon thofe alone as pure Sources.

In his Second Volume, c. 7. §. 7. he writes thus: All the Learned agree, that Affirmanti incumbit probatio, but he that denies a thing, or doubts only of it, does enough when he alledges Reafons of his doubts; and much more yet when he fifts and curioufly examines those Reafons he might expect from the Perfons concerned. It's what he has refolved to do in this place: first as to what has never been alledg'd by Reafon, and afterwards as to what has never been taught by the Scriptures.

C. 19. §. 19. He fays, That the Devil by the first Sin that was committed in Paradice, is the Caufe of all evil, and confequently all the evil that is done, ought with just Reason to be imputed to him. And beneath, You can find nothing that can prove, that the Devil after having feduc'd Man at the beginning of the Creation, has had fince, in Perfon, the least Power on him, or his Actions; but indeed that all the evil that ever happen'd, or is still committed in the World is confider'd by Reafon fon of this, as if the Devil himfelf did it, C. 20. §. 19. He fays, As for the Fall of Man, it's certain it was caufed by the Devil, but to know the way how, it's altogether uncertain.

C. 27. S. I.S. He argues thus : As it's manifeft, that that which has no Existence can produce nothing, whence comes it that the Devils, or unclean Spirits did those things, which the Gospel mentions, and by those that were posfels'd by them ? I answer, The pretended unclean Spirits are always named in cafe of Maladies, and that fo it was underftood by those that were attaqued, or infected with Difeafes and Scourges of God, that reign'd at that time. And he fays, If you fay, the Apostles fince Chrift have not freed us from that Error, that the Damons are really fuch Spirits, and that they have fuch a Power, he answers, This is not fo cafily granted, becaufe Eidola, falfe Gods or Idols, and the Daimonia are one and the fame thing. Now St. Paul tells us, that the Idols, or falfe Gods are nothing at all.

C. 32. §. 10. He fays, As for Angels he does not deny but they have appear'd fometimes, but he believes not fo many Apparitions of the Devil, §. 12. He owns, there are Men that naturally fee Spectres and Phantomes more often than others, but he fays it's the natural Difposition of the Body of the Man, of his Blood and Spirits, which makes him believe he really fees, what he fees no farther than he believes. C. 33. §. 10. He fays, He concludes, that the Devil has not the leaft Knowledge of the World, nor of the things that concern Religion, nor of the Affairs of Faith.

C: 34. §, 16, He fays, He has fhewn that the the Devil can do nothing in reality, nor in appearance. §. 25. He fays, The Angels are the Ministers of God in all Places, both to Punish Men, and to Protect and Defend them; but as for the Devil, he is God's Prisoner. After which he has no more to fay on this Matter.

In his Third Volume, C. 1. §. 6. He fays, The Queftion is not, whether there are Enchantments, or the like; but what we ought to underftand by Enchantments, and in what it confifts; whether it be Deceit, Subtlety, Covert wickednefs, &c. or whether those they call Magicians really work by the Devil.

C. 5. §. 5. He fays, He is of Opinion, That what the Agyptians did was only in Appearance, and nothing real.

C.4. §. 13. He fays, If we think to fright People with Spectres, to teach them fo much more to fear God, it's a miferable thing in Christianity, that People must be brought to God by a fervile Fear, which naturally makes us fly God, or that we ferve him without love. If it be with this Fear, with which we ought to ferve God, has not Christ rendred us a poor Service for having delivered us?

C. 22. §. 18. As for those they call posses'd Persons; he fays, He confesses he has no Knowledge of the least Operation of the Devil, on the Body, in the Body, and by means of the Body, no more than of those fome will have him do on the Soul of Man; for none of all these evil Spirits ever were, or are in any place of all the Bible, Devils fo called, but the evil Spirits were troublesome Torments, and incurable Ills, of which Christ cured many Persons by his fole Word, and affisted the Apostles when they undertook to do it.

In his Fourth Volume, C.2. S.I.He fays, He has fhewn that the Ancient Megick was nothing but furprize, or impofture according to all the Scripture fays of it. 6. 2. He fays, That all which Men think to be an Action of Spirits, by Reason of the fubtlety with which it's done, is an effect of fubtle and indivisible Subftances. The knowledge of the most fubtle Matters, and of the extent of their Motion may fhew us, that all that is commonly afcribed to Magick, or the Operations of the Devil may be natural. The most fubtle Parts of Bodies, entring in, iffuing forth, and paffing through Bodies, are the Caufe of all the Changes which happen. §. 10. He fays, All he has faid, is to fhew that there are fometimes very furprifing things done, whereof we cannot outwardly know the Caufes, and which neverthelefs ought to be afcribed to the Motion, affembling, or feparation of thefe little Bodies, one way, or other.

C. 2. §. 11. He fays, We fhall now examine, whether there has ever happened in the World, that any thing of the Nature of thofe we call Apparitions, Phantoms, or Magick, that ought not to be afcribed to thofe Atoms, which often, in moving themfelves, in feparating, or joyning themfelves to one another, can caufe the fame Afpects, the fame Sounds, the fame Motions in Men, and about them, that are afcribed to Spirits, or the Devil in particular.

C. 34. §. 10. He fays, Men take the word Devil, Satan, Witch and Magick, in quite another Senfe than it's found in the Scripture, fearching with all the exactness Imaginable. So much from Dr. Bekker.

On what I have fet forth from this Author, a Man has room to write a large Volume; but I fhall contract my felf in a little compass.

As for this Perfons undertaking from Scripture and Reafon to introduce a new Doctrine amongft us, concerning Evil Spirits, contrary to what the whole ftream of those Learned Teachers, who have convey'd Religion to us, have conftantly taught us hitherto, I think it may be look'd upon as a very bold and furprising attempt. And I believe the Learned part of Christians will consider the Matter very maturely, before they part with a Doctrine fo long taught them.

It feems to me a strange Confidence in Dr. Bekker, and indeed, no lefs than that of Socinus, and other Innovators, that through a felf-prefuming Conceit of his out-doing infight in the Scriptures, he fhould now pretend to tell us, That tho' he allows good Angels have appear'd fometimes, yet there has been no Devil in the World fince he tempted our first Parents to fin; whereas the Scriptures every where speak as plainly of Evil Spirits, and their Operations fince the Fall, as of Good Spirits. Neither do I believe, that any Perfon adhering to Dr. Bekker's Doctrine, will ever be able to affign the leaft Reafon, why God Almighty fhould have permitted the Devil to tempt Man before the Fall, and not fince. And tho' Dr. Bekker, and Dr. Van Dale have fhewn themfelves Men of Learning; yet we know there have been many Protestant Divines, fince the Reformation, who have given the World. much greater Specimens of their Inlight in the Oriental Languages, which the others formuch pre-pretend to, for inabling them to a right underftanding of the Scriptures; who, notwithftanding, never took the words, Dewil, Satan, Witch, and Magick in that fenfe they have done.

But as for the Origin of Idolatry, and the Doctrine of Dæmons among the Gentiles, I think no Man has better fet it forth than Kircher, in his Oedipus Agyptiacus, whom those Authors have not pleas'd to take notice of, as I think it might have been proper for them; he having given an account of it quite contrary to what they have writ. This Man had all the Advantages that a great Writer could have : He had great Natural Parts, us'd great Induftry, had a great Correspondence with the Learned in most Parts of the World, had the Command of near twenty Languages, and the Favour of many great Princes, who affifted him with all forts of Books, and other Neceffaries for carrying on fo great a Work; in which he acquaints the World, he spent Twenty Years Labour, with a very intent Pag. 171. Study. In his first Tome of his faid Work he writes thus :

St. Ambrofe wifely and truly fays, that Humane Error was the caufe of Idolatry: And Ad. Afclep. with him Hermes Trifmegistus, that the Origin of the detestable Idolatry of the Ægyptians, was the Error and Incredulity of their Anceftors, in which Ægypt always wallowed: For as they did not apply their Minds with a due Reverence and Confideration to the Worship of the true God, and the Divine Religion; and nevertheles were posseft with a defire of fome Religion, they found out the Art of making Idols; but as they knew not how to animate them, using wicked Arts, and Diabolical Conjurations, and calling forth Darmons, they fore'd them into them; and to give them more Vertue and Strength, they confecrated to them Animals of divers kinds, which they called Sacred, adoring in them the Souls of those Persons, who have been Famous for Vertues, and Facts, they had perform'd, calling by their Names those Cities, that had been either built, or inftructed with wholfome Laws and Ordinances by them. To their Honour also they inftituted various Sacrifices, which fort of Rites and Ceremonies, Mor. Ifaack, a Maronite, most elegantly describes in his Syrian Philosophy, as follows.

Then arofe Men of the Seed of Cham, having corrupt Manners, whofe Minds were corrupted through Ignorance, and Dæmons that feduc'd them, and they taught one thing for another, and thought the Stars were endowed with a Spirit of Intelligence, that they had a free Liberty and Power, and by degrees the Devil made them Err, till they thought the Stars to be Creators and Makers; and they gave to each Star the Name of a God, and they Worship'd them with various Ceremonies, falling down before them, and adoring them ; and they fet up various Idols in their Names, and plac'd them on the tops of High Pillars, and Walls of Houfes, exhibiting their Figures after various Manners; and to thefe they offer'd Victims, and Sacrifices, burning Incense before them; and the Devil at certain times, speaking from each of them, gave Anfwers to those that ask'd them, predicting future things, and revealing things hidden, and prefentlytold of things that were done done in Places very remote; and put Thoughts into their Minds, which he revealed to others; and he has feduc'd very many of those Men even to this Day. Now these Rites were proper to the Ægyptians, which asterwards, passing to others, infected by degrees the whole World.

Now, from what is here deliver'd by Kircher, we find we may allow what Dr. Bekker fays, viz. That the Eidola, falfe Gods, or Idols, and the Diamonia of the Gentiles, are in a manner one and the fame thing; and fay with St. Paul, that the Idols, or falle Gods are nothing at all; for as the Pagans adored in their Idols the Souls of Perfons, that had been Famous for Vertues, or great Actions done for the Benefit of Mankind, or their fuppos'd Spirits of the Stars, thefe indeed were nothing there; but as they apply'd themfelves to thefe, for receiving Anfwers, they defired, or for being otherwife gratifyed by them in other defires, it was the Devil who deluded them, in giving them Anfwers, and doing other things as they defired; fo that their Conversation was with him, who kept them in continual Idolatry, though they did not direct their Worship directly to him.

So again, Kircher in his Second Tome, of his faid Oedipus, Part 2. treating of Hieroglyphical Magick, in his Third Chapter, which treats concerning the Divinations and Oracles of the Agyptians, fets forth, that the Mind of Man being ftill agitated with a defire of the goods both of Body and Soul, and eagerly wifhing to fecure them perpetually to himfelf, applies its Study to the Knowledge of future things; whence the Devil, as being Enemy of Mankind.

kind, laying as many Snares, as there are Appetites of Humane Machinations, at length fets upon him with an Hope of the Knowledge of those future things. Now there are two chief Nets he lays, Aftrology and Polymancy; by the first he teaches the Lot, which each Man has gotten from the first Minute of his Nativity, as to a good or bad Fortune; by the latter he presents, as under the Veil of natural Caufes, various kinds of Divinations, with which the uncautious, while they unadvifedly go about to purfue Good, and fhun Evil, are justly depriv'd of the eternal Good. These Arts Cham, the Son of Noab, first introduc'd into the World, by the Inftigation of the Devil ; which the Agprians, instructed by Cham. have transfus'd into the whole World, as it were by a certain Hereditary Tradition. As for their Aftrology, he has treated amply of it before, and here he takes upon him to give an Account of their Divinations, and their Origine, and concerning the Nature of their Oracles.

Before I give you an Account of what he fays, concerning the latter, I fhall give you two or three Particulars of what he fays concerning their Afrology.

In his forementioned Tome, p. 141. he writes thus: I dare folemnly affirm, that all our prefent Judicial Aftrology, relating to Nativities and horary Queffions, retains even to this Day, that occult pact with Devils, which the Ancient Agyptian Aftrology did.

P. 176. He fays, The Agyptians did not fo much afcribe to the Stars, as to the Genii prefiding in them, the Events of things; hence there was an earnest defire, care, and folici-B b tude tude to render them Propitious, by previous Ceremonies and Sacrifices, otherwife then the Aftrologers of our Times deal, who rafhly afcribe the Fortune of Men to a certain fatal neceffity of the Stars.

P. 200. He fays, The $\mathcal{A}_{gyptians}$ held, that Gods or Genii, inhabited the Stars; for they thought the Inferior World depended on their Vertue and Efficacy, not by the proper influtive force of the Stars, but by the difpofing Power of the Deities, who being feated in the Stars as an Inftrument for the Difpofition of Inferiors, \mathcal{O}_{c} . As for what is faid more concerning their $\mathcal{A}_{frology}$, I refer the Reader to the Author.

As for the Aygptians Divinations, and their Origine, and the Nature of their Oracles, they thought, that befide the Celeftial Gods, there were certain middle Natures, which they call'd Angels, Dæmons, Genii, or Terrestrial Gods, to which they afcribed the rife and fall of their Oracles, and fo, that the Oracles lafted fo long, as the faid Genii continued in the Statues, which deliver'd Oracles, and that they ceas'd, when the Statues were deferted by the Genii or Damons. Now they affirmed these Genii to Inhabit the Region betwixt the Heavens and the Earth, and to confift of Herbs, Stones, Spices, and other Terrestrial Matters, containing a natural Power of a Divinity in them; and that as living near us, they were joyned to us by a friendly Alliance; and they thought them to be affected with a fingular Love towards Mankind, according as their Nature bears; predicting future things by Oracles, and taking care of other things belonging to us. Wherefore they entred Statues rightly prepared $ 122

pared by Men, and gave Anfwers from them to those that confulted them; and flayed in them many Years, by fo much the more willingly, by how much the Statues were made of Matters more agreeing to them; and by how much the more skilful they were to de-tain them by Sacrifices, Hymns, Prayers, and Harmonies, with which only Allurements of them, they are delighted. And Trismegistus, in his Pymander fays, their Anceftors had not a perfect Knowledge of the celeftial Deity, for God being known, they had not cared for terrestrial Gods, but as being uncertain of him, greatly straying from the Divine Religion, they excogitated an Art whereby they might make Gods, erecting Statues; and as they could not create Souls for them, they called the Souls of Angels or Damons into them, which came upon calling, both becaufe the Power of these Men was great, and becaufe Angels and Dæmons have fo great an Alliance with Men; that they are drawn by a natural Obsequiousness to them.

But to return to the Oracles, they were the Root and Foundation of all Divinations and Superfition; nor did the Devil always give Anfwers with a fenfible Voice, but difcovered what he pleafed by certain Signs. Hence first arofe the various kinds of Rites and Ceremonies, with which, as it were with previous Difpolitions, they were wont to purge the Mind, that it might become confcious of future things; then turning themfelves to vain observances, they took all the Ludibria of ob-· vious things for Auguries. But let us explain them in particular. I find that, in a manner, in all the Prefectures of Agypt; there was an Oracle; Bb z

Oracle, from which Confulters received Anfwers concerning various Events; not that every particular Oracle answered concerning every thing proposed to them, but only concerning things agreeing to their Nature : Thus the Oracle of Serapis, about things that concerned Agriculture; of Anubia, of things relating to Sciences; of Horm, about things concerning the good of the Body and Soul; of Is, about things concerning Nilus, or Fertility; but the Oracle of Ammon, as being the most Famous of all, gave Answers concerning all things proposed. So in Innumerable other Places Oracles were fet up, all which gave Answers in obscure Places, obsesd by evil Spirits, by a Voice, Dreams, a Gesture, and a Nod of the Statues, by a found, a ring-ing, or other Signs; and they were given either by the Damon himfelf, or by Pythonists; of by Priefts infpir'd with a Fate-telling Spirit, which from Caves, and obscure deep Vaults, with an horrible found and noife, rush'd out on the Enthusiasts, in the likeness of Fire, with which being wholly furrounded, and driven into a fury, they uttered those things which the Damon fuggested to them, with a Palpitation of all their Limbs, their Eyes turn'd upwards, and their Mouths difforted. After this manner Satan the Architect of Superftitions, infinuating himfelf by ftealth into the Minds of Men by Idolatry, made it his Business to inculcate to them, devoted Services of Rites and Ceremonies, by which they fhould Worfhip his Commentitious Gods under a pretext of Piety and Vertue, that under these Colours he might involve and pollute them in all kinds of Impiety and Wickednefs.

nels, and derive to himself the Honour due to God.

And as there was nothing fo obvious to our Senfes, which the Damon did not affume, as certain Signs, to fhew his Will, and nilling to those that confulted him; hence manifold kinds of Divinatory Magick arose, hence iffued the Spawn of all kinds of portentous Sorceries, and Divinations, Orc. So far Kircher.

Now, laying this before us, I muft fay, That notwithftanding all Dr. Van Dale has writ concerning Oracles, as being wholly contrived by the Impoftures of Men, I muft wholly affent to what Kircher has here fet forth concerning them; and this, not only becaufe Kircher, and others, have fo deliver'd it to us, but chiefly, becaufe, even at this Day, there are Perfons, who upon cafting themfelves into a Trance, and otherwife, can, and do predict future things, reveal things hidden, and tell of things done in Places very remote, like to what was done by the Oracles, as I have fet forth in this Work, which muft be afcribed to the Agency of evil Spirits, as I shall fhew beneath.

Indeed that many things in the Agyptian Oracles, were done by the Impostures of their Priests; it's what Kircher freely owns in the Third Tome of his said Oedipus, p. 46. where he writes as follows.

We have fhewn in feveral Parts of this Work, that Dæmons did not only fpeak from various Statues, as from certain Oracles, but that ev'n Priefts themfelves, to keep the People in a greater cult and veneration towards the Gods, impos'd on their Simplicity by thier Craft; and the use of these statues was so frequent in Agypt, that there was scarce a Prefecture without them; and fo that the chief end of the Priefts feems to have confifted in this, to draw Damons by Magical Adjurations, and various Incantations into Statues, first confecrated by due Rights, in the Adyta, and being drawn to confult them concerning various Demands. And because the Damons did not always give Anfwers agreeing to Truth, but wholly fool'd those that confulted them many ways, hence the Priefts performing the Office of a Damon, and applying themselves to Fraud, made Statues with fuch an Artifice, that by occult Pipes convey'd to the Head of the Statues, they mutter'd Voices, as it were of the Gods, and what Anfwers they pleas'd, to impose on the Superstitious People; who being deluded by this impious Cheat of the Priefts, were more and more animated to make Oblations, and offer Gifts, due, as they thought, to the Gods, but, in Truth, to those deceitful Priefts, who thought they had done fome great thing, if what was done by the Craft of a fraudulent Wit, obtain'd in the Minds of the fimple People, the Opinion of a Divine Work of the Gods, and of a Miracle. So far Kircher.

But to conclude from this with Dr. Van Dale, that all that pass'd in the Oracles of the Ancients, was done by Humane Contrivance, without any Agency of evil Spirits, is what I can no way affent to, for the Reason above giv'n.

To return to Dr. Bekker. As to what he fays, That the Knowledge of the most fubtle Particles of Matter, and of the Extent of their Motion may shew us, that all that is commonly ascrib'd to Magick, and the Operations of the Devil, may be Natural, and that that all Apparitions and Phantomes, Sounds. &c. commonly afcribed to the Operations of Damons, may be caus'd by the Action of those Atoms. I should ask'd him here, whether the Action of those fubrle Particles of Matter can exert it felf to an intellectual and voluntary Agency, (for this is the true State of the Queftion) and not to tell us, that feemingly occult Sympathies and Antipathies, and the like, may be folv'd that way, which we own may be true; and I think I have fufficiently fhewn in this Book, in the foregoing feveral Heads of Mens preception of Spirits, that the Actions I there afcribe to Spirits have refulted from intellectual and voluntary Agents. If he should fay, the Actions of fuch fubtle Particles could arife to fuch Agency; I think I have fairly fhewn before from Mr. Lock, and Monfieur le Clerc, that the Notions of Matter, and of an intellectual and voluntary Agent, are clearly diftinct, and incommunicable to each other.

Again, As for his raifing the Action of the Particles of Matter to this pitch, this would equally take away the Operations of good Spirits, as well as evil, whereas he allows the former; So that I think he had been more confonant to his Principles, in fetting up for Sadducifm or Epicurifm, denying both good and evil Spirits, than to take up with this halffpirited Opinion, which I know not whether any Man has ever held but himfelf.

Indeed we may allow what Dr. Bekker fays, That good Angels may fometimes Punifh Men by God's Appointment, as well as protect and defend them; but we fay there have been frequent manifestations of wicked Facts, done by Spirits, and fuch as could no way B b 4 cour-confift with the Nature of good Angels, therefore there must be allowed of both Kinds; unless the Doctor's fubtle Particles shall folve all. And whereas in his Second Volume, he fays, The Facts afcribed to Spirits, are perhaps fuch as a Man's Spirit can do, as when a Man poffess'd with a pretended evil Spirit, speaks ftrange Languages, which he had never Learned before: this he fays may be folv'd, if we embrace the Opinion of Justin, viz. that the Souls of the Dead can enter into the Bodies of the Living; for then he fays, Why may it not be, that the Soul of a Man, skill'd in many Languages, is that which after the Death of its Body, speaks by the means of that which is yet alive, those fame Languages he had learned Living? But, he fays, He is not of this Opinion, though this may fuffice to convince those by what they fay themselves, that confound one thing with another, in believing this of the Soul, and that there are Angels for the fame Reafon, which Experience proves not that there are, or that they exist.

Now, as to this, fince the Dottor did not hold the Opinion of Juftin, nor deny that ftrange Languages had been fpoken by Ignorant Perfons; he might have done well to have explain'd how that could be done without the Agency of Spirits; and as for his charging those with an inconfistency that hold this Opinion, and with all the Agency of Spirits; is it that because fome particular Perfon has fet up such an Hypothesis for folving that Fact, there must be no Spirits? So we know that Marcess Marci (who generally takes upon him to folve all Pheenomen without God, Angel, or Devil) has fet up another Hypothesis for for folving the faid Fact, he fuppofes, that Ideas are convey'd into all Perfons, with the feminal Principles, derived from Parents and Anceftors; and that when thefe Ideas, upon certain critical Junctures, come to an Evolution, a Man may come to fpeak any of thofe Languages, which any of his Anceftors were skilled in : But what if Men fet up fuch Hypothefis, the Queftion will ftill be whether thefe Hypothefis are more cogent upon our underftanding for their Admittance, than that of Spirits, or whether our Reafon 'acquiefces more eafily in them ?

And I think, I may here juftly charge these Apol. 2. Men, as Justin Martyr does others, in a like Case, faying, Some oppose to us Marcion, who even now teaches Men to deny God, the Maker of all things in Heaven and Earth, and Christ his Son predicted by the Prophets, and introduces another God beside the Maker of all things, and also another Son; by whose Authority many being sway'd, they deride us, as though he were the only Man that knew Truth; and as they have no Demonstration of those things they say, without all Reason, being feized as Lambs by a Wolf, they become the foul prey of Mens Dogma's, and of Devils.

Tandlerus, in his Anfwer to a Queffion propos'd concerning the Divination, and other wonderful Effects of Melancholick Perfons, firft tells us, that those Melancholick Facts or Energies may be reduc'd to two kinds; one is, of those who are faid to have spoken Languages of which, while they were themselves, they were wholly Ignorant, or to have shewn an understanding of hose Arts, which they never acquired to themselves by Learning; the other other is, of those who are faid to have had a certain Power and Faculty of difcovering occult things, of commemorating past things that were unknown to them, and of predicting future Events, whole Truth experience it. felf, at length, has fhewn to be fo. To the first kind belongs that ruftick mentioned by Guainerius, who always, the Moon being combuft, made Verfes, and the combustion being pass'd about two Days, till she came to another combustion, could not speak a word of Latin; and this Man had never Learned Letters. And here that Saylers Boy has place, who, as Foreftus tells, having received a Blow on his Head, as he pass'd a Bridge, in his Delirium, always made Syllogisms in the German Tongue, and that excellently ; and that afterwards being cur'd he knew not how to do it.

Of the latter kind we have Rhafis a Witnefs, among the Arabians; and Alexander, who was in no mean rank among the Ancient Phyficians, and among thefe Perfors, he thinks we may not unfitly place, Exstaticks.

Now, he fays, There is a very great Diffention among Authors, in affigning the Caufes of thefe flupendious Actions of Perfons feized with a Melancholy Diftemper, fome laborioully inquire into the natural Caufes of them, others afcend to Supernatural; as for thofe who acquiefce in natural Caufes, he finds two Sects of them. The first is of Astrologers, afcribing all the Works of Melancholick Perfons to the Influences of the Stars, as Guainerius does, building on certain Platonick and Astrological Principles, he fays, That the Soul before it's infus'd into the Body, contains the Knowledge of all things in it felf, but that it's in a manner abolish'd, by the Union

nion with the Body, with whofe Fetters it's held enfnared, after it's infused; nor can it be otherwife recovered, but by teaching, or by an influx, or impression of the Planer, which prefided over his Nativity at the very time the Soul was infused into the Body. He will have the force of this impreffion to be fo great, that it may endow the Soul with a Faculty of producing fuch Actions, as the Star is wont to produce elsewhere; fo that it may make a well Man fick, and a fick Man well; alfo cause Snow and Rain; but that the Body and corporeal Senfes refift this Impression, especially as to Knowledges, it being otherwife of efficacy enough in it felf; these Senses therefore being bound, as it happens in Melancholick Perfons, and the Star working on the Soul without refiftency, it comes to pals that the Soul understands all things without Discourse, foresees future things, answers concerning Arts, to which it inclines by the force of the influencing Planet. The fecond Sect is of natural Philosophers, who seeing that the Minds of Men are variously affected with the Melancholick Humour, and that most that have excelled others in Understanding, or in Learning Arts, or in Administration of Government, or in performing other things, were naturally Melancholick, they fluck not to ascribe fo great force to it; for as there are many found, who are naturally enclined to divers Arts, fo Melancholy, they fay, is naturally inclined to Work wonderful things; and as high fermented Wine, immoderately taken, changes Mens Manners, and Caufes them to differ from themselves; so they contend, that if the Melancholick Juice exceeds its convenienţ nient Measure in a Person, or be rendred more hot, or cold than is fitting, gets a certain fingular force wholly to change the Mind, and to ftir up wonderful Motions in it.

Now, Tandlerus, after having flated thefe Opinions, rejects them; for though he does not deny the Power of the Stars, for changing the temperament of the whole Body, and of each of its Parts in particular, and for giving an Inclination either for the Knowledge of Tongues, or for divers Disciplines ; yet this he ftifly denies, that the very Knowledge of Tongues is any way conferr'd by the Stars, without teaching, or their use without any precedent Knowledge, for certain Reafons he gives ; nor can he acquiesce in their Opinion, who think these kinds of Prodigies ought to be afcribed to the property of the Melancholick Humour; for though there be a certain occult force of the Melancholick Juice, that it may produce Operations caufing Admiration, yet it cannot be fo great as to beget a Knowledge of Languages, and of occult and future things; these certainly are owing to a superior Cause, not that while he denies thefe things to have place in the Melancholick Humour, he therefore denies what Aristotle fays. viz. that Melancholick Perfons are suduornieus, that is have direct Dreams, by which they may have a fore-preception of certain future things; for there are two kinds of Divination, one natural, common to Men with Brutes, whereby without Discourse, by the fole guidance of Nature, fome Animals have a 'fore-fense of things, as well for avoiding hurtful things themselves, as for admonishing Men of certain iminent Events; fo Ants have a natural 'fore-sense of the approaching Winter; from the going away of Sparrows, many Phylicians believe we are admonish'd of an approaching Peftilence ; fuch a prefaging faculty is often found in fome Fools, who by Nature have a vitiated Reafon, in whom doubtlefs Nature makes a recompence one way for what it takes away in another. So Marcus Maci fays, Those Phil. vet. whofe Minds are employed in Speculations, which Reft.par.2. take up the Soul, do not eafily perceive Sympatheti- sea. 4. cal Impressions, whence presaging and predictions are wont to be fent to simple Persons, rather than to Wife Men ; and that bappens much more to brute Animals, than no Men, those being presently filled with the celestial Image, being void of any of their own. The fame things haply fometimes occur in Melancholick Perfons, especially in those whom Nature has particularly brought forth fach. The other kind is Artificial, which is grounded on an observation of Events, or on certain Signs; and becaufe it confifts, for the greateft part, in a comparing together of natural Caufes, as well betwixt themfelves, as of the Effect, it is also called Natural; though this depends of certain Rules, yet the Inclination of Nature which proceeds partly from the temperament and Humours, and partly from a fortunate, and meet polition of certain Stars, hold the chief place in it; for we fee some by a peculiar guidance of Nature, being cultivated with an indifferent knowledge of the Stars, far more truly and readily to hit out future things from obvious, or little previous Marks, than those who excel only in Art, being deftitute of the Aids of Nature. Nay, some by this very force of Spirit arrive at a full infight in many things, which which Art with Labour would not come to the Knowledge of, or attain with Difficulty. Such a Facility of conjecturing, fince it happens for the most part in Persons inclin'd to Melancholy, which happily may be increas'd by a fortunate Concourfe of the Stars, I eafily grant that Melancholick Perfons are not only Euguoreiess, but likewife that they excel others in the Prediction of future Things. But here we speak of another kind of Divination, when Ignorant Perfons, without Conjectures and Observation of Events, bring secret Things to light, Prophefie of those future Things which are neither known to themfelves, nor others; nay, when they come to themfelves, they know not that any fuch thing was done by them. These things, he fays, he judges could no way arife from an Humour, especially exceeding the Bounds of Nature.

He concludes therefore, That the Devil is the Author of all thefe things, tho' not alone, but join'd with the Melancholick Humour, which he exagitates at his pleafure, and caufes certain Operations, which that Humour had not been able to produce by its own force.

Since we are upon this Point of Ignorant Peoples speaking unknown Languages, I shall give you one particular Instance of it; taken from a Letter sent by the late Lord Landerdale to Mr. Baxter; which Letter was printed Anno 1691. in Mr. Baxter's Historical Discourse of Apparitions and Witches. He there writes, among other things, as follows:

'I fhall here tell you of a real Poffession near the place where I was born. About thirty Years ago, when I was a Boy at School, there was a poor Woman generally believ d

to

to be really poffes'd: She liv'd near the Town of Duns in the Mers ; and Mr. John Weems, then Minister of Duns, (a Man known by his Works to be a Learned Man, and I know him to be a Godly Honeft Man) was ' perfwaded the was poffets'd : I have heard him many times speak with my Father about it, and both of them concluded it a real Poffeffion. Mr. Weems visited her often; and being convinc'd of the truth of the thing, he, with fome neighbour Ministers, apply'd themfelves to the King's Privy-Council for a Warrant to keep Days of Humiliation for her ; but the Bishops being then in Power, would not allow any Fafts to be kept. I will not trouble you with many Circumftances; one I shall only tell you, which, I think, will evince a real Poffeffion. The report being spread in the Country, a Knight by the Name of Forbes, who liv'd in the North of Scotland, being come to Edenborough, meet-'ing there with a Minister of the North, and both of them defirous to fee the Woman, the Northern Minister invited the Knight to my Father's Houfe (which was within ten or twelve Miles of the Woman) whither they came, and next Morning went to fee the Woman. They found her a poor Ignorant Creature, and feeing nothing extraordinary, the Minister fays in Latin to the Knight, Nondum audivimus Spiritum loquentem; prefently 'a Voice comes out of the Womans Mouth, " Audis loquentem, audie loquentem. This put the Minister into fome amazement (which 'I think made him not mind his own Latin) ' he took off his Hat, and faid, Misereatur Deus ' peccatoris : The Voice prefently, out of the Woman's

383

• Woman's Mouth, faid, Dic peccatricis, Dic pecca-• tricis; whereupon both of them came out of • the Houfe fully fatisfied, took Horfe im-• mediately, and return'd to my Father's Houfe, • at Thirlestane Castle in Lauderdale, where they • related this Paffage. This I do exactly re-• member. Many more Particulars might be • got in that Country, but this Latin Criticis, • in a most Illiterate Ignorant Woman, where • there was no pretence to disposseffing, is Evi-• dence enough, I think. So far the Lord Lauderdale.

This leads us to confider another Affertion of Dr. Bekker's, where he fays, that all the Poffeffions mention'd in the Scriptures, were but incurable Difeafes that tormented Men, the Devil having nothing to do in them, and of which Chrift cur'd many Perfons by his fole Word.

As to this Gulielmus Adera, Physician of Toloufe, Printed a Book there, Ann. 1623. concerning the Difeases and Difeas'd cur'd by Christ. In the third Part of this Book, he enquires, how the Devil becomes the external Cause of many Difeases.

He there tells us, that those Persons whom Chrift cur'd, were such as the Interpreters of the Scriptures call Energumens, or such as were possed with an Evil Spirit, concerning whom it's a Crime to doubt: Nay, he fays, those strive and contend against all Truth, Faith, Experience, and the Authority of moss Wife and Pious Men, who obstinately deny those Energumens, and Persons obselft and posses with the Devil; and fet nought by of the vexatious Power the Devil has in moving natural Caufes, and if the obselft do any thing excessively viot violent or flupendious, believe it to be, and afcribe it to Melancholy, preternaturally mov'd in the Brain, or the whole Body. These Men bring it fo to pafs, that by understanding they understand nothing, who exploding the Power of Dæmons, accuse all ancient Writers, and all the Fathers of the Chriftian Church, whofe Negligence he fhould rather choofe to imitate, than the unaccountable Diligence of those Men.

To diftinguish Persons posseft, from those infefted with a melancholick Enthuliafm, he fays, the learned Physician Mallaria gives two Signs, which are most certain Marks of a demoniacal seizure. First, if a Rustick or Ideot fpeaks Greek or Latin: Secondly, if he pre-dicts future Things. Now it is not to be doubted, but these things have been often obferv'd in melancholick Perfons by Levinus Lemnius and others. Riolanus brings Reasons for In Lib. it, and an Inftance in Philaretus of Spolitie, Fern 1. who being infefted with Worms, fell into a cash. new kind of Madnefs; fo that in his Difeafe, he spake very well the German Tongue. Huartas in his Scrutiniam Ingeniorum, tells us of a Wo-man feiz'd with a Frenzy in a great Fever, who fpake Latin, and predicted many things as a Prophet. She predicted to a Chirurgion who let her Blood, that he would die within a Month, and that his Wife would after Marry a Neighbour Smith, which fell out accordingly. Pfellus alfo tells us of a Woman who being ill after Child-bearing, spake in the Armenian Tongue with a certain Armenian Physician, tho' she had never seen an Armenian before, and knew nothing but her Chamber and Diftaffe.

He thinks every Man knows it to be a greas and difficult Task to diffinguish melancholick Perfons from fuch as are poffeft: No Man as far as he knows, having as yet, given us true Marks of it. He fays, therefore, that a Man must infpect the Nature, Manners, Humours, and Disposition of the Diseas'd. What he does beside the usual Nature of the Disease, and of the Nature of its Symptoms; as to cry out violently, to be vehemently agitated and tortur'd, to contract, wreft, or extend his Limbs without a manifest Convulsion, to be Delirious without a Frenzy, to fpeak prodigious Things, and use an unufual Tongue. In short, to do or fuffer those things which are very unufual in Diseases.

Thefe things being difcover'd, as far as a Phyfician may, he muft explain how the Devil becomes the caufe of Difeafes, how he acts with natural Caufes, entangles the Body in Diftempers, ftirs up Symptoms with fuch Enormity, that it may be juftly doubted whether it be a monftrous Difeafe, or a fevere D_{emon} . And he concludes with the unanimous Affertion of Divines and Phyficians, that it's done by the Devil's managing of the Humours at his Pleafure in thofe that are left to him, whereby he can caufe an Epilepfie, Palfie, and the like Difeafes, as alfo Blindnefs, Deafnefs, \mathcal{O}_{c} .

If any one wonders why he awakens and ftirs up Fits of Difeafes according to the Motion and Quarters of the Moon, he fays, it's becaufe at that time the Humours being encreas'd by the Motion and Influence of the Moon, are more conveniently agitated.

And

And in his 8th Ch. of his faid Third Part, treating, concerning the Difference of an Epilephe, from a divine Exfrafie, and that which pro-ceeds from the Devil, he fays, a divine Exstafie is a facred rapt of the Mind, in which God, by a Condescent prefents himself to any humane Creature, not by the means of any Difease, or other preternatural morbifick Caufe ; the Doctrine of Divines being, that God infinuates himfelf into our Minds by a Rapt, and then shews us by a divine Reprefentation those Things he pleases we shall fee. Therefore it is really God who forcibly draws Man to him by an Exstafie, no natural Caufe, nor the Mind spontaneously mov'd; for as the Sun is not feen without the Sun, fo neither can God be known without God.

If you had feen the Prophets, or others rapt in Exstacies, you would have been apt to fay they were fallen into an Apoplectick or Epileptick Seifure, for they remain'd immovable; their Eyes open, and fixt towards Heav'n; their Faces pale, either ftanding upright, or being on their Knees; till being fill'd with the light of Celeftial Visions, and faturated with a feast of holy Thoughts, they return'd to themfelves. But it's easie to diffinguish thefe from Epileptical Perfons, and we shall shew that extatical Perfons, and fuch as are rapt by a Damon, are not Epileptical.

Chriftian Divines and Phyficians, agree that Damons ftir up Raptures and Exstassies in Men, binding or loofing the exterior Senfes, and that, either flopping the Pores of the Brain, that the Spirits do not pass forth, as it's done naturally by Sleep, or by recalling the fenfitive Spirits from the outward Senfes to the inward ward Organs, which he there retains; fo the Devil renders Women Witches exflatical and Magicians, who while they lie faft alleep in one place, being deceiv'd, they think they have been in various places, and done many things.

That these Exstances are not Epileptick Seifures, it appears from Bodin in his Theatre of univerfal Nature, where he fays, That those that are rapt by the Devil, feel neither Stripes, nor Cuttings, nor no wrefting of their Limbs, nor burning Torches, nor the burning of a red hot Iron. Nay, nor is the beat of the Pulse, nor the Motion of the Heart perceiv'd in them, but afterwards returning to themfelves, they feel most bitter Pains of the Wounds receiv'd, and tell of things that were done at 600 Miles distance, and affirm themfelves to have feen them done. So far Bodin.

An Exstafie therefore is an Abolishment of Senfe and Motion, and not a Depravation of it, as in an Epileptick Seifure; for Perfons in an Exstasse lie wholly immoveable, in an Epileptick Fit they are most violently agitated. And, as Bodin fays, Demoniacal Exftaticks breath forth an horrid flink : Epilepticks foam at the Mouth, and their Seed and Excrements pass from them thro' a violent Agitation of the Muscles; and infinite Evils which Demoniacks commit in their Raptures, fhew that they were not agitated with a Convulsion, but gave themfelves too much to the Devil's Covenants. Nor need I fay much concerning the difference betwixt a Madness, a Syncope, and a Stupor caus'd by narcotick Medicines, and an' Exstafie. For as Bodin rightly argues, a Mad Man

Man is always agitated without ceafing, and a Man rapt in an Exfafie lies immoveable, defitute of all Senfe and Motion of all his Parts, and rather like a Man feiz'd with an Apoplexy. A Syncope is a fudden failing of all the Strength, and foon ends in Death, or a Recovery; an Exfafie lafts a long time without the lofs of a Man's Strength. A Stupor caus'd by narcotick Medicines, takes away Senfe, not Motion, for otherwife Motion being abolifh'd together with Senfe, Death would be at Hand, therefore a Stupor is not Exftafie. So far Dr. Ader.

To this I may add, what Sennertus writes of Inst. med. the Demoniacal Sopor of Witches, who think 1. 2. p. 3. they are carried through the Air, Dance, Feaft, have Copulation with the Devil, and do other things in their fleep, and afterwards believe the fame things waking. Now, he fays, whether they are really fo carried in the Air, &c. or being in a profound fleep, only dream they are fo carried, and perfift in that Opinion after they are awake, these Facts or Dreams cannot be natural, for it cannot be that there should be fo great an Agreement in Dreams of Perfons, differing in Place, Tenperament, Age, Sex, and Studies ; that in one Night, and at the fame Hour they should Dream of one fuch Meeting, and should clearly agree of the Place, Number and Quality of the Perfons, and the like Circumstance;. But fuch Dreams are fuggested from a supernatural Cause, viz. from the Devil to his Confederates, God permitting it. Whence alfo to those Witches feriously converted, and refuling to be longer prefent at those Meetings, fuch Dreams no longer happen; which is a Mark Cc3

Schottus, in his Book De Mirabilibus Energumenorum, gives us fome figns for knowing Damoniacks, and first he fays, A revealing of occult things, which furpals the natural Knowledge of the Revealers, is a probable fign of a Poffeffion, unless we may rationally prefume it to be from God, or a good Angel: And this, becaufe, fince that revealing must necessarily be fuggefted from fome Mind or Spirit, and it is not from the private Spirit of the Man, fince it furpasses his natural Knowledge, nor from God, or a good Spirit, as it's prudently fuppos'd; of neceffity it must proceed from an Evil Spirit. He fays, it's a probable fign, not certain, fince that revealing may be caus'd by Damons not poffeffing a Perfon, as it appears by many Histories. But if there are other figns it's a Prefumption that the revealing in the faid Circumstances, is from a Dæmoniacal Poffession.

Secondly, He fays, a Skill in, and fpeaking of unknown Tongues which the Speaker never learnt, is also a probable Sign of a Poffeffion, if it may not otherwife be rationally prefum'd that it is from God or a good Angel. because it cannot naturally be, that a Person ignorant of a Tongue, should speak it, since we learn not foreign Tongues but with great Labour. The fame is to be underflood of the Knowledge of Reading, Writing, Singing, and of the Knowledge of other Sciences, if a Perfon had never learnt them. Levinus Lemmins therefore lies under a Miftake, where he tells us, that melancholick Perfons, and fuch as are in . frenzie, thro' a fervent ebullition of the Humours mours, and a vehement agitation of the Spirits, may speak various Languages, tho' before they knew nothing of them. Schottus there fets forth many other Signs of Dæmoniacks, tho' not scertain as the former : and he sets forth also the Signs giv'n by Voetius and others of them, for which I refer you to his Book.

This, I think, is enough in answer to Dr. Bekker's Affertion, that the Devil has nothing to do in Difeases.

As for the Cavils of many Writers againft the poffibility of a covenanting Witch, I am throughly convinc'd, that if an Apparition prefents itfelf to any Perfon, as many have to my felf; if that Perfon be fallen from God, and funk into defpair, thro' the Miferies of human Life, having not that Chriftian Armour on which St. Paul fpeaks of, he may make a Covenant with him, as well as with a Man, and if they fay there can be no Covenant with a Spirit, how comes it that there has has been a Covenant betwixt God and Man?

There is one Point of Dr. Bekker's Doctrine, which remains to be answer'd, where he fays, if we think to fright People with Spectres, to teach them fo much the more to love God, it's a miferable thing in Christianity, that People must be brought to God by a fervile Fear, inftead of Love.

Now this feems not to me fo extraordinary a Leffon in Divinity, for, as we know the Love of God to be the confummation of Wifdom, fo the Fear of God is the beginning of it; and I think a fervile Fear ftill neceffary to the generality of Mankind; for Parents have Rods for their Children, Mafters for their C c 4 Scho-

Scholars, Princes for their Subjects; and tho' all three would perfuade thofe under them to do what they are enjoyn'd for Love, yet fuch generally is the reluctancy of humane Nature, from doing what is enjoyn'd it, thro' an exorbitancy of our Paffions, that till thefe are broken by a Chriftian or Philofophical Training, or we are come to a clearnefs of Judgment, by a long Practice and Experience in the Affairs of humane Life, Love alone will not do; and the fervile Fear of thofe Rods muft be upheld; and the Scriptures teach us that we muft be content with the Bond Woman for a while, till we may deferve to Marry the Free Woman,

Thus, I think, I have fufficiently anfwer'd what has been flated from Dr. Bekker. But there is one thing remains for me to take notice of in him. In his fourth Volume he has taken upon him to examine the Proofs that are brought from Experience for the Existence and Operations of Damons, and to refute them. I have intimated before how groundlefly he has there rejected the Demons of Tedworth and Malcon; and here I shall observe how he rejects what is faid of the Piper at Hamelin: He fells us, that his Mafter Schookius, has refuted that Story in his little Book in Latin, Entituled, Febula Hamelenfis, of whose Reasons he leaves the Reader to judge, and adds many Sugceftions of his own against it.

Part. 4. Sec. 1.c. 7: De prafer. Dam.c.16.

Now, Frommannus, in his third Book of Magicul Fefeination, after having given us the Relation of this Piper, as it's fet down by Kircher, and Schottus; and after having told us, that Wierus fays, This Story is entred in the publick Records of the Town, and Painted in the the Church Windows, of which himfelf was an Eye Witnefs, and that the Magistrate there was wont to date the publick Acts from the Year of the going forth of their Children, together with the Year of Chrift; and that its observed, even to this Day in Mark of the Fact, that the Sound of a Timbrel is never admitted in that Street, by which the Boys went forth, if any Bride hap'ly be led forth that way, till fhe be gone forth; nor is dancing permitted there. I fay, after having fet forth this, he fays, That Martin Schookins ftrongly endeavoured in a peculiar little Book, to rank this ftory among fabulous Relations, but Theo. Kirchmeierus egregiously shammed all his effort, in a peculiar Disputation at Witteberg, Anno 1671.

Now, Dr. Bekker, has not been fo Candid as to take notice of this in Frommannus, as he ought to have done; he having read Frommannus, as it appears by his quoting him, in his 4th Volume, c. 2.

I could add much more against Dr. Bekker, but this shall suffice at present.

And now, before I make an end, in regard that in the front of my Book, I have promis'd fome Account of my particular Experience as to a fenfible Perception of Spirits, perhaps it may be expected from me, that I fhould fet forth fome more particulars, than I have yet done concerning it. As to this, I fhall only fay, that in regard I do not urge my own Experience, as Argumentative, for proving the existency of Spirits, and their Operations, I think it may be looked upon as a thing of more Curiofity than Ufe to enlarge upon it; though I shall add the following particulars relating to it.

I declare then, with all the Sincerity of a Christian, that it never fo much as entred into my Thoughts to use any practice for raising, or calling Spirits, as fome Men have done; and that when they came, it was altogether a furprize to me. At their first coming they did not appear to me, nor come into my Chamber, but kept at my Chamber Windows, and in a Court adjoyning to one of my Chamber Windows, and in a Garden adjoyning to another Window. They called to me, fung, play'd on Musick, rung Bells, fometimes crowed like Cocks, &c. and I have great Reafon to believe thefe to be all good Spirits, for I found nothing in them tending to ill; their drift in coming, as far as I could perceive, being only to compose my Mind, and to bring it to its higheft Purity; they used no Threats to me, but the furprize kept always a Terror upon me, and they continued with me about two Months.

Their fecond coming to me was fome Years after, when at first there came Five, as I have fet forth in my Fourth Chapter; and prefently after there came Hundreds, and I faw fome of them Dance in a Ring in my Garden, and Sing, holding Hands round, not facing each other, but their Backs turned to the inner part of the Circle. I found these of a promiscuous Nature, some good, and some bad, as among Men; for fome of them would now and then Curfe and Swear, and talk loofely, and others would reprehend them ⁴ for it. Yet none of these ever perswaded me to any ill thing; but all would diffwade me from drinking too freely, and any other irregularity; and if at any time I was upon going going to any Neighbouring Town, they would tell me they would go with me, which I found they did, for they would there call at my Curtain, by my Beds fide, as they ufually did at my Houfe, and talk to me.

Befide thefe two great Visitations, they have come to me now and then for fome Years, and fometimes have flay'd with me a Week, fometimes two or three Days; and all along from their first coming, they have very often fuggested things to me in my Dreams, as now and then they do ftill. At their first coming I heard no name of any of them mentioned, as I did at their fecond coming. I had a perception of them by four of my Senfes, for I faw them, heard them, and three of them had a dark fmoak coming out of their Mouths, which feemed fomewhat offensive to the Smell, it being like the fmoak of a Lamp; and three of them bid me take them by the Hand, which I did, but it yielded to my touch, fo that I could not find any fensible refistency in it; neither could I perceive any coldness in them, as it's faid fome Apparitions have had. I did not ask them many curious Questions, as I find many Men think I should, and, as they fay, they would have done; but I always kept me on my guard, and still requir'd them to be gone, and would not enter into fuch Familiarily, with them. Indeed I ask'd them once, what Creatures they were, and they told me, they were an Order of Creatures Superior to Mankind, and could Influence our Thoughts, and. that their Habitation was in the Air ; I ask'd them alfo feveral things relating to my own. concerns in this World, and I found fometimes both in their Anfwers, and in what they

they fuggefted in my Dreams, things very furprizing to me. One of them lay down upon my Bed by me, every Night, for a confiderable time, and pretended great kindnefs to me, and if fome others at any time would threaten me, that Spirit told me, they fhould do me no hurt.

If you ask me, whether I really think thefe Apparitions to be Spirits, or only an effect of Melancholy, I can only fay, what St. Paul faid of the Nature of his Rapture, God knows, I know not, but they appear'd to me Real.

Tandlerus, in his Differtation concerning Melancholy, tells us, That the affect of Melancholy chiefly happens to Perfons from the Fortieth to the Sixtieth Year of their Age, and that it's contracted chiefly in the Summer and Autumn, and comes to an Head in the Spring; and I must own that I was above Forty Years of Age, before any thing in this kind happen'd to me, but it was about Christmas, that the Apparitions came to me, both times.

As for Melancholy, I know not whether my Temperament may have fome allay of it. but I think, I carry more of a Sanguine. Indeed, there was this, that might help to exalt the other. When they first came to me, I was just upon a recovery from an intermittent Feyer, which had held me above twelve Months; and I confess at that time I was unfortunately involv'd, in an unnatural Suit in Law, with a too near Relation, which might fomewhat difcompofe my Mind; and at the Spirits fecond coming, that fuit in Law was continued. and I cannot fay, but at that time I might have been fomewhat affected by that faying of the Wife Man, Prov. 25. Si Dedas te vino, oculi tui wider videbunt extraneas, nempe, visiones, & mirabiles App ritiones, as Lavaterus explains it; but it's De Spell. much if fuch an occasion should cause them to l. 1. c. 4continue then with me above three Months.

I could add many more particulars of what pass'd betwixt the Spirits and my felf, for indeed I kept a Journal of it for fome Years, as well for what pass'd in my Dreams, as otherwife; but I shall forbear to trouble the Reader farther, only adding, that as these Visitations of Spirits, gave me an occasion to consider how far Humane Reason could bear, as to a making out of the Existence of Spirits, and their Operations, fo I must declare, I firmly believe, that as the whole visible World has proceeded from the invisible World (which will hold good even according to the Epicurean Doctrine) fo, that Spirits both good and bad are concern'd in the Administration of it, as Agents fubordinate to the first Caufe; and this I adhere to as well by a Medium of Reason, as that of Faith, in which, I think, we are all bound to acquiesce. And it appears plain enough to me, that those that will not fo do, will but lofe themfelves in a vertiginous Doxomania, and never center, in any folid Truth.

POSTSCRIPT.

HAving lately had the Honour to hear a Relation of an Apparition, from the Lord Bifhop of Gloucefter, and it being too late for me to infert it in its proper place, in this Book; I give it you here, by way of Poftfcript, as follows.

" Sir Charles Lee, by his first Lady, had only one Daughter, of which fhe died in Child-Birth; and when the was Dead, her Sifter, the Lady Everard, defir'd to have the 'Education of the Child; and fhe was by 'her very well Educated, till fhe was Marriageable; and a Match was concluded for her, with Sir William Perkins, but was then ^e prevented in an extraordinary manner. Up-'on a Thursday Night, she, thinking she faw a " Light in her Chamber, after fhe was in Bed, ' knock'd for her Maid, who prefently came to her; and fhe ask'd, why fhe left a Candle ' burning in her Chamber? The Maid faid ' fhe left none, and there was none, but what Then fhe ^s fhe brought with her at that time. faid it was the Fire; but that her Maid told 'her was quite out; and faid, fhe believ'd it ' was only a Dream, whereupon fhe faid it ' might be fo, and compos'd her felf again to 'fleep; but about two of the Clock fhe was 'awaken'd again, and faw the Apparition of a little Woman, between her Curtain and her Pillow, who told her fhe was her Mother. that fhe was Happy, and that by Twelve of the Clock, that Day, fhe fhould be with her, whereupon fhe knok'd again for her Maid, called for her Clothes, and when the was drefs'd, went into her Clofet, and came not out again till Nine; and then brought out with her a Letter fealed to her Father, brought it to her Aunt, the Lady Everard, told her what had happen'd, and defir'd, that affoon as fhe was Dead, it might be fent to him; but the Lady thought fhe was fuddenly fall'n Mad; and thereupon fent prefently away to Chelmsford, for a Phylician and Surgeon, ' who both came immediately, but the Physician could difcern no Indication of what the Lady imagin'd, or of any Indisposition of ' her Body, notwithstanding the Lady would needs have her let Blood, which was done accordingly; and when the Young Woman had ' patiently let them do what they would with her she desir'd that the Chaplain might be cal-'led to read Prayers; and when Prayers were ended, the took her Gittar and Pfalm Book, and fate down upon a Chair without Arms, and play'd and fung fo melodioufly and admirably, that her Musick-Master, who was ' then there, admired at it; and near the ftroke of Twelve, she rose, and sate her felf down ' in a great Chair with Arms, and prefently fetching a ftrong Breathing or two, imme-' diately Expired, and was fo fuddenly cold, as was much wondred at by the Phyfician and Surgeon. She dyed at Waltham, in Ellex, three Miles from Chelmsford; and the Let399

⁶ ter was fent to Sir Charles, at his Houfe in ⁶ Warwickshire; but he was fo afflicted with ⁶ the Death of his Daughter, that he came ⁶ not till she was Buried; but when he came, ⁶ caus'd her to be taken up, and to be buryed ⁸ by her Mother at Edminton, as she defir'd in ⁶ her Letter. This was about the Year 1662 ⁶ or 62. And this Relation the Lord Bissipp of Gloucesster, had from Sir Charles Lee himfelf.
